Egypt In Pull Out On Canal

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt has begun thinning out its troops on the East Bank of the Suez Canal, reports from Israel and Cairo indicated today. At the same time, the editor of Cairo's semi-official daily newspaper was fired, probably for writing articles too militantly pro-Arab in the Middle East dispute.

Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, confidant of successive Egyptian presidents, has been dismissed from his post as editor of Al Ahram because his recent articles were considered "non-conformist," political sources in Cairo said.

In his weekly column yesterday, Heikal was critical of the United States and said there had been no basic change in America's strategy in the Middle East. He also said he expected the Watergate scandal to remove President Nixon from the White House "in three to six months."

Diplomatic sources in Cairo and Israeli military intelligence reports from Tel Aviv today indicated that the withdrawal of some Egyptian troops from the Suez Canal's East Bank is in full swing.

The reports indicated that Egypt is complying fully with the Suez front disengagement agreement hammered out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last month.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram reported today that the United States has sent "new ideas" to Syria and Israel on disengaging their forces on the Golan Heights front. The paper said the United States was aiming at "a formula acceptable to the two parties."

The Israeli command said a Syrian mortar barrage yesterday caused no casualties or damage. The shelling lasted only a few minutes and marked the sixth consecutive day of incidents along the northern ceasefire line.

Under the Israeli-Egyptian agreement worked out last month by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Israel was to withdraw completely from its enclave at the southern end of the Suez Canal.

SITUATION EASES — While lines of customers were common yesterday at service stations like this one on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo, Marin and Southern Sonoma motorists today found the wait shorter as many dealers received their February fuel supply and resumed sales.

Jury Lifts Lid On Plea For $21,000

Fund Would Be Used On Efficiency Study

By ERIK INGRAM

The Marin County Grand Jury yesterday removed the cloak of secrecy from a request for $21,000 and said the funds will be used to study how efficiently county government is operating.

In effect, the study also will probe whether top county officials and department heads are able to account for the performance and effectiveness of various programs and services and if not, why.

According to F. Charles Ruegg, grand jury foreman, outside consultants are needed for the study of how programs are planned, how money and manpower is allocated, how current expenditures relate to long-range plans and the availability of management information needed to make those decisions.

In a letter to county supervisors, he said the $21,000 study will focus on department heads and top-level management personnel — the latter presumably meaning the county administrator.

The explanation was requested by supervisors last Tuesday after protesting the grand jury's refusal to say how the funds would be used.

"We were probably over-zealous or misinterpreted the restraints of secrecy on our activities," Ruegg said in submitting his letter. He said presiding Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court later had advised the jury that only its deliberations and votes must be secret.

Accompanying Ruegg's letter was a copy of a proposal from the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., certified public accountants, outlining the proposed study.

The firm said it would do the study for $20,800 and would make recommendations in June on any shortcomings it finds.

"The current grand jury is concerned that previous grand-juries have not gone far enough in determining that county officials properly discharge their stewardship responsibilities," the firm said.

"The grand jury is concerned that accountability may indeed be lacking and that the county's internal audit department (county auditor-controller) may not be functioning effectively enough to remedy this situation."

The firm said it is not enough to simply keep track of the collection and dispersement of funds without regard for how much governmental service those funds provide.

Ruegg said the services to be provided by the firm do not include a study of whether the county needs a new data processing system to keep track of funds, as was suggested by supervisors last week.

Actual approval of the funds is up to Judge McGuire. Supervisors, who will consider the matter Tuesday, must only be "advised" of the matter.

The board, meeting at 10:45 a.m. at the Civic Center, also will consider a report from Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste on the status of a study to expand data processing programs.

Koch To Move Marin Operation

H. Koch & Sons plant in Corte Madera, producer of airline supplies and luggage, will be phased out by summer and moved to another Gulf and Western plant in Anaheim, which means the loss of jobs for more than 100 workers in Marin.

"I hate to see them go," said Thomas Bevan, business agent for the International Association of Machinists Local 238 in San Rafael.

"Our best guess is that Koch will be gone by May or June. It means 40 of our machinists and 65 of the leather and novelty workers will be out of work."

Bevan blamed the closing of Koch and other manufacturing plants in Marin on high taxes and planning restrictions placed on manufacturing industries.

"Look at businesses like Bergman Manufacturing in San Rafael," said Bevan. "Bergman left because taxes got too high, and the planners put up too many conditions like plant bushes here and put up a fence there. We've got to do more to attract and keep manufacturing industries here!"

H. Koch & Sons, which started as a family business, was taken over by Gulf and Western of New York about four years ago. The Koch plant is headed by president Al M. Brinskele of Novato.

The notice of the phase-out, issued by his office, said that the Gulf and Western Systems Group had directed the relocation of the Corte Madera plant in order to consolidate and stay in the competitive market.

Koch formerly specialized in luggage manufacture, with more than 300 employees, but now concentrates on food carts, containers and survival equipment for airlines.

Gasoline A Little Easier To Buy; Quotas Arrive

The gasoline situation eased somewhat today in the Bay Area as many dealers received their February fuel supply and opened for business.

But while lines were shorter, prices are in many cases higher because of increases announced yesterday by Atlantic Richfield, Shell and Mobil, and a number of eastern oil companies.

Locally, prices shot up 2 to 3 cents a gallon among affected dealers. No increases were reported for Texaco, Chevron or Standard Oil of California stations.

Most Marin and Southern Sonoma dealers were open today, and spot checks revealed that yesterday's crush of customers had diminished to a smaller but steady flow.

The California Service Station Association, meanwhile, continued its promise to do "whatever it takes," including closing stations down completely, to protest low profits.

Association president Jim Campbell of Oakland said yesterday a shutdown decision will be made at a Feb. 15 meeting in Fresno of six major gasoline dealer associations.

"Maybe it won't be a complete shutdown," Campbell said. "Maybe we'll just deliver $1 worth of gas to each customer."

While the Federal Energy Office has promised relief in the form of higher profits for dealers, none has come, Campbell said.

Strike By Truckers Is Spreading

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The truck drivers' strike spread to more than 20 states and the governors in three states called out the National Guard in a move to insure supplies.

Reports from around the country today indicated industrial plants closing and food and fuel in short supply in some places. Violence also was reported.

Truck traffic was slowed in many parts of the country when striking independent drivers blocked highways. Some of the striking independent drivers blocked the entrances to oil company refineries, stopping the delivery of gasoline.

The National Guard was activated in Pennsylvania, where Gov. Milton Shapp called in elements of two National Guard battalions to insure free movement of trucks; Ohio, where Gov. John J. Gilligan authorized his state's National Guard to use helicopters to help search for snipers and rock-throwers attempting to disrupt highway truck traffic, and Florida, where Gov. Reubin Askew offered National Guard trucks to haul fuel to police, fire and ambulance units in cities and counties along fuelstarved southwest Florida coast.

In Florida, at least one driver was fired upon as hundreds of truckers joined in a protest strike that cut off fuel shipments to several parts of the state and threatened to dry up vegetable supplies to the Northeast.

Gunfire also was reported in

Fire Death Toll Climbs To 182

SAO PAULO (UPI) — Firemen today found more bodies on the still smoldering top floors of the gutted 22-story Joelma skyscraper and police checked a report that a bomb threat had been received prior to yesterday's fire which trapped hundreds of workers.

The death toll in the fire climbed to 182 after firemen found eight more badly charred bodies on the top floors. The city morgue said only 110 of the victims had been identified.

At least one American was among the victims. Morgue officials identified him as William Franz Williams, general manager of corporate banking activities for the Crefisul Investment Bank on the top floors of the new building which had no fire escapes.

Williams, a California native and former employe of the First National City Bank, had been living in Brazil for the past 10 years.

Another American, Cody Marsh, also a Crefisul employe, was reported missing. Marsh's home town was not immediately available.

Several newspapers reported today a Crefisul telephone operator said she received an anonymous phone call on Thursday threatening that a bomb would go off yesterday morning.

Fire officials, however, said all indications were against sabotage. "Our experts have determined that there was initially only one focal point to the fire, which would seem to halt the supposition that it was intentionally set," one official said.

"But we cannot make hasty conclusions and we prefer to await the results of our investigation."

Fire officials blamed a short circuit in an air conditioning unit for touching off the devastating blaze Friday, which also left hundreds of persons seriously injured.

Witnesses said at least 25 persons plunged to their deaths, leaping from the roof in a frantic attempt to escape the intense heat. Flames from the fire shot 150 feet in the air.

"Most of the victims were cooked," said Fire Chief Jonas Flores Ribeiro Jr.. "At least 80 per cent of the deaths were caused by panic."

Ribeiro said the building, the Joelma office complex, had inadequate sprinkler systems and the fire stairs "were only 11 inches wide."

Sao Paulo Mayor Miguel Colasuonno called the disaster "horrible." He said the flames shot rapidly through the office tower because the builder had used "inflammable material" to make the upper floors.

The fire lasted three and a half hours and sent smoke billowing through downtown Sao Paulo, Latin America's largest city.

Firefighters and rescue teams used fleets of helicopters to try to save an estimated 100 persons trapped on the roof. But dense smoke, flames and the heat forced the choppers to veer away during most of the blaze.

A crowd of 10,000 persons gathered in the streets below, watching stunned as the grim spectacle unfolded above them. Many wept and several said prayers begging for a miracle to save the office workers.

Firemen daubed paint on bedsheets, appealing to the trapped workers "Be Calm People" and "Firemen Here."

One frantic woman, totally blackened by the smoke, leaped from the 15th floor clutching her year-old baby in her arms. The woman died instantly in the fall, but the infant was pried from her grasp still alive.

One survivor told how he saw dozens of peoply trying hysterically to squeeze their way out of the building.

"People were ripping their clothes off and many of them who fell to the floor burned to death" he said.

TRAPPED ON LEDGE — Victims, trapped on a ledge of the burning 22-story Joelma building in Sao Paulo, Brazil, are horror stricken as they try to escape the flames. So far 182 persons have been counted dead in yesterday's blaze. (UPI Telephoto)

Commune In Paradise Valley Faces Closure

Court action to close down the controversial Paradise Valley Commune near Bolinas was recommended yesterday by the Marin County Counsel's office.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino said he will ask county supervisors Tuesday to initiate legal proceedings against the group which has erected several homes without benefit of health or building permits.

He said county orders that the families vacate the buildings and halt new construction have been ignored.

The commune, located on 48 acres in a secluded valley near the seaside community, is made up of 14 adults and 15 children.

It applied for various county permits in November, but the applications were not complete and the group failed to revise them.

"Our efforts to obtain voluntary complaince with the county ordinance have been unsuccessful," Godino said in a letter to supervisors.

The attorney held up legal action in November because of the "good faith" shown by commune members in submitting permit applications.

Godino said yesterday he will now seek an injunction to halt new construction and possibly force razing of the buildings.

Heath Will Make Final Bid To Head Off Strike

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath made plans today for one more round of labor talks in a final bid to head off a nationwide coal mines shutdown threatened for next week.

Government officials said Heath hopes to confer late Monday with leaders of the 10 million-member Trades Union Congress (TUC) and the Confederation of British Industry, which represents 12,000 industrial firms.

But mineworkers leaders, backed by a reported landslide "yes" vote in a strike ballot of Britain's 269,000 coal miners, plan to boycott any talks unless the government undertakes a prior commitment to provide more money.

Union General Secretary Lawrence Daly said, "If talks are to drag on for months and

Boyle Trial Date Set

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — The Yablonski murder trial of former United Mine Workers president W. A. (Tony) Boyle will begin March 25 at the Delaware County Court House.

Boyle

The trial date was set yesterday in a meeting between President Judge John V. Diggins, Judge Francis J. Catania, who will preside at the trial, and defense and prosecution attorneys.

Boyle, 71, is charged in the Dec. 31, 1969 slayings of union rival Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski, his wife and daughter in their Washington County home.

He is currently recuperating from an overdose of sleeping pills at a federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., where he is serving a prison term for misuse of union funds.

Assassination Talk

BELFAST (UPI) — An extremist Protestant organization threatened today to assassinate members of the ruling Northern Ireland Assembly unless it cracked down on violence by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Hours before the threat, the IRA attacked a joint police-army post on the County Fermanagh border with rockets and machine guns, an army spokesman said. There were no injuries and an army spokesman said the raiders drove across the border while troops fired at them.

Airport Reopens

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI) — The Pago Pago airport was reopened to commercial traffic yesterday as experts sought the cause of a jetliner crash that took 92 lives.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said new restrictions were enforced that increased the minimum visibility required for landing approaches.

A Pan American 707 hit a hillside about 1,000 feet from the runway Thursday, cutting a swath 200 feet wide through the jungle and bursting into flames.

Phnom Penh Shelled

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist-led Khmer Rouge guerrillas ended a five-day lull in the artillery attack against Phnom Penh today and fired a 100-shell barrage into the city while most residents were still asleep.

It marked one of the heaviest shelling attacks during the four-year war in Cambodia.

The shells killed at least six persons and wounded 45, according to reports from hospitals and police sources.

Gromyko Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will arrive here tomorrow for talks with President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, White House sources confirmed Friday night.

Gromyko is accompanying Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev on a trip to Cuba. Likely topics for discussion include the Middle East, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks and, possibly, future U.S.-Cuban relations.

Needed Signatures

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Supporters of a proposed initiative to create a one-house legislature in California must collect 520,806 voter signatures by June 27 to qualify it for the November ballot.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday set the deadline in releasing the official summary and title of the proposal, which is sponsored by a San Francisco committee called "One for All," headed by former state Sen. Lewis F. Sherman.

Skylab 3 Team Begins Final Chores Of Flight

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts complete their sun studies today and rehearse their final spacewalk from the 113-foot station their flight director calls a "pretty damn good first-of-a-kind vehicle."

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue are winding up the bulk of research on man's longest scientific voyage in space and preparing to come home.

Today they had two hours of sun watching on schedule. Gibson and Carr will spacewalk tomorrow for four hours to collect the thousands of pictures in the solar telescopes.

Today they checked out their Apollo ferry ship to be sure its electrical and fuel systems are okay for the return trip after sitting idle in orbitfor 84 days.

Back on earth Flight Director Philip Shaffer said it had been a very successful mission despite the various mechanical problems the Skylab crew has had to face.

"The odds were not great by any chance that we'd ever get to Skylab 3 without something cratering (a serious system failure) to the point that we couldn't fly the full duration," Shaffer said.

He explained that the first time every new type of spaceship is flown, problems are found and ironed out before the next flight—only for Skylab there is no next flight.

"The fact that we've flown three missions—flown the last two longer than was intended in face of the problems that we started with—tells us that is really a pretty damn good first-of-a-kind vehicle," Shaffer stof-a-kind vehicle," Shaffer said. "The answer to the question has to be a resounding 'yes.' We got more than we started for."

Traffic Into W. Berlin Checked

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — East German police are checking traffic bound for West Berlin for the second consecutive weekend, West German border police said today.

Despite protests that such traffic controls are in violation of the Big Four agreement on Berlin, the East Germans last weekend stopped all traffic for West Berlin passing through East German highways.

The East Germans later explained they were looking for common criminals. No immediate official explanation was forthcoming for the new interference. The Berlin agreement signed 18 months ago promises unimpeded access to encircled West Berlin.

RESPONSE TO NIXON

Mansfield Confident On House Impeachment Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring "a solemn and urgent obligation" by Congress to clean up campaign financing this year, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield is confident a House vote on impeaching President Nixon could come this year.

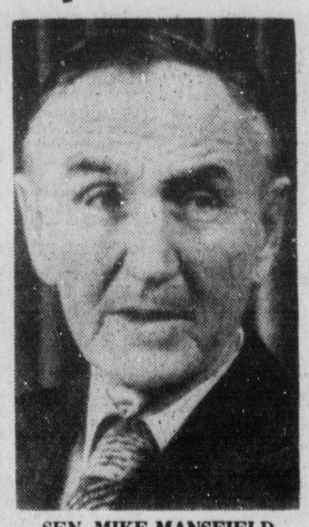

In a nationally broadcast response to Nixon's State of the Union address, on behalf of congressional Democrats, Mansfield said last night "the question of impeachment and the matters of the Watergate hearings create onerous responsibilities for the Congress.

"They are also inescapable responsibilities. They have had to be assumed in order to cleanse the political process of this nation."

He urged Nixon to support efforts to "clean up the campaign financing mess." Nixon Wednesday night told Congress, "One year of Watergate is enough."

In a question-and-answer session with reporters after his speech, Mansfield said a House impeachment vote could come within a few months, but that a Senate trial, if Nixon was impeached, could extend into next year."

He said the question of Nixon's resignation was settled by the President's rejection of such action Wednesday, and that criminal aspects of Watergate are for the courts to decide. "Whether it is months or years" he said, "there are no judicial shortcuts."

SEN. MIKE MANSFIELD
Nixon settles resignation

The government must "excise Watergate" because the American people do not want their country run "by the whim or the will of the most powerful and influential," said Mansfield.

"It is incumbent on us to foreclose an excessive intrusion of great wealth, whether corporate, labor, personal or whatever, into the electoral process," the 70-year-old Senate leader said. "That is a solemn and urgent obligation."

He added: "If it was in 1972 that Watergate arose, and in 1973 it was investigated, may it be said that it was in 1974 that the matter was finally ended in a new system of open elections, openly paid for."

On other subjects, Mansfield said:

Congress will give "full and cooperative consideration" to the President's 1974 legislative package. But he predicted the $304.4 billion budget would be cut and Congress will concentrate on tax reform, national health insurance, housing aid, pension reform, minimum wage, education, no-fault auto insurance and federal campaign financing.

Nixon should not hesitate to ration gasoline, and has authority under a 1950 law to do so now.

He favors televising both the House Judiciary Committee hearings and any Senate trial.

There should be some kind of committee composed of members of the executive and legislative branches and businessmen to deal with problems created by the energy shortage.

Congress can best help heal the crisis of confidence in government by acting and moving decisively on the major problems. He said he does not blame the public for feeling "cynicism, pessimism and questioning" over the performance of government.

Bennett Says Ruling On Nixon Taxes Is A 'Hometown Decision'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Democratic state official today assailed as a "hometown decision" a ruling that native son President Nixon is a nonresident for California income tax purposes.

William G. Bennett of Kentfield, a member of the state Board of Equalization who has sought unsuccessfully to have the President billed for back taxes, said he may file a lawsuit to compel payment.

He commented in the wake of a ruling by another state official who held the President and Mrs. Nixon, who maintain a beach villa and vote at San Clemente, are "nonresidents of California" for purposes of personal income taxation.

Martin Huff, executive officer of the state Franchise Tax Board which administers the income tax, announced yesterday a decision will be made later on whether Nixon owes back taxes on his income from 1969-73.

He said under California law a nonresident is liable for taxation on "California source income," which presumably would exclude the President's federal salary and expenses of $250,000 each year.

The ruling, based on an opinion of the Franchise Tax Board's lawyers, had the apparent effect of reducing any state taxes the President might owe.

Bennett failed Dec. 12 as a member of the Franchise Tax Board to have the President assessed for back taxes when the two Republican members, state Controller Houston Flournoy and State Finance Director Verne Orr, refused to go along. Flournoy is a gubernatorial candidate and Orr is an appointee of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"This was a hometown decision of Reagan to Flournoy to Orr to Huff," Bennett charged. "President Nixon came home free."

The White House announced in December that Nixon paid no state income tax since taking office. Aides cited state law which differentiates between a domicile, which is required for voting, and a citizen resident, who is liable for income taxes.

"If you are a resident, we tax you on all your income," Huff said. "If you are a nonresident, then there is a limit to what we can reach."

But Bennett said, "Huff has made Richard M. Nixon out to be a liar. Nixon said under penalty of perjury on his 1969 income tax return that San Clemente was his permanent address and by so claiming, he avoided a capital gains tax on a profit of $142,000 on the sale of his New York City apartment."

At a news conference, Huff refused to discuss whether the President might owe taxes on "California source income" and said any further determination would wait the findings of a joint congressional committee which is investigating Nixon's tax status.

He said when his examination is finished he expected the President to issue another "waiver of confidentiality" so "our determination can be made public."

It was unclear what sources of California income Nixon could be subject to taxation on, if any, but two possibilities emerged:

—The disputed capital gains on the sales of six acres of land at his San Clemente estate, where he is registered to vote. He paid no federal capital gains tax on the sale. One auditing firm said he should have paid capital gains on $117,370 but another said he owed nothing.

— The "nominal" income from rental of the Nixon family home in Whittier.

End Likely On Wage-Price Lid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising inflation and unemployment in 1973 despite economic controls could mean an end soon to the administration's wage-price regulations.

In an annual report to Congress, the President's Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) said yesterday the controls have failed. It predicted consumer prices would rise 7 per cent this year, less than the 8.8 per cent rise last year, which was the biggest yearly increase in three decades.

The CEA prediction, however, said the economy would recover somewhat during the second half of the year.

At the same time, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said a White House briefing on the fiscal 1975 budget yesterday produced "lively discussion" about extending controls past April 30.

Scott also said the $304.4 billion budget, to be sent to Congress Monday, will be "antirecessionary and antiinflationary."

A $6 billion increase in defense spending, he said, was unavoidable because of inflation and previous committments to military pay raises.

In the council report, CEA chairman Herbert Stein, said ending wage-price controls after 30 months would result in another round of consumer price increases. But the report said, "The controls have not recently been very effective in restraining inflation."

Views on budget

Cost of Living Council (CLC) Director John T. Dunlop appears before a House committee next week and his testimony could reflect a decision by President Nixon on the future of controls.

Only 25 per cent of the nation's retail economy remains under control after the CLC's exemption yesterday of another quarter of the retail industry. Food, motor vehicles and petroleum products remain subject to the wage-price restrictions.

The 10 largest department stores chains promised yesterday to hold down profits to last year's levels through Aug. 1.

Although Nixon in his State of the Union message Wednesday and Stein in his report Friday said there will be no recession, a top government statistician was not as optimistic.

Julius Shiskin, head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, agreed yesterday the rise in the unemployment rate from 4.8 per cent in December to 5.2 per cent last month "may be foreshadowing events."

He responded to Sen. William Proxmire's question whether the latest increase, the largest since 1969, "is a typical sign of a recession."

Recession is generally defined as two straight quarters of negative economic growth.

The Wisconsin Democrat said at a Joint Economic Committee hearing that recessions followed the past two dramatic rises in unemployment.

Strange Bones Put Together

BERKELEY (AP) — After nearly 10 years of work, scientists have assembled the bones of an ungainly sea-going mammal that inhabited shallow coastal waters here and off Japan 10 million years ago.

The 9-foot-long creature, called Paleoparadoxia, was first unearthed in the foothills near Palo Alto, said scientists who displayed the skeleton for the first time Thursday.

Joseph Gregory, director of the University of California's Museum of Paleontology, said the animal once was about the size of a hippopotamus and looked like an ox with flippers.

Police Rule Out Link In Murders

OAKLAND (UPI) — Police have apparently ruled out any link between the hacking deaths of three persons in an Oakland mortuary and the fatal shooting of four victims in nearby San Francisco.

Oakland police captain John Lothrop said yesterday there appears to be "no connection" in the cases.

Lothrop said detectives have developed a strong lead in the murder of two men and a woman at the mortuary Wednesday night but he declined to go into details.

Four white persons were gunned down on the streets of San Francisco Monday night by black gunmen. Police reported Friday they have made no headway in locating the killers.

The San Francisco killings were believed to have been committed by gunmen shooting at random from a car.

The victims in the mortuary slayings were Clarence Bryant, 75, his wife, Doris, 68, and Michael Moore, 27.

The elder victims were caretakers and Moore was a mortuary trainee.

Floodway Zoning Before Council

The Novato Planning Commission will consider applying floodway zoning to the Nave Gardens area at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The zoning, which would control building in the flood area, has been in effect on an interim basis.

Commissioners also will discuss whether there should be different criteria established for condominiums as compared to apartment complexes.

DRAMA REVIEW

New McClure Play — A Mixed Bag Of Characters, Lights

"GORF" — A two-act play by Michael McClure, directed by John Lion of The Magic Theater at the Firehouse Theater. Music, Daniel Osborn; choreography, Patrese Lovecraft; sound design, Dan Dugan; scenery and lighting, Donald Cate; costume design, Regina Cate. The cast: TV One, Freddy Mao; TV Two, Cecily Yahya; Mert, Matthew Locricchio; Gert, Roberta Callahan; Gorf, Marc Jacobs; Stars, Barbara Ellis and Betsey Kramer; Shepherds, Motorcycle Outlaws and Woodcutters One and Two, Bruce Parry and Gary Krakower; Blind Dyke; Priscilla Alden; Giant Penguin, Doug Broyles; White Rock Girl, Laura Duncan, and Scribe, Matthew Locricchiox.

By GERALD GENESE

SAN FRANCISCO — Take one purple winged phallus, two naked female tap dancing stars, a giant penguin, a sightless motorcyclist lesbian, a giant hairy elephant who sits on Mert and Gert and kills them initiating the action, 100 light and sound cues, four musicians and a watering can and what do you get? — avant-garde playwright, Michael McClure's newest play, the Dada musical melodrama, "Gorf."

Being presented in its world premiere at the Firehouse Theater, under the direction of John Lion and his Magic Theater, "Gorf," which opened last night could lead one to shout in frustration or glee, laugh, be offended, confused, intellectually aroused, sexually turned on, all or none of the above, depending on your proclivities for a number of man's appetitites.

One of the more curious things about "Gorf," with its naked tap dancing stars and purple winged phallus, it is strangely asexual. Whether this is intentional or not, I'm not sure.

The play begins with four musicians entering the theater dressed as angels — halos and all. They quite humorously tune up to a recording of a full orchestra.

As the lights come up on the playing area, Mert (Matthew Locricchio) and Gert (Roberta Callahan) are sitting in their domicile in Thebes being entertained by their TV sets One (Freddy Mao) and Two (Cecily Yahya). Gert has a premonition that they will be crushed by a Giant Hairy Elephant.

Gorf (Marc Jacobs), the purple winged phallus and protagonist of the play enters, and warns Mert and Gert they are indeed in danger of being killed and flung into the afterworld.

A huge burlap sack in the shape of an elephant's derierre descends from the ceiling and sends Mert and Gert on their way.

What follows is too complicated to relate.

McClure has included a spectrum of symbols and myths, not lighting upon one long enough to develop it satisfactorily. He has included the phallus, motorcycle, cosmos, stars, giant penguin, Oedipus and the Vulture God.

Could McClure unconsciously identify with the establishment? On the basis of his previous works, such as "The Beard" — I doubt it.

What seems to be the theme of the play is man's search for unity or oneness in his psyche or tuning into the universal mind. One might say in more conventional terms — his search for God.

Technically the play is very interesting. There are over 100 light and sound cues which are quite effectively handled by the tech crew and the cast.

The acting ranged from fair to very good, with Marc Jacobs and Priscilla Alden (the blind motorcycle lesbian) in the latter category.

If you are a fan of avante-garde theater, "Gorf" is worth your time, because it brings together two interesting talents — McClure and John Lion, founder and director of the Magic Theater.

"Gorf," will run Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., and Saturdays at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. through March 24 at the Firehouse Theater.

'Open Campus' Will Be Before Trustees

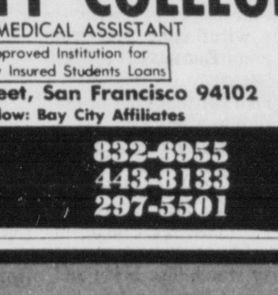

Continuation of Redwood High School as an "open campus" on a permanent basis will be considered by Tamalpais High School District trustees when they meet Monday at 8 p.m. in the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

The policy, under which studets are not required to stay on the Larkspur campus when they don't have a class scheduled, has been used on a trial basis since last spring.

Candidate For Mardi Gras Queen Plans Second Walk

By MOLLY MARIN

In her quest for the title of queen of the Mardi Gras Mrs. Philip Presber of Belvedere has planned her second walk with naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger for Tuesday.

Sixty women, many with small children, have already made reservations and will meet Mrs. Terwilliger at 9:30 a.m. behind Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley. With picnic lunches they will walk along Richardson Bay to marshlands, oyster beds and the ducks' wintering place, drive to Muir Woods to watch the salmon go upstream to spawn and then explore Muir Beach and see the butterfly tree.

Reservations can be made with Judith Presber.

Belvedere teen-agers held a bake sale today on the Tiburon boardwalk to benefit the campaign.

Proceeds from both events will be credited as 10 cents a vote to Mrs. Presber and will be donated to the Child Development Center at Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

AFTER SINGING and dancing Wednesday in a musical review of the history of San Francisco Yacht Club Women's Auxiliary at the club, 45 members of the "Winches and Wenches" cast were entertained at the Belvedere Lagoon home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davies of Belvedere Lagoon.

A gust star, Bob Davies is an honorary member of the women's auxiliary, credited with its founding 20 years ago.

A second performance of "Winches and Wenches" is scheduled for tomorrow when 100 people will come to the club for a buffet dinner and the 8 p.m. show written by Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Belvedere.

DR. AND MRS. Eugene Kilgore Jr. of Tiburon visited interesting homes during their recent trip to Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex.

They were guests of honor at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles David Tandy of Fort Worth. The showplace is the only private residence designed by I. M. Pei, architect of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Artist Mimi Kilgore gave her hostess one of her paintings and was overwhelmed to learn that it will be hung among Mrs. Tandy's $5 million dollar collection of contemporary art in her home.

Mrs. Kilgore played tennis doubles at Albert G. Hill's air conditioned, indoor court at his Fort Worth home. Across the net was Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla.

In Dallas, they had a sightseeing tour of Mrs. Joseph Lambert's penthouse apartment. The neighboring penthouse belongs to Greer Garson and her husband, Buddy Fogelsen, a decorator.

OWEN GWATHMEY has returned home to Belvedere after more than three years in the Peace Corps in Africa, doing public health work in various parts of the Republic of Tchad. He is a biological sciences graduate of the University of California at Davis and plans to continue academic work.

Owen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cabell Gwathmey of Belvedere and the brother of Margaret Gwathmey of San Francisco, an instructor in English and composition at Skyline College.

A SURPRISE 25th wedding anniversary was given last Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. George Kahler at their home in San Rafael. Hosts were their children, Doreen Santini of Sunnyvale and George Kahler of San Rafael.

Among the 50 guests were members of the original wedding party when the couple was wed Jan. 30, 1949, at St. Cecilia's Church in Lagunitas.

FOUR COUPLES from Marin County attended a dinner party Monday evening at Trader Vic's in San Francisco honoring Edward N. Nagel.

Nagel was honored by the Asian Art Commission for his recent gift of more than 50 objects to the Asian Art Museum in Golden Gate Park.

Guests from Marin were Mr. and Mrs. Yvon d'Argence and Dr. and Mrs. S. I. Hayakawa, all of Mill Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Sinski of Fairfax and Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Titchell of Belvedere.

D'Argence is director chief curator of the museum, and Dr. Hayakawa is a member of the commission.

An exhibition of Nagel's gifts will continue through March 3 at the museum.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Thomas of San Rafael and their children, Heidi and Robert Jr., have recently returned from Napili Shores, Maui, Hawaii.

LIVING IN San Rafael are the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O. Cheatham (Nancy Kay Tackett.)

The couple was married Jan.19 at the First Assembly of God Church in Vallejo.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lawrence Tackett of Vallejo, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fuse of San Rafael.

NEWLYWEDS MR. and Mrs. Kenneth Edward Dusek are at home in Petaluma after a wedding trip to San Diego and Southern California.

The couple was wed Dec. 29 at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Petaluma. The bride, the former Linda Marie Albertoni, is the daughter of Mrs. Elsie Albertoni of Petaluma and the late James D. Albertoni. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Leona Miller of Petaluma.

Both were graduated from Petaluma High School and Linda was graduated from Sonoma State College. She is employed with the Marin French Cheese Co. and Kenneth works at Empire Casting, Inc. in Petaluma.

Linda is the sister of Richard Albertoni of Petaluma and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dazio Lavio, also of Petaluma. Kenneth is the brother of Louis Dusek of Anchorage, Alaska, and John and Dale Miller, Mary Thompson and Gary Dusek, all of Petaluma.

Mrs. Thomas Kerch was matron of honor at the wedding and the bridegroom's brother Louis was best man.

DR. AND MRS. Virgil Place of Palo Alto are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Tamara, to James McKenna on Dec. 31 in Reno, Nev.

Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George McKenna of Kentfield.

The newlyweds are living in Tahoe City, where the bridegroom operates a cleaning service.

RETURNING FROM a wedding trip to Mexico City and Southern California are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steven Ghisletta Jr. of Petaluma. They were wed on Dec. 22 at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

Mrs. Ghisletta, the former Bonita Marie Barboni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Barboni of Hicks Valley, Marin County, is the sister of Charles, Stephanie, William and Julianne Barboni and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barboni of Hicks Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Lando of San Francisco. She was graduated from Petaluma High School and Santa Rosa Junior College and is employed as a dental assistant.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Annie Ghisletta and the late Harold Ghisletta of Petaluma. He is the brother of Mrs. Edwin Bryne Jr., Mrs. Ronald Renati, Mrs. Larry Hansen and Mrs. Larry Ferrera of Petaluma and Mrs. Fred Corda of Novato. Harold was graduated from Petaluma High School and is part owner of Dolcini-Ghisletta Co.

Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society Finds Pot Of Gold—Wedding Fees

By PAT BALMES

The Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society believes it will never have to have a fund raiser again to maintain its historical museum, now that the museum has found favor with young couples as a wedding chapel.

Eight weddings are scheduled at the museum through April. If 20 are held there this year at a fee of $100 each, the proceeds will pay for maintenance and improvements on the old building, executive director Carol Ericson calculated.

The picturesque white building on a grassy hill near the peninsula's point was Tiburon's first church, built for a congregation which only needed three pews. Its small size, simple wood interior, rusty bell which tolls as the bridal couple leave and its wildflower preserve have special appeal to the young.

"We have got them out of the fields and into a building," said Mrs. Ericson with humor about today's weddings.

THE MUSEUM'S charm is its intimacy; 80 people fill the little building. The wedding guests and party stand. The bride and bridegroom's family sit in the pews. And the vows can be heard by all.

Sometimes receptions are held after the ceremonies. While the bride is having her picture taken on the steps, the best man brings in the champagne from the former vestry.

The landmark, which is a deconsecrated Catholic church, Old St. Hilary's, represents a compromise for some brides and their mothers. While the young couple's friends are congratulating them and adding, "How nice to be married in an old museum," the bride's mother is happy with the thought that her daughter had a church wedding.

Other couples who want a church wedding and have no church affiliations come to the landmark from all over the Bay Area.

In 1969 the former Elaine Lyons, then secretary for the son of historian Susannah Dakin, who gave the building to the Landmarks Society, wanted to marry William Halnan in the museum.

"We were not interested because the building was still in restoration, but we talked it over and decided 'why not try it?'" said Mrs. Ericson.

THE 48 weddings since then have been different styles and denominations, some sophisticated, others casual, but all young.

One Scotsman married his bride in a traditional Scottish ceremony, wearing a kilt and a jeweled dagger tucked in the top of his kneesock. The couple were piped out of church with drum and bagpipes to please the bridegroom's parents, who had flown here from Scotland.

Another evening ceremony featured the wedding party escorting the bride into the darkened church carrying candles.

At one wedding the bridegroom wanted his dog present, so the dog came and sat in a pew. "You can't arrange that everywhere," commented Mrs. Ericson wryly.

The weddings are arranged by docents who prefer wedding bells to working at the museum showing exhibits to visitors. They make initial plans by phone, show the church to the family, open it to place flowers and to have a rehearsal before the wedding day.

Mrs. Virginia Collbran is in charge of the docent wedding program, contacted through the Landmarks Society, Box 134, Tiburon.

"Virginia loves doing it. She says that it is so pretty it makes her cry," said Mrs. Ericson.

Consultant For Montessori Schools Eyes Marin Scene

By BARBARA HOSMER

The first United States consultant for Association Montessori Internationale has been in Marin this week meeting with teachers and parents at several Montessori schools.

She is Margot R. Waltuch of New York, who worked with the early childhood education method's founder, Dr. Maria Montessori, in Italy and other European countries.

Mrs. Waltuch said that she was appointed consultant because there was a definite need of U.S. Montessori schools and teachers for supervision and help and to see that Montessori methods are "used right," so the child can pursue self-development.

The German-schooled consultant, appointed last October, is on her first consulting tour of the West Coast, and left yesterday for a three day National Conference of Montessori Teachers in Los Angeles, where she will speak. She has already visited schools in Texas, New Jersey and Philadelphia.

"I AM in each school as long as they feel necessary," she explained at the Montessori school in Terra Linda this week. She has individual conferences with the teachers to go over problems and she checks the curriculum. Mrs. Waltuch has lectured in Marin and Petaluma to parents and teachers this week.

Subjects that come up repeatedly, she finds, are questions on the environment of the classroom, how to present certain materials, and organization of youngsters within a Montessori class.

One recent change she is finding in the schools is an extended day, as more children require day care from 7 a.m. through 6 p.m.

BETWEEN TEACHER consultations, Margot R. Waltuch stopped for an interview in the classroom at the Montessori School in Terra Linda, where she was observing the program. The first U.S. consultant for the Association Montessori Internationale, she worked on developing the early childhood education theories with Dr. Maria Montessori in Holland.

Mrs. Waltuch, in Marin at the request of Ross Academy schools operators Mr. and Mrs. John A. Lord, visited the academy's four schools there. She has observed classes and met with teachers in Ross, Terra Linda, Tiburon-Mill Valley and Petaluma during a fully scheduled week.

Wife of New York physician Dr. Max Waltuch and mother of a grown son, Mrs. Waltuch explained that Montessori training is not just a school project, it also goes on at home with the parents, when asked if her son had attended a Montessori school.

She has been working with the Montessori training for almost 40 years, beginning as a student of Dr. Montessori at her training center in Italy and spending the following year with her as translator and her assistant.

"SHE WAS a genial and dynamic person," she said of Dr. Montessori, and she worked right up to her death at age 82 in 1952.

"I attended all the summer congresses in Europe, where Dr. Montessori gave lectures, and I worked a year at the research center in Holland after Dr. Montessori had to leave Spain following the Spanish Civil War in 1936," said Mrs. Waltuch. "We set up the research center there," and AMI is still headquartered in Holland.

Known for early childhood education, Dr. Montessori "had very new ideas on the education of adolescent," Mrs. Waltuch said. She agreed that it was exciting to work with the founder on developing educational ideas, researching and trying them with the children and observing the reaction.

"Sometimes we would use a thing with a different age group," she said of their experiments. Much depended on how the children liked it.

"From Holland, Dr. Montessori went to India to spend eight or nine years, including World War II years. She went back to Italy in 1949 to give a conference on the "Form of Man," but her home was in Holland," she said. Dr. Montessori went on to work with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and continued her writing.

MRS. WALTUCH came to the United States, having taught in a Montessori school in Paris for several years and being active in the summer congresses each year. Since 1955 she has been director of the Child Education Foundation, and a large nursery school in New York, and she received the bachelor and masters degrees from Teachers College at Columbia University.

In the summers of 1962 and 1963 she organized and led, with Dr. Kenneth Wann of Teachers College, Columbia, the "Traveling Seminar in Early Childhood Education, from Rome to Copenhagen, a study tour.

Mrs. Waltuch has been a summer staff member of the International Montessori Training Center in Perugia, Italy since 1965. Now she will spend much of the year traveling in the U.S. and summers in Europe.

ON THE AGENDA

Marin Dental Society Auxiliary To Have Health Night On Tuesday

Members of the Marin Dental Society Auxiliary will have a dental health night Tuesday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hall in Tiburon, beginning at 8 p.m.

The Halls will host members of Marin Dental Society and their wives, College of Marin instructors in dental assisting and dental hygienists and assistants.

Dr. Howard Myers, chairman of the biochemistry department of the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry, will speak about plaque prevention.

Instead of the traditional sweet dessert, Mrs. Hall plans to strike a blow against decay-causing plaque by serving cheese and French bread with the coffee.

"HOW THE Medical Profession Views Women" will be the topic Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for the "Knowledge is Power Series" at the Marin Young Women's Christian Association, 1618 Mission Avenue in San Rafael.

Speakers will be nurse practitioner Del Alden, Dr. Katherine Kirkman and Mary Blom, a member of the Women's Health Collective. Linda Rudolf will show slides on how women are portrayed in medical textbooks.

The series is sponsored by the Marin Women's Center and the YWCA.

THE PETALUMA Parent Nursery School will hold an open house Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the school, Webster Street at Hayes Lane, to acquaint the community with its program.

Registration is now being accepted for next year's classes, and information may be obtained from Joanne Lane in Petaluma.

A Teen-Age Girl's Cry For Understanding Divorced Father

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Here is my version of something that has caused me much pain:

WHAT IS A DIVORCED FATHER?

A divorced father is the man who helped bring you into the world, but 11 years later, just forgot about you.

He is the one your relatives say you resemble the most, not only in appearance but in your hot temper and your inferiority complex.

He's someone who has broken marriage ties for a much younger woman who satisifed his ego.

He is someone you see only for two days every two years, and then he tells you how pretty you're getting, but he doesn't even really notice you. He doesn't realize that "pretty" isn't enough, when you haven't any feeling of self-worth.

He is a man who can't understand why you get so many crushes on older men, like your teacher, your doctor, your first boss.

A divorced father is someone you can't understand at all, no matter how much you think about him. He's the person you hate as much as you love. — JOYCE, Age 17.

DEAR JOYCE:

And the daughter of a divorced father can either drown in self-pity or shrug off what she can't change and get on with her life.

We realize broken homes can be miserable, Joyce, and we sympathize. But if you continue blaming your father for your problems, pretty soon, he'll become a handy excuse for failure.

Had he stayed in a loveless marriage, you might have been even more miserable. Read on:

RAP:

I was a straight-A student until lately when I've dropped down to a C average, and I'm still falling.

My guidance counselor just says to dig in and study, but that's not the problem. In my house, all my parents do is bicker and yell and scream at each other. I go to my room and quietly shake, but I can't close them out.

I've gotten so tense and nervous that I can't do anything, and my folks are too busy fighting to notice. My brothers are away at college and I have no one to talk to. I'd go to our rabbi, except you have to make an appointment a month in advance. I can't stand it much longer. Please what can I do? — ABOUT TO SCREAM

DEAR ATS:

Maybe a scream from you is what your parents need to pull them up short and make them realize how they're hurting you —and themselves.

When a quiet, almost unnoticed child suddenly explodes, she focuses attention on the problem.

So scream — they need it. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

My best friend was going with this guy until she moved away. Now he has asked me to go steady with him, and I'm dying to because I really am crazy about him. But my friend just wrote me a letter saying if anyone took him away from her she'd die. He says he's not in love with her anymore: I'm the one. We're all 16.

If I go with him, she'll hate me, and if I don't, I'll hate myself. — WHICH

WHICH:

You won't give the guy back to his ex by turning him down. Usually, at 16, a move means a break-up. Let's hope your girlfriend soon adjusts. — HELEN

WHICH:

And let's hope the guy levels with her and doesn't keep her hanging . . . And that she finds a new boyfriend soon. —SUE

Engagement Ring Style Evolution

Originally engagement rings were broad gold bands with diamonds sunk deep into the gold. Variations on this theme remained popular for centuries.

New Hems 'Lettuce Leaf' Stitched

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE, With the new, rather sheer tricots, I have noticed that the hems are done with a zig-zag stitch that curls them up. Is this a new treatment for hemming these fabrics or is it only acceptable with a certain type of garment? — MRS. B. J.

DEAR MRS. B.J.,

The designers call this new type hem the "lettuce-leaf" hem. It is purposely curled and this is done while machine stitching. Cut your skirt the exact finished length you desire. Use a close zig-zag machine stitch, not a satin stitch. Stretch the fabric as much as possible (the raw edge will curl up to the right side of your fabric) and stitch over this little roll. The more you stretch, the more the ripple.

This is a stitch that has been done on hems of lingerie for some time. Since the designers are using the tricots formerly used for lingerie and making dresses out of them, they are also using some of the same techniques of construction. For instance, watch for the shell stitch edgings; the turn-over seam allowances, machine stitched with a large zig-zag stitch instead of facings, and the overlock seams for any side seams, often appearing as a decorative touch by stitching them on the right side of the fabric instead of the wrong side.

All of these new innovations will be used for the appropriate fabrics. They are usually worn by only the very young women with beautiful figures. When this type of construction is used, it is also not necessary to use a zipper for the closing, since the fabric stretches enough to pull over the head.

DEAR EUNICE,

I expect to be going to Hawaii this spring and wish you would suggest what to wear on the plane as well as a wardrobe I can make that would look perfect when I get there. — MRS. W. G.

DEAR MRS. W. G.,

First, take a wardrobe with you that will please you and forget conformity. I've noticed that women around the world travel with their favorite type clothes and colors. You must try to carefully plan your wardrobe so that each major part of an ensemble can serve many occasions — don't be saddled down with too many clothes. If your trip is like most of them, you'll be island hopping and want to enjoy every minute outdoors, not inside pressing and packing.

A major item for the trip over as well as when you get there is an all purpose coat, either a printed cotton or chintz (prints show fewer spots) or a color that coordinates with the rest of your wardrobe. Be sure your coat is lightweight and colorful, as nothing is gloomier than a drab coat on a cloudy day, and it does rain a little every day in Hawaii.

Keep everything casual, using knits and cottons. Remember, it's very hot and often humid, and heavy polyester knits would be most uncomfortable. A blazer or shirt jacket is a "must." It can be worn with skirts, dresses and pants, day or evening when a light cover-up is needed.

For the beaches, I found a long wrap skirt in a lightweight knit tricot the greatest item I had with me. Everyone wanders from the beaches right to the shops on the main streets, and then into the restaurants and hotels. The skirt can change your swim suit instantly and be acceptable anywhere. At the same time, you might consider a white eyelet or cotton lace shirt. It can be worn over a swimsuit, or with shirts or pants, and double as a lightweight cover-up for long evening dresses.

For daytime or evening, remember one thing — keep your clothes colorful and casual, and you'll join the fun and look like you belong in this true paradise.

DEAR READERS,

Mrs. Vera M. Tells me that she loves her double woven unlined coat — the type I have told you about in the past. She wanted to pass on a little tip that she found helpful. She put a lightweight lining in the sleeves only. This enabled her to conceal the sleeve seams where they join the armhole, as well as allowing the coat to slip over suits and dresses with more ease. The lining matches the fabric, doesn't add bulk, and she still has the fun of the unlined coat without the detriments.

If you'd like to make bound buttonholes, but aren't sure how to start, let the free leaflet, "Bound Buttonholes," guide you. Send your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunce Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Bill Blass' summer collection, shown in New York, is filled with the same soft and long looks of last season, but he had added wet-looking shine, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Marin Teens Helping 'Chart' Legislation

Eighteen teen-agers from Marin County are hard at work politicing in Sacramento this weekend, as members of the annual Model Legislature sponsored by Young Men's Christian Association chapters throughout California.

Christopher Morrison, 16, of San Rafael, is a member of the teen-age governor's cabinet; the others are members of the youth Assembly and Senate. Morrison is the brother of last year's Y governor, Lisa Morris.

Adult members of the Y's board of managers went today to Sacramento to watch the youth government in action.

The teen-agers have been in Sacramento since Thursday evening, and will return to Marin tomorrow evening.

The Marin contingent is sponsoring a bill calling for the Legislature to hold a statewide referendum on a proposal to bar cities and counties from restricting communal families in single-family neighborhoods.

Robert Southmayd, senior at San Rafael High School, is acting as the bill's author, according to Cheryl Barnard of the YMCA staff.

James K. Looney, executive director of the Marin Y, is acting as adult adviser to the young Senate members; Carol Jensen and Jonnel Schmitz are assisting the Marin contingent.

During yesterday's session the young legislators from all over California intimated that Gov. Ronald Reagan should make a bid for the 1976 presidential race and then presented him with a road map of Washington, D.C.

"I'm not being coy," the governor told the teen-agers. "I am aware of the polls and the talk."

But he cautioned that "I am also aware the election is three years away."

Reagan said he will make a decision after 18 more months of sounding out public opinion.

The 700 teen-agers questioned the governor for about an hour, and he told them that he agreed with President Nixon's Wednesday State of the Union address in which he said one year of Watergate is enough.

He also said he was opposed to laws limiting campaign funds although he favored having all contributions "out in the open."

Indiana, although no resulting injuries were reported. A Chicago truck driver suffered facial cuts after beer bottles were dropped from an overpass onto the windshield of his rig, causing it to overturn and authorities said six other truckers reported objects thrown from overpasses within one hour.

Truck traffic in Missouri and parts of Kansas was slowed drastically as drivers blocked truck stop driveways with rigs.

All 21 General Motors Corp., plants in Ohio could be forced to close by next week and the state's food supply may be dried up within seven days.

In addition to GM, the Ohio plants of Container Corp. of America, General Electric, Armco Steel Corp., Chrysler Air Temp and National Cash Register will close Monday or work on a day-to-day basis.

The executive director of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, C. William Swank, said, "Our grocery stores have enough food for the next six or seven days and that's it."

Swank said no dairy products, produce or livestock were moving by truck in Ohio.

Blockades and scattered acts of violence, including shooting and rock throwing, also occurred in Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, West Virginia, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, California, Connecticut and Illinois.

Developer Faces Action By County

The Marin County Counsel's office urged yesterday that legal action be brought against West Marin developer David S. Adams and others for allegedly illegal subdivision practices.

Deputy County Counsel Thomas G. Hendricks said Adams, his sons, Robert and Douglas, and several other persons, subdivided a 116-acre parcel on the Inverness Ridge into six lots without getting county approval.

The land, known as the Concrete Co. property, is located northwest of Adams' Paradise Ranch Estates subdivision on Inverness Ridge.

Several of the parcels have been sold since the property was subdivided in October without going through county planning review.

Hendricks said he will ask county supervisors Tuesday to approve court action to force the subdivision to comply with county planning and subdivision regulations.

Report On Hahn Plan Due Monday

The Army Corps of Engineers' environmental impact on the proposed Hahn regional shopping center will be reviewed by the Corte Madera Town Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday in town hall.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said councilmen will decide if they will comment officially on the previously prepared first draft of the report.

The council will also consider holding "study sessions" with Hahn and the developers of the Madera del Presidio housing subdivision in east Corte Madera.

Society Picks New Officers

Ethel G. Keener has been installed as president of the Chrysanthemum Society of Marin for 1974.

Other new officers include Fritz Radloff, vice president; Marjorie Iverson, treasurer; Maureen Coy, recording secretary and Ravel Radloff, corresponding secretary.

The society meets the second Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Crocker National Bank in San Rafael.

Jewish Federation Establishes Grants

The Jewish Welfare Federation has established the Emanu-El Residence Fund to provide cash grants to young Jewish women in Marin and other Bay Area counties for schooling and other needs.

Applications for the grants, limited to women between 16 and 35 years old, are available from the federation at 220 Bush Street, San Francisco 94104, according to Mrs. Lloyd W. Dinkelspiel Jr., advisory committee chairman.

Larry Lewis, 106-Year-Old Runner, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Larry Lewis, a long-distance running centenarian who ran six miles through Golden Gate Park almost every day of his life, died yesterday at the age of 106.

Doctors at Hahnemann Hospital said Lewis died of cancer of the liver.

"He never gave up," said Robert Brown, a friend who was with Lewis when he died.

Lewis became ill recently but until then he was a veritable dynamo who could outrun and outwalk men half his age.

Lewis, a waiter at the St. Francis Hotel, celebrated his 102nd birthday by running 100 yards in 17.3 seconds, half a second faster than on his 101st birthday.

The extra speed, Lewis explained, was due to his sneakers. He said he wore street shoes for the 101st birthday dash.

Lewis, a one-time assistant to the great Houdini, ran 6.7 miles through the park every day almost always in a time of 37 minutes.

"I can't sit still," Lewis once told newsmen.

Lewis was reared on a Navajo Indian reservation in Arizona and left at 15 to join the P.T. Barnum Circus as an acrobat and aerialist. For 33 years he was Houdini's assistant.

He once said his feats "shouldn't be considered so remarkable."

Jazz Ensemble, Stage Band Set Concert

The San Rafael High School jazz ensemble and the school stage band will perform at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school auditorium, a spokesman said yesterday.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the music department.

months, I cannot see the executive deciding to hold off. We would not entertain any meeting with the prime minister unless he could promise us there was cash at the end of it, probably backdated."

Barring an unlikely cave-in by either side, government officials said a national coal strike now appears inevitable.

The mine union has served notice that if the balloting Thursday and Friday shows more than 55 per cent in favor of a walkout, it will escalate a 12-week slowdown in a wage dispute into a national coal strike starting Feb. 10. A final decision is to be taken on Tuesday.

The slowdown already has cut coal production by 30 per cent, forcing the government to put industry on a three-day work week, and plunged Britain into what Heath has called the worst industrial crisis since World War II.

Home Secretary Robert Carr, the man responsible for maintaining law and order if a strike erupts, said a national walkout would "cripple the rest of the country and put hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions out of employment."

Counting of strike ballots continued throughout the weekend with final results to be announced Monday. Union officials have said that preliminary reports indicated a 70-80 per cent overall vote for a strike.

As the counting continued, union President Joe Gormley ordered an inquiry into complaints that voting was not genuinely secret and that fake ballots circulated in Wales. The charges were first made by Conservative party Member of Parliament James Scott-Hopkins in the House of Commons Thursday. The mineworkers union said it received similar complaints yesterday.

Spiking Football Is Illegal, But. . .

THE TIPOFF:

Despite the knocks at the increasing boredom of pro football (viz., Super Bowl VIII), the competition committee of the NFL isn't going to recommend any drastic rules changes, except maybe to help receivers get off the line of scrimmage.

Q. Is there any special reason for a penalty against "spiking" the ball after a touchdown in college football? — D. Sylvester, Oakland, Calif.

The NCAA, according to my inside source, felt that college athletes were beginning to imitate the pros too much, including such excesses as throwing expensive footballs into the stands. Inside source also tells me game officials don't like the rules and sometimes overlook a modest display of emotion.

Q. I just can't hardly believe it. After the much publicized goof Robert Goulet made some time back singing the Star Spangled Banner, I thought I'd surely see some mention of Glenn Campbell's big goof before the Oakland-Pittsburgh playoff game. Surely I'm not the only one who heard the line, "Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there," sung twice in the son, I called Channel 4 in Denver and was informed that I'd been the only one who called. Please tell me I didn't hear things "RIGHT." — Don Boylls, Aurora, Colo.

You heard things wrong — I mean, that's right. The pride of Delight, Ark., did goof, just as Goulet did before the Ali-Liston fight in Lewiston, Me. But Chet Simmons of NBC-TV in New York tells me the network didn't receive a single complaint. Guess a few other people don't know the right word sequence.

Q. Several years ago there was a black fighter known as Hurricane Jackson who fought out of Florida, with a very unorthodox style, such as two-fisted uppercuts. What was his weight class and was he ranked? — George Johnson, Fresno, Calif.

Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson fought out of Far Rockaway, Long Island, as a heavyweight and at one time was the No. 1 ranked contender for the title. Poor Tommy was one of those exploited kids who probably never should have been sanctioned as a fighter. He could take a punch, and that's all. In recent years, he's turned up in such odd jobs as shoeshine boy and has been under a doctor's care. At last report, he lived with his mother in Far Rockaway. I'm not knocking shoeshine boys. When everybody was commiserating over the fate of welter champ Beau Jack as a bootblack in Miami Beach a few years ago, he was pocketing $500 a week at the Fontainebleau.

Q. With all this women's lib stuff, do you think there's a possibility women will start getting involved in playing pro sports sometime in the future? — Mark Keltoa, Fresno, Calif.

I'd like to put you in a closet, Mark, with Billie Jean King, who's been making over $100,000 a year swatting tennis balls. Or all those women golfers. Or better yet, get you out of the closet. If you mean team sports like baseball, football and basketball, that's another ball game. The answer is no.

Q. Even though Harmon Wages of the Atlanta Falcons has had a fairly good pro career, I understand he had a very average college career. Is this true? — Mark Lechner, Sacramento, Calif.

That's like the old line: although he couldn't hit or run, he also couldn't field. Harmon hasn't had much of a career as running back with the Falcons, partly because of injuries, partly because Dutch Van Brocklin doesn't dig golden-haired boys (Harmon was once supposed to be the new Paul Hornung). At Florida, he was the second string quarterback to Steve Spurrier, and that was a long time ago.

Q. Since so many college athletic directors and coaches are crying about the soaring costs of football, why have they not enacted an aid-based-on-need scholarship plan? Frank Broyles of Arkansas cries loudest about costs, yet wasn't it the same Frank Broyles who once said aid-based-on-need would never work because it couldn't be enforced and the coaches couldn't be trusted on an honor system? Keep up the good work as the lone journalist in American sports, now that Howard Cosell has gone show-biz. — Bob Campbell, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Aw, shucks. Oh yes, the question. I called Broyles and he says, quote: "It's not the coaches you can't trust. It's the interested parties (i.e., alumni). It would open up a can of worms. I don't recruit against the Ivy League (which has aid based on need), but people who have also have many allegations against it. I'm not smart enough to answer the question of costs, but unless something is done, many schools are going to have to give up football."

PARTING SHOT:

Pete Rozelle's charming new wife, Carry, shares his enthusiasm for tennis. But she'll also get the NFL commissioner to branch out in his athletic activity by inveigling him onto the ski slopes — which she learned to appreciate as a native Canadian.

DOWN THE MIDDLE — Tamalpais High School's Hollis Owens soared high on a layup try last night in San Rafael. Closing in for a possible rebound were (from left) San Rafael's Gary Patterson, Tam's Frank Jandura and Mike Dinehart and San Rafael's Mike Farris (21) and Reggie Bryant (41). Novato Five Tips Redwood

By DAVE DEL GRANDE

In what Novato High School coach Jim Caranica termed "our best win ever," the Hornets battled back from a 10-0 deficit and went on to post a 56-52 Marin County Athletic League basketball upset over Redwood last night in Novato.

"This was by greatest victory as a coach," declared Caranica in the locker room after the game. "They (Redwood) played a good game, but we were really steady at the end and deserved the win."

Novato's victory was its first over Redwood after 19 consecutive losses, dating back to 1964, when the Hornets won both games. At that time, the Novato coach was John Panagakis, now at College of Marin, and their star player was Fred Arnold, now coach at Terra Linda.

The victory was Novato's second in a row and left the Hornets at 4-4 in the league. Redwood's loss situated the Giants at 6-2, two games behind league-leading San Rafael, and broke their three-game winning streak.

With Redwood leading 46-45 five minutes into the fourth period, Novato outscored the Giants 11-4 in a two and one-half minute span to get the win. Three free throws by George Diruscio and two by Dave Brazell in the final minute assured Novato the victory. Diruscio finished with 15 points and Willie Barnes led the Hornets with 16.

As 900 ecstatic fans watched, the Giants hit their first five shots and nine of their 11 shots in the first quarter to pull into an 18-10 lead. Redwood senior guard Neil Hennessy scored nine of his game high 21 points to pace Redwood through the quarter.

But much to the Giants' displeasure, the second quarter was a complete reversal. Led by substitute guard Diruscio, who tallied eight points in the quarter, Novato scored the period's first 10 points and led the Giants, 20-18. After the lead seesawed a bit, Redwood grabbed a 26-24 halftime advantage.

In the second half, in which neither team led by more than six points, attention turned to defense. In this half, a total of 21 turnovers were committed, 13 by Novato, and the teams' combined shooting percentage was only 40 per cent.

With the array of missed shots in the second half, rebounding was the key. Novato, which held a 30-28 rebounding edge, continually allowed Redwood only one shot and this became a factor at the end. Scoring leader Barnes, also led the Hornets with 10 rebounds.

OVER DETERMINED TAM, 49-48

San Rafael Cagers Win

By LEW CODDINGTON

When you're No. 1, opponents come after you with blood in their eye and lust in their heart, as San Rafael High School's basketball team learned last night.

The Bulldogs were forced to summon every last reserve of energy to escape with a 49-48 victory over fired-up Marin County Athletic League rival Tamalpais.

A crowd of over 800 at San Rafael was screaming on just about every shot, once Tam made its determination apparent by roaring out to an 8-2 lead and forcing the Bulldogs' Byron Stewart to the bench with three personal fouls with only four and a half minutes gone in the game.

Stewart returned to score 21 points, however, including 12 in the fourth quarter, as the first-place Bulldogs won their eighth straight MCAL game without a loss. Tam dropped to 3-5.

Mike Dinehart scored 19 for Tam, including the Indians' first 10, while Hollis Owens added 10.

San Rafael guard Kevin Gallivan, at 5-foot-6 the smallest man on the floor, scored the eventual winning basket with 50 seconds left on a steal for a 49-46 lead.

Otherwise, the fourth quarter belonged to Stewart, the lanky 6-foot-7 senior. He rallied the Bulldogs from a 45-41 deficit to put them ahead for good at 47-46 when his shot went in, out and back in with 1:16 left.

He also resisted Tam's efforts to lure him into additional fouls. In one fourth-quarter sequence, he slapped the ball away twice when the Indians were trying to feed Dinehart in the low post, and subsequently scored on a feed from Gallivan to give San Rafael its first lead of the game at 41-39 with 5:59 left.

"I'm on cloud nine," declared San Rafael coach Bret Tovani. "It was one of our finest performances of the year. We really did a job in the first half to be down by only three."

Tovani heaped praise on 6-2 reserve center Reggie Bryant, who replaced Stewart with 3:32 left in the first quarter and Tam ahead 8-2 and threatening to break the game open.

Bryant made two of four shots from the floor, avoided errors, and when he departed eight minutes later, his team was still down only six, 21-15. "A super job," Tovani said.

San Rafael made 20 of 48 shots from the floor for 42 per cent and Tam had 14 of 37 for 38 per cent. The Bulldogs held a 32-16 rebounding advantage, according to their statisticians, and Tam got no offensive rebounds in the second half.

Terra Linda Quint Subdued By Drake

By TOM THOMPSON

Drake High School's basketball team scored 32 third-quarter points last night to beat Marin County Athletic League rival Terra Linda, 74-58, and end a three-game losing streak.

A surprisingly large crowd of 1,300 in San Anselmo saw the Pirates win their fifth game in eight league starts, while Terra Linda slipped to 1-7.

The Pirates surged to an early 12-3 lead, went cold, and watched the margin drop to five points at the end of the first and second quarters.

Before the outset of the fourth quarter, however, Drake had matched the Trojans' final score with a 58-37 lead. The Pirates, substituting heavily, wore down Terra Linda with their usual run and shoot style of play. During one stretch in the third period, the Trojans were outscored 22-3. The outcome of the game was never in doubt after that.

Drake coach Pete Hayward played his entire roster of 13, and 10 players scored, four in double figures. Mark Lavin led the Pirates with 15 points, while the team's leading scorer this year, Eddie Joe Chavez, had 13. Rick Herbert and Andre Carson finished with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Terra Linda's junior guard, Matt Flynn, took game honors with 19 points. No other Trojan scored over 10.

For the first time in two weeks, the Pirates held control of the boards, with a 53-37 rebounding advantage. Drake had been outrebounded in each of its three league losses this year.

"I was happy with the team's hustle," said Hayward.

Kings To Host Seals Tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, trying to make the National Hockey League playoffs for the first time in five years, host the california Seals tonight.

New Pro At Peacock Gap

By RON LENT

When Peacock Gap Country Club officials hired a new pro Jan. 25, they probably got more than was bargained for.

Veteran pro Gene Coghill, 43, yesterday began his duties on the San Rafael course by announcing plans for several ladies and juniors golf clinics "in the near future."

The 5-foot-9½, 180-pound South Bend, Ind. native is embarking on what he hopes to "a long and pleasant relationship."

At the outset, the grayish, balding golfer will work with erstwhile interim pro Harry Lawrence, 71. Lawrence, who has served as pro eight times since coming to Peacock Nov. 5, 1960, says: "I'll be an advisor and work with him until he gets acquainted with the organiza-

San Marin Beats Marin Catholic

"We played our kind of game — good team basketball. We slowed down the tempo and got balanced scoring," said happy San Marin High School basketball coach Andy Frauenhofer this morning about his team's 67-58 Marin County Athletic League victory over visiting Marin Catholic last night.

San Marin's balanced scoring was provided by Terry Kom (21 points), Skip Starnes and Bruce Smith (14 each) and Dave Harris (10). The Mustangs (2-6 in MCAL play) controlled the game's tempo with a crisp passing attack aimed at hitting the open man after bringing the ball down and setting up.

The Wildcats (3-5) had their vaunted fast break limited by the shot-blocking and rebounding efforts of San Marin center Skip Starnes. "The kid in the middle played outstanding," Frauenhofer added. Starnes blocked eight shots and hauled down 13 rebounds to lead the aggressive Mustang defense.

Marin Catholic made the first field goal and later grabbed a 4-2 advantage but trailed the rest of the way. San Marin dominated in the first half, building a commanding 31-20 lead.

Frauenhofer explained: "We played them about even in the second half after our big first half." Thus, San Marin avenged Marin Catholic's 84-60 victory Jan. 8 in Greenbrae. Nonetheless, the Wildcats' star forward Mike Mahoney was last night's leading scorer with 26 points.

Squaw Valley To Aussie Firm

Combined AP & UPI

SACRAMENTO — California has sold its share of Squaw Valley, site of the 1960 Winter Olympics, for $2.555 million, ending what one lawmaker called, a 14-year "monumental mess."

Mainline Properties of America, an Australian firm, submitted the only and winning bid at a public auction yesterday. It was the lowest price acceptable to the state for the nearly 1,300 acres of prime high Sierra ski country.

Richard C. T. Baker, head of the firm, said he planned $200 million worth of improvements in Squaw Valley to make it a year-round resort. The purchase made Baker's business the largest single landowner in the valley with about 2,000 acres. Baker also indicated he was favorable to holding another Winter Olympics in the area.

Football

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Bengals signed their No. 1 draft choice yesterday.

The Bengals signed defensive tackle Bill Kollar of Montana State to a three-year contract.

OAKLAND — Henry Lawrence, the Oakland Raiders' first round choice in the National Football League draft, has returned home to Florida without signing. Lawrence has also been promised an offer by the new World Football League.

Basketball

BUFFALO — The National Basketball Association Buffalo Braves yesterday traded 7-foot center Kevin Kunnert and guard Dave Wohl to Houston for forward Jack Marin and guard Matt Guokas.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — The San Antonio Spurs of the American Basketball Association yesterday filed suit against the league's Virginia Squires, seeking the surrender of All-Star Squire forward George Gervin.

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers last night defeated the Oakland Raiders, 77-59, at the University of San Francisco gymnasium in a March of Dimes benefit basketball game.

Track-Field

LOS ANGELES — James McAlister, holder of the world's best long jump effort last year of 27-feet, one-half inch, has been ruled ineligible for track and field for signing a contract with the new World Football League that was negotiated by an agent, a UCLA official said yesterday.

Golf

MIAMI — Pert, blonde Pam Higgins, shot a five under par 68 yesterday to take a two-shot first round lead in the $35,000 Burdines, Invitational Golf Tournament, the first event of the 1974 Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

HONOLULU — Jack Nicklaus yesterday shot a five-under-par 67 for a two-round total of 12-under 132 and a four-stroke lead in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Baseball

SAN DIEGO — The San Diego Padres yesterday signed sluggers Willie McCovey and Nate Colbert. McCovey, acquired in the off-season from San Francisco for ptticher Mike Caldwell, signed what is believed to be a two-year, $300,000 pact. Colbert inked a one-year agreement for around $70,000.

Tennis

FAIRFAX, Va. — Billie Jean King breezed through her quarterfinal match in the $50,000 Virginia Slims of Washington tennis tournament last night to eliminate 17-year-old Kathy Kuykendall of Miami, 6-1, 6-0.

Top-ranked Billie Jean will meet Rosemary Casals in the semifinals today.

Sausalito's Miss Casals, fourth-seeded, also had an easy time defeating a rattled Francoise Durr of France, 6-1, 6-3, yesterday.

Record In Shot Put For Woods

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — All his shot putting life, George Woods was a disciple of Parry O'Brien.

But after "going stale" in 1973, he made the big switch, with all due respect to O'Brien, and suddenly he is the hottest shot putter in the world.

Last night in the San Francisco Examiner games in the Cow Palace, the 6-foot-2, 300-pound strongman, using a modified torque style since the start of the year, took the world indoor shot put record to an unbelievable 70 feet, 4 ½ inches, nearly five inches better than the old mark of 69-10 ¾ he set only a week ago in the Portland Classic.

It marked the fifth consecutive event in which he has come up with a better throw.

Getting back to O'Brien, whom Woods thinks is the best ever in the shot put, big George said, "when I was a kid his technique was the one I patterned myself after.

"History will show," Woods continued, "O'Brien is the best ever in the event, mark-wise and technique-wise for his time."

Al Feuerbach, the world outdoor record holder at 71-7, and Ron Semkiw completed last night's field with Feuerbach finishing second at 69 feet even and the 19-year-old Semkiw third at 68-9, the best throw ever by a teenager.

Woods' performance overshadowed fine efforts by three foreigners-Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia over Olympic marathon gold medalist Frank Shorter in the two-mile, by Marcello Fiasconaro of Italy over Frank Bolding in the 600 and by Fannie Van Zijl of South Africa over Marty Liquori in the mile.

Fiasconaro and Van Zijl won for the eighth time each in America. Fiasconaro, a South African who runs for Italy, scored in the 600 in 1:10.4, Van Zijl won in the mile in 4.01.3 and Yifter won in the two-mile in 8:43.4.

Martha Watson, whom some rate as America's leading female track athlete, won two events, taking the 60-yard dash in 6.8 and the long jump with a leap of 20-11½.

Coghill New Pro At Peacock Gap

tional set up. Then, he'll be on his own."

While swinging an 8 iron, Coghill, a bachelor currently residing in San Francisco, reflected on his extensive golf and musical experiences.

The 1957-67 Professional Golfers Association tour competitor began his club pro career at Clewiston, Fla. in 1953 after completing two years as an assistant pro at Southern Pines, N.C.

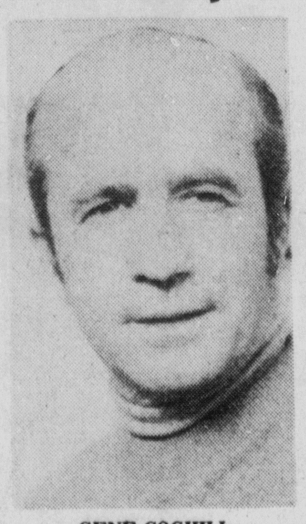

He also served as pro at Waumbek resort hotel in New Hampshire (1955-56), Yahnundasis Country Club in Utica, N.Y. (1958-60) and Penfield Country Club in New York (1961-63).

In between, he taught golf at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y. (1954-55), instructed in music at Syracuse University (1963-66) and played French horn in the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra (1966-73).

While away from club pro duties, Coghill refined his game in establishing three course records: a nine-under-par 63 at Wambeck (1956), a 10-under 62 at Penfield (1961) and a 6-under 65 at Oak Hill West in Rochester, N.Y. (1965). The natilly attired golfer also played in four national PGA championships (1959-62) and three U.S. Opens (1956, 1961 and 1962).

His top PGA tour tournament showing was a fifth place finish in the 1961 Panama Open won by Pete Cooper. Coghill, who wrote several instructional articles for Golf Digest and Golf Magazine, has been giving private fairway lessons since 1963 before moving to San Francisco last September.

In the Bay Area, he worked at the El Camino Golf Range in San Francisco, served as a substitute French horn performer in the S. F. Symphony Orchestra and played first horn in the Oakland Symphony.

GENE COGHILL
Takes over

However, his musical callings are being pre-empted by his Peacock Gap assignment. And he welcomes the change.

"I'm available immediately to start teaching. I'm working now on arranging tournaments. I realize this is primarily a teaching position, but I'm in public relations department; so I'll be in the shop, too."

Certainly the man replacing Rob McQuade who quit last July, lends much-needed enthusiasm and experience to a kay spot at Peacock Gap.

Tomales '5' Defeated By St. Vincent

St. Vincent High School went out to an early lead last night and held on to take a 64-55 North Central League II basketball game from host Tomales.

The Mustangs (2-2) led 18-12 at the end of the first quarter, and the closest Tomales (1-4) came thereafter was five points at the beginning of the third period.

"We just couldn't hit our hat in the first quarter," said Jim Clahan about his Braves, who converted just 17 per cent of their field goal attempts in the opening period. "I thought we were going to catch them, but we made too many turnovers."

Neither team shot well for the game, with the Mustangs finishing at 34 per cent from the floor and Tomales 33 per cent.

The Braves' Dave Camp was the leading scorer with 21.

Marin Tar Basketball Tonight At 8

College of Marin will reach the end of its arduous schedule of three basketball games in five days tonight when the Tars play Contra Costa College of San Pablo in Kentfield at 8 o'clock.

Marin, ranked ninth in the state, will carry a 5-2 Camino Norte Conference record and a 17-2 overall mark into the game. Contra Consta stands 4-3 in the league and 8-13 overall.

The Comets will be playing their fourth game in eight days. They eked out a 73-70 victory Thursday night at Solano, and have two of the league's better scorers — Mike Johnson, averaging 19.4 points a game according to the most recent statistics, and John Allen, averaging 16.5.

Marin has won two straight in the league, including a 72-56 thumping of Canada College of Redwood City Thursday night.

SONOMA RALLIES FOR WIN

SAN FRANCISCO — Dan Heien's field goal with four seconds left last night gave Sonoma State College a come-from behind 72-70 Far Western Conference basketball victory over San Francisco State.

The Cossack's were down by one point when Heien performed his last-minute heroics. Tom Fitchie added the final marker on a technical foul free throw. Bill Belander of Sonoma was the top scorer with 24 points. Tom Fitchie added 17 for the winners.

Sonoma, which raised its conference mark to 5-0 with the win, will visit Hayward State in a league battle tonight at 8 o'clock.

Vintage Quintet Spanks Petaluma

By PAUL DWORIN

Petaluma High School ran into a trio of hot shooting Vintage basketball players last night and dropped a 94-62 North Bay League decision to the visitors from Napa.

Hitting a combined 59 per cent from the floor, Burt Brace, Roger Hogan and Jerry Shaffer accounted for 81 of the Crushers' points.

Brace, who sat out most of the fourth quarter, topped them with 29 points, while Hogan and Shaffer both came on strong in the second half to tally 26 each.

The loss dropped the Trojans (2-6) six games behind league-leading Ukiah (8-0), mathematically eliminating them from winning the NBL title outright in the unlikely event of a total Ukiah collapse. Vintage (5-3) is in second place.

"They just blew us off the court," a stunned coach Mark Reischling said afterwards in the tomb-like quiet of the Petaluma locker room. "They just blew us off."

Fast breaking from the start, Vintage was in command the whole night and put the game away early when it took a 20-point lead with three minutes to play in the half.

Petaluma cut the gap to 45-34 at halftime — mainly because Crusher coach John Tindell cleared his bench — but any hopes of a Trojan comeback were quickly erased after intermission when Vintage ran off nine straight points to build the margin back up to 20.

Despite the hot hands of Brace, Hogan and Shaffer, it wasn't their shooting alone that beat the Trojans. It was the Crushers' quickness, which forced 25 Petaluma turnovers according to the Trojan statisticians (although it seemed like many more).

SONOMA BASKETBALL

Cold Shooting By Rancho Keys Loss

Rancho Cotate High School last night could manage just one basket in the third quarter and lost to visiting Healdsburg, 64-51,, in a foul-marred Sonoma County League basketball game in Rohnert Park.

The Cougars took 13 shots in the third period, but just one was good as they fell behind by 24 points. A good fourth-quarter effort closed the gap somewhat at the end.

"If we'd have had a decent third quarter, we'd have been in the ball game," Cougar coach Mike Francis remarked later. "We took good shots, but the ball wouldn't drop for us.

The game was marked by numerous fouls, resulting in 78 free throw shots and five starters fouling out. "It was a hotly contested game," Francis explained.

Healdsburg's Brian Hermon led all scorers with 26 points before he left the game with an injury in the fourth quarter. Chris Callinan pacedthe Cougars with 15 points and Mike Sanchez added 11, all in the fourth quarter.

In other SCL court action last night, Casa Grande (2-6) feil to visiting Cardinal Newman (Santa Rosa), 66-33.

Jerry Robinson scored 22 points to take game honors for Cardinal Newman, while the Gauchos were led by Jon Moyer's 11 tallies.

GOOD NEWS!
Ocean view homesites are now available.
Here is an unusual opportunity to acquire scarce ocean view property at Bodega Bay on the scenic Sonoma Coast just 63 miles from the Golden Gate Bridge.
A limited number of Unit 1 resale homesites at Bodega Harbour are now available for immediate sale. The sites have been exempted from Proposition 20 restrictions by the Coastal Commission. A few newly completed homes are also available.
Visit Saturday or Sunday and enjoy luncheon at the new Yacht Club. See the nearly completed Country Club and the Robert Trent Jones Golf Course under construction. (Bodega Harbour is an easy round trip on a tank of gas.)
Take Highway 101 north to Petaluma. Follow signs west to Bodega Harbour. Map shown at right not to scale, for directional use only.

Rainbow Won't Encompass Span

A San Francisco designer's plan to shine a rainbow across the Golden Gate was dropped yesterday on the grounds it would waste electricity in the face of the energy shortage.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's directors, voting in committee to table the proposal, said the plan by Charles Sullivan probably was dead anyway because the National Park Service denied him use of Fort Point to mount one set of the searchlights he hoped to use to project the artificial rainbow.

The committee also recommended hiking the annual pay of the district's Sacramento lobbyist from $26,200 to $27,500, a 5 per cent increase, and joining the Bay Area Council for $200 a year.

The district's public relations consultant, Gerald S. Noble, reported to the public information-governmental affairs committee that his firm will write 200 major employers urging staggered working hours to relieve commuter traffic congestion.

Sonoma To Get Part Of Coast Park Land

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Parks and Recreation has purchased 1,149 acres of coastal land for $2.9 million for additions to Sonoma, Pismo and South Carlsbad beaches, it was announced yesterday.

Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. said 269 acres at Bodega Head were purchased from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for $500,000 to add to Sonoma Coast State Beach. The money came from the Bagley Conservation Fund.

A total of 847 acres at the south end of Pismo State Beach in southern San Luis Obispo County was purchased with $762,615 in 1964 Park Bond Act funds, Mott said. The seller also was Pacific Gas and Electric.

Mott said a 33-acre parcel of beach land with 2,000 feet of ocean front had been acquired for addition to South Carlsbad State Beach north of San Diego.

The land, valued at $1.6 million, was purchased for $1.1 million in funds from the Bagley Conservation Fund, Mott said.

Traffic Deaths Decrease Slightly As Speed Is Cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol disclosed yesterday that during the first full month under the state's new 55-mile-per-hour speed limit highway traffic fatalities decreased only slightly.

CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinsky said there were 255 persons killed in traffic accidents in the state in January compared to 315 for the same month last year.

However, Pudinski pointed out that on the state highway system — where the 55 mph limit had its most impact as compared to city streets with lower limits — there were 145 deaths this January compared to 158 last year.

He said the 13 death difference could not be considered a significant drop nor trend. The January death toll was too small a sample to draw any long range conclusions about the effects of the 10 mph cut in the state's maximum limit, he added.

"It's just too early to pick out a pattern," he said. "We'll need at least 90 days."

While deaths were going down, Pudinski added, speeding citations were soaring.

During January of 1973, when the limit was 65 and 70 mph, the total number of speeding tickets issued was 40,300. For this January, the total was 54,000.

Pudinski said the increase could be attributed to a crackdown on drivers ignoring the energy crisis spawned 55 mph limit.

"It's very disheartening that we have to do this," Pudinski said of the increase in tickets. "It's not a traffic issue, it's an energy issue.

"We really do not like to issue traffic citations for a situation that is not traffic related. But we're the muscle behind the new law and we should get more compliance from the public.

SELF-PORTRAIT — "Mirror Image," a watercolor painting by Leah Schwartz, reveals a candid observation and disclosure of her life-style and environment. It is included in her show of portraits and landscapes now at the Genesis Gallery in Mill Valley, together with watercolorists Zaida Philp and Kay Works.

ART REVIEW

Watercolorists Reign Supreme

By ADA GARFINKEL

Zaida Philp's paintings are celebrations of life, events and nature. They are joyous experiences.

In a show by three watercolorists now at the Genesis Gallery in Mill Valley, Mrs. Philp's drippy, squiggly forms dance, bounce, coagulate and gyrate as in "Pond Water," "Thaw," and "Birthday."

"Cavern" with its spiny moss-green formations and scratchy texture evokes eons of geological time, while "Organic Lollipop" — a collage in a stylized composition, is transformed into a moonsphere landscape.

Another of the artists, Leah Schwartz imbues her landscapes with special meaning. In them there is both philosophical and pictorical clarity of vision.

"Going Up the Mountain," a four-part horizontal landscape suggests a Zen experience and a journey in time.

In each small segment, the distant horizon, delicate cloud formations and frontal mountain shapes echo each other's forms. An erruption of tall, velvety green spruces forms a necklace in one section, and inlets of water jutting out like fingers complete the sequence in cinematic fashion.

Viewing this painting, one has the feeling of being there — above the clouds, and above the world.

Mrs. Schwartz' self-portraits in "Mirror Image" and "Portrait with Flowers" are done with Renaissance clarity and skill. They reveal her thoughtful, direct gaze and absorbing interest in the world about her.

Kay Works, the third in the trio of featured artists, retains the mural-like quality of Thomas Hart Benton and the low-keyed colors of Walt Kuhn with whom she has studied.

Her paintings are equally divided between architecturally conceived renditions, pictorial illustrations and a more freely conceived vision such as the upward-sweeping view of pueblos and mesas in "Cave Dwellers' Country."

"Mine Tailings" in purple and gold washes with black accents is the most vibrant of Miss Works' paintings.

Adding more sparkle to this excellent show are drawings of mythological creatures by Mike Healey, "Dog in the Moon" — an intaglio print by Maggie Rosen, "Patchwork Print," a colorgraph-etching by Joyce Livingston, and "Plains of Arcady," an oil painting by Naomi Hardy.

This exhibit will continue through Feb. 23 and may be seen daily from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The gallery is located on the second floor at 2 Miller Avenue.

Only 3 Per Cent Of Applicants Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Coastal Conservation Commission has turned down only about 3 per cent of the 5,000 applications for construction it received during its first year in existence, the chairman said yesterday.

Mel B. Lane told the Commonwealty Club that the six regional commissions approved 4,736 applications for developments or construction and denied permits in only 145 cases.

Lane said that in a few other cases, the commission put in such strong conditions that developers "probably think it amounts to the same thing as denial."

However, this would still make only about 5 per cent.

About 90 per cent of the dollar value for permits had been approved in figures up to Jan. 1, Lane said.

He also said approximately 200 decisions by regional commissions had been appealed to the state commission.

"We have agreed with the regional commissions in about 80 per cent of the cases, and have repversed them about 20 per cent of the time."

Books On Alcohol At Libraries

Copies of books on alcohol abuse are being distributed to Marin County libraries through funds donated by Marin Rotary Clubs, according to Nancy Oliva of the Alcohol Information Committee of San Anselmo which is spearheading the purchase.

Rotary Clubs of San Rafael and San Anselmo each donated $100, she said, and an additional $300 for the project is expected from other clubs.

So far, said Miss Oliva, 19 of the 138 books purchased have arrived and copies will be sent to the libraries of the county schools office, Marin General Hospital and San Quentin in addition to all city and county library branches.

The Marin County Library is cooperating in the purchase and distribution of the books, according to Miss Oliva, and the selection was based on consultation with professionals who treat alcohol abuse.

"CRAZY"

That's what they told us - trying to sell a house ourselves in winter! But we will because it's a beauty.
On ¾ acre in complete privacy w/that famous Kent Woodlands prestige - private driveway - patios - decks - POOL - and other features too numerous to mention (as those real estate people say). Looks like Frank Lloyd Wright but more comfortable!
How about a floor-to-ceiling rock fireplace? Or a 60' long picture window? Or new, luxurious, rich carpeting throughout? Or a secluded private garden for the master bedroom? Not to mention a super GUEST HOUSE for that troublesome teenager or in-law! PLUS walk to S.F. bus stop.
See it - you'll love it! How about $115,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Narrowing Coronary Arteries Top Cause Of Angina Pectoris

A woman from Colorado Springs writes: "My heart trouble is caused by hardening of the arteries. I think it is called angina pectoris. Are these arteries inside the heart? Would you list the names of this kind of heart problem? Incidentally, I also have hardening of the arteries back of my left eye. Could these arteries cause heart trouble?"

Angina pectoris is paroxysmal chest pain brought on by exertion or excitement and relieved by rest and peace of mind. The pain is located over the breastbone, roughly in the area covered by the necktie. Distress of this kind has been described as a sense of pressure, aching, or a burning sensation. It may radiate into the neck and down one or both arms. When severe, it develops when resting in bed. Nitroglycerin tablets usually bring prompt relief.

THE BASIC cause of angina is narrowing of the coronary arteries which are in the wall of the heart muscle. It is well-known that the old ticker does not receive its nourishment from the blood as it flows throughout the heart. It receives nourishment from the two coronary arteries that carry blood from the heart to the rest of the body.

For reasons unknow, the coronary vessels are more susceptible to atherosclerosis than any other arteries. Angina ensues because the circulation is inadequate when the heart beats harder and faster as during excitement or exercise.

At rest, when the muscle gets sufficient nourishment, the chest pain does not develop. When one of the arteries or its branches becomes obstructed, a heart attack (coronary thrombosis) is in the offing. Disturbances in the circulation to the conduction or "electrical system" may lead to stoppage or irregularities of the heart beat.

CORONARY HEART disease is the overall term for these disorders. It is also known as ischemic (bloodless) heart disease. Angina pectoris refers to paroxysmal chest pain caused by these abnormalities. Acute myocardial infarction is the death of a part of the heart muscle caused by coronary artery thrombosis or occlusion. Coronary insufficiency (or failure) is a closely related condition somewhere between angina pectoris and coronary occlusion.

Arteriosclerosis is a generalized disease and involvement of the arteries of the back of the eye (retinal arteries) does not necessarily tell how severe the process is elsewhere.

Kremlin Viewing Visit By Nixon

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomats said today Kremlin officials are preparing for a visit by President Nixon to the Soviet Union in the late spring or early summer.

The visit is apparently taken for granted by Moscow, but the exact date remains uncertain, they said.

(In Washington, sources said President Nixon is hoping to visit Europe and possibly the Mideast sometime this spring.)

The Soviets saw the visit as a necessary and important occasion for a checking on the course of East-West detente, to determine progress toward improved relations between the superpowers and the outlook for the future, diplomats said.

An essential element was the crucial question of whether agreement can be reached on a new and permanent pact to curb strategic nuclear weapons, now under discussion in the second phase of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

A strong hint of the anticipated Nixon visit to Moscow also came from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko when he gave the leadership of Armenia an award recently.

He was reported as saying that arrangements had been made for another visit by President Nixon to the Soviet Union.

Nixon visited Moscow in 1972, the year of dramatic initiatives in foreign policy under the guidance of then presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

During the trip, Nixon and Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev signed a sheaf of agreements, including one to limit the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

They agreed to stay in touch with regular meetings.

Brezhnev flew to the United States last year, where the two sides worked out new agreements, particularly in the field of economic relations.

According to the diplomats, the Kremlin believed that detente was working despite problems and setbacks, such as the worldwide U.S. military alert during the Middle East war.

They said Soviet leaders were anxious to get more ironclad agreements for close cooperation in the future in the economic and technological spheres, which also spells more trade and more credits.

No Decision By Jury In Stab Case

The trial of a Berkeley woman, who formerly was a man, accused of stabbing her father ended yesterday with a hung jury, and there were indications Caroline Janice Maxwell may not face a second trial.

Jurors reported they were split 11-1 for acquittal of Miss Maxwell, 30, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

She is alleged to have knifed John Crain, 56, at his Strawberry home last October during an argument over her change of sex.

Although Judge Henry J. Broderick ordered a new trial date to be set Monday, there were indications the district attorney's office would attempt to arrange a plea bargain.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated 21 hours during three days before announcing the deadlock. The trial took three days.

Prosecutors said Miss Maxwell went to Crain's house Oct. 2 to pick up some belongings and got into an argument with her father over her plans to work for a transsexual organization in Mill Valley.

Finally, Crain testified, Miss Maxwell picked up a ceremonial Scottish dagger from a weapons collection and stabbed him in both hands and the abdomen.

But Miss Maxwell testified that she did not stab Crain and, in fact, that he pulled the dagger to cut a telephone cord.

Although much of the trial dealt with Miss Maxwell's sex change that culminated in an operation one year ago, jurors said they decided not to consider that a factor in their deliberations.

Kennedy's Son In Hospital For Diagnostic Tests

BOSTON (UPI) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy's 12-year old son was admitted to Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston last night, according to a joint statement released by the senator's office and the hospital.

Edward M. Kennedy Jr. had his right leg amputated 11 weeks ago after doctors discovered that he had contracted a rare form of bone cancer.

The joint statement said that young Kennedy's admission was for the "purpose of additional diagnostic tests and the initiation of therapy for his recent bone tumor."

Dr. Philip Caper, a member of Sen. Kennedy's health subcommittee staff said when the boy was first hospitalized that "we are working on the assumption that the cancer has not spread and that no further treatment is necessary."

Eye Disease Unit Formed In Marin

A Marin County chapter of the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation has been formed to educate the public about the hereditary eye disease and to raise funds for research.

Mrs. James Merchant of San Rafael — herself a victim of the disease — is president of the new unit, according to Joan Tellefson, publicity chairman. Ophthalmologists Allen Beallo and Duval Jaros will serve as medical advisers to the chapter.

The disease, which is believed to be carried genetically by one of each 80 U.S. residents, can lead to drastic vision loss. An estimated 100,000 persons in the country have the problem.

The new chapter will meet at 8 p.m. the third Tuesday of each month in the Blue Room of the Marin General Hospital.

Scout Sunday will be observed at St. Luke Presbyterian Church, 10 Bayview Drive, San Rafael, tomorrow.

Mexico's President On European Tour

MUNICH, West Germany (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria today arrived to begin a 16-day tour of several European countries.

Although the rest of his European tour is official, Echeverria's one-day visit to Munich was private and no protocol was in effect for his arrival.

Echeverria leaves Sunday for Austria and will later travel to Bonn, Rome, the Vatican and Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

In Munich, Echeverria planned a tour of an art gallery and dinner with West German industrialists in a countryside restaurant featuring special Bavarian dishes. On Monday, he was scheduled to visit the Messerschmitt Aerospace Co. plant.

Vacation Thoughts Turn To Cruise

WINTER'S COLD, rainy weather evokes thoughts of summer vacation trips.

Trying to find a place to get a tank full of gasoline this week shattered dreams of an auto trip next summer.

Mexican vacations may become more popular. If you can find gas enough to make it from here to the border, you probably will be all right. Mexico's government-owned petroleum industry still produces all the gasoline the country needs and then some. The price has just about doubled recently. Premium PEMEX is now up to 60 or 65 cents per gallon.

There are drawbacks. Summer is not the best time for vacationing in Mexico. It is hot, rainy and humid in tropical areas. Baja California, where a new paved highway extends nearly 1,000 miles from Tijuana to Cape San Lucas, is deserthot in summer. Although Mexico produces sufficient gas for all, there are not yet enough stations (and not enough deliveries to existing stations) to supply the increased traffic along the Baja highway.

YOU CAN STILL hop an airliner (assuming you get your reservation in soon enough and assuming your flight isn't among those discontinued to save fuel) to some exotic spot and spend the time in a crowded resort hotel.

Those who must fly frequently in business come to develop a distaste for smelly air terminals where the odor of jet exhaust hangs heavy, where you must stand in line to check in, stand in line to board and, finally aloft, must face a glorified TV dinner in a lap tray.

If you do that often enough during the year on business trips, it is NOT what you dream of for vacation.

NO WONDER the passenger steamship business is facing a bright outlook.

Watch the ads on the travel pages of the I-J's Marin Living section each Saturday.

You can board one of the big new luxury cruise liners right in San Francisco. There is no limit on baggage. You don't have to check in early and sit in uncomfortable waiting room chairs. Instead, you just walk aboard. You probably will find your baggage already delivered to your cabin.

Wherever your cruise ship stops, you probably will have the best accomodations in town, your own comfortable cabin aboard ship, and eat in the best restaurant in town — the ship's dining room.

SOME EXECUTIVE types who drive themselves hard at work all year doubt whether they can adjust to the idle leisure of shopboard life.

How can one kill so much time?

Look at the schedule for a typical day at sea:

6:30 a.m. Swimming pool is filled and ready for use.

9 a.m. - 6 p.m. Deck games available (shuffleboard, badminton, table tennis, etc.)

9:45 Morning exercises led by professional dancer.

10-11 Hostess hour, games and books available.

10 a.m. Daily puzzle quizz available; shuffleboard tournament starts.

10:15 Foreign language class starts.

10:30 Dancing class taught by professional dancers.

11 Conducted tour to ship's bridge to observe progress of navigation.

11:15 Enrichment lecture by an authority in his field.

11:30-12 Daily mileage pool; amateur navigators calculate distance ship travels.

12 noon. Service club members meet, photography class, music starts in cocktail lounge.

2-3 p.m. Library open; books and games available.

2:15 Card players meet.

2:30 Movie Matinee starts.

3:30 "Chatterbox" hour for ladies.

4 p.m. Daily puzzle quizz solutions; conducted tour to inspect kitchens.

4:15 Horse racing games

6:30 Cocktail hour music begins.

9:30-10 Library open.

9:30 Evening movie starts.

10 p.m. Variety and folk dance show starts.

In between times you go to the dining room for three meals. And the midnight buffet is from 11:30 to 12:30. Midmorning bouillon is at 10:30. Tea is at 4.

Some indolent types fear they will be hounded by a social director. Not so on today's sophisticated cruise liners. The day's program is printed and distributed. You can take it or leave it, in part or in whole.

Some loners prefer simply to walk the promenade deck a time or two each day for exercise. Four or five trips around equals a mile.

Some physical culture freaks spend time exerting in the gym, a feature of today's most luxurious cruise ships.

Other types spend the day plopped in a deck chair reading and sleeping.

In short, a contemporary cruise ship is designed and operated so each person can do his own thing. No fuel worries; no reservation concerns. It's hard to imagine a better vacation, regardless of cruise destination.

1,300 Americans Still Missing In S.E. Asia

Please help our men missing in action and their families by explaining in an editorial or news story why there are 1,300 American servicemen still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia, why the terms of the Paris peace agreement requiring that information be provided about the missing have not been honored by the North Vietnamese, and why these Americans seemingly have been forgotten. Some of the 1,300 missing men were photographed by Hanoi as prisoners and never heard from again.

The 1,300 families of the "MIAs" live in limbo still. Please help them.

When Anyone's Banned, Place Is Not Public

It's funny, but your editorial today (Jan. 26) and City Councilman M. Blinder's definition of "public" is different than Webster's. My dictionary states that "public" is "belonging to, or concerning, all the people."

Smokers may be in the minority, but minorities have rights too. An area would no longer be public if it restricted specific people.

Besides, if smoking is irritating to you, that's your problem. Smoke doesn't bother me, but people who crack their knuckles, sniff instead of blowing their noses, spit and use foul language bother me. That's my problem, right? Are you going to ban them from "public" places?

Or, prohibit loud music in public places. It has been proven that loud continuous noises are dangerous for our health.

Why not also prohibit sick people from going to work? They cough and sneeze their germs all over a lot of people. That's dangerous and infectious to a lot of us.

So start banning things and people from "public" places and end up with a nice "private" club. We are all dangerous to each other if we can't get along instead of finding fault.

Honors For Young Americans Appreciated

On behalf of the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, and its Exploring Division, I wish to take this public opportunity to thank you for participation in the 1973 Young American Awards program. It was a great success, and we are very grateful for your help.

Far too often, young adults are recognized in public only when they become troublesome, or worse. Your partnership with us in this venture permitted the public recognition of four outstanding young Americans within the Marin community. We know that these fine individuals are more typical of their fellows, than are those who make more unfortunate headlines.

Don't Take Car Pooling Lightly —It's Not Like Marriage

WASHINGTON — The problem with car pooling is when you have four people sharing a vehicle, tensions arise that can cause great emotional damage to all those concerned. To deal with the situation, many cities are setting up car-pool clinics where car poolers can get counseling and help.

I attended one in Fairfax, Va., the other evening. The car-pool counselor, a Mr. Sims, was seated in a comfortable chair smoking a pipe. Four men in business suits sat nervously in a semicircle around him. They refused to look at each other.

MR. SIMS SAID, "The important thing in this session, gentlemen, is to let it all hang out. What seems to be the problem?"

One of the men spoke up. "Arthur's the problem."

"Could you be more specific?" Sims asked.

"As soon as he gets in the car he starts singing 'Oh, What a Beautiful Morning.' Even when it's raining. I can't stand a cheerful person at that hour.?"

Arthur spoke up. "Well, I like to sing in the morning. It sets me up for the day. Harold gets in the car and just reads his newspaper and doesn't even say hello to anybody. What kind of a car pool can you have if someone doesn't even know you're there?"

"OH, YEAH," Harold replied. "The reason I put my nose in my newspaper is I can't stand the way Sidney drives. He zooms in and out of traffic, cursing every driver on the road. My 10-year-old son could do a better job of getting us to work."

Sidney went red. "At least I don't smoke those smelly cigars in the morning. And while we're saying what's on our minds, I've never seen you use the car ashtray once."

Harold responded. "I don't use your ashtrays because they're always full of cigarette butts. It's not fun to see a filthy ashtray at breakfast time."

Mr. Sims turned to the fourth man who hadn't said anything. "Alistair, you're very quiet. Is there anything you'd like to get off your chest?"

"YES, THERE IS," Alistair said. "Everyone in the car pool forgot my birthday."

Arthur moaned, "Oh, for God's sake!"

"Well, it may not be important to you, but my birthday means a lot to me. I didn't expect a cake or anything like that. But what would it have cost you all to say, 'Happy birthday, Alistair'?"

"It slipped our minds," Harold replied. "If it will do anything for you, happy birthday."

"It's too late," Alistair sulked. "I remembered your birthday, Harold."

"So we forgot," Sidney said. "We had other things to think about."

ALISTAIR WOULDN'T budge. "Car poolers are supposed to remember each others' birthdays."

Mr. Sims said, "I perceive tramendous tension in this pool. Now the question is what do we do about it?"

"I want out," Arthur said. "If I can't sing 'Oh, What a Beautiful Morning' I would just as soon take the bus."

"I'm for going our separate ways," Harold said.

"Now, wait a minute," Mr. Sims said. "Car pooling is a very serious institution. When you take a vow to share an automobile with another person, you promise to love, honor and cherish him in sickness and in health. All of you have to make more of an effort to understand each other and live with each other two hours a day.

"Car pooling isn't like marriage, something that you can treat lightly. Remember, what the energy crisis has joined together let no man cast asunder. And keep this in mind: If you break up your car pool and join another one, you'll probably wind up with the same kind of people you left behind."

White House Chooses Weaker Line Of Defense For Nixon

Leaving ethical issues aside for the purpose of this discussion, there are two different practical arguments which can be used to sustain Mr. Nixon's continuance in the presidency. The politically interesting thing is that the White House is apparently trying to stand on the weaker argument rather than on the stronger.

The argument used at White House initiative the other day by Vice President Gerald Ford in his speech to the American Farm Bureau Federation in Atlantic City is that Mr. Nixon and the cause of conservatism in the United States are inseparable, hence the departure of Mr. Nixon from office would mean the decisive suppression of conservative influences in Washington.

We can understand Mr. Ford using this argument to protect himself from any appearance of wanting Mr. Nixon's job for himself. But for Mr. Ford to accept this line of argument from the White House is to denigrate and misrepresent himself. If one judges Mr. Ford from his own public record (which is the only possible basis for such a judgment), he is a more consistent conservative than Mr. Nixon. He is also, prospectively, a more effective conservative because of his popularity and esteem in both chambers and among members of both parties in the Congress.

IN LOGIC, conservatism would be more adequately and effectively expressed from the White House by Mr. Ford than it can be by Mr. Nixon, whose effectiveness has certainly been much eroded by recent events and seems likely to be further eroded during coming weeks as the various judicial and parliamentary processes now under way reach their conclusions.

Indeed, conservatism as a political cause has been hobbled by its association through Mr. Nixon with Watergate. To cut that connection would release conservatism from a political liability. For that very reason a true conservative would want Mr. Nixon out of the White House, and Mr. Ford in. The argument of the inseparability of conservatism and Mr. Nixon is false.

The stronger argument for Mr. Nixon staying in the White House is that in spite of Watergate, he is still a competent manager of the general business of the American people. This can, of course, be challenged. The state of the U.S. economy, now staggering under an 8.8 per cent inflation rate, is nothing to cheer about. Yet the dollar is right now the strongest world currency. The American inflation, troubling as it is, is less bad than that of the other important countries of the western world. And Mr. Nixon's foreign policies, although subject to increasing criticism of late, still seem to enjoy general approval.

THE STRONGEST argument for his re-election in 1972 was precisely the argument of competence. Most people who voted for him that year did so not out of admiration for his logic, ethics, or conservatism (all being then already in question), but for his presumed superior (over George McGovern) competence and toughness. He certainly continues to this day to show remarkable toughness under strains which would long since have broken most men. And a respectable if not watertight case can be made for his continuing competence.

That the White House uses the weaker argument at all is puzzling. Do they really believe it? If so, one must wonder about their political judgment. The most unfavorable suggestion so far is that they fed this line to Mr. Ford for the purpose of discrediting him as an alternative to Mr. Nixon. If this is true, it does not speak well for Mr. Ford's astuteness.

MARQUIS CHILDS

U. S. Turns Back On 'Have-Nots' By Refusing World Bank Funds

WASHINGTON — Absorbed in our own troubles, we are slamming the door on the rest of the world, or on that part of the world least able to survive the oil crisis. By a vote of 248 to 155, the House of Representatives killed the administration bill to fund the International Development Association, the World Bank's soft loan subsidiary.

IDA has been the recourse for sub-Saharan countries suffering a terrible drought. Up to 55 per cent of supportive loans for India, Pakistan and Bangladesh came from the bank's soft loan window. Without this support, and with a boost in oil prices up to 100 per cent, the outlook is not just for bankruptcy but for starvation and the breakdown of the social structure.

IMMEDIATE CONCERN is over how the Senate can undo the action of the House. If it is not reversed, and the United States finally defaults on the contribution of $500 million, 33 per cent of the total, then the consortium of the industrialized nations put together in 18 months of effort by the World Bank collapses. It means IDA will be out of business on July 1.

Treasury officials who rushed up to Capitol Hill to try to get quick action on the reversal, urging that it precede the conference of oil consumers in Washington on Feb. 11, came up against a stone wall. They discovered that the mood on the Senate side matched that of the House.

Key members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that must first pass on World Bank funds have long been skeptical of the administration's approach to foreign aid.

Chairman J. William Fulbright has opposed the bilateral aid programs ranging from $2.5 billion to $3 billion a year if only because such a large proportion goes for military assistance.

While there was never any doubt of its quick passage, some senators feel that the $2.2 billion for Israel at the time of the Middle East war used up both good will and available surplus.

But as reflected in the Senate, the lopsided House votes signifies a sour attitude that can be described for lack of a better word as isolationist. In the House, 130 Republicans voted against the president and only 47 supported him. On the Democratic side, 109 voted for IDA, 118 against.

THE UNDERLYING BELIEF is that the United States, best able of all nations to ride out the oil crisis, can wall itself off from the poverty, disease and breakdown of the poor nations.

This is a perilous illusion, as recent history illustrates. In 1930, Herbert Hoover, a president who for quite different reasons than those of today suffered a breakdown of authority, signed a tariff bill putting up a wall against goods from the rest of the world. That was a principal reason for the worldwide depression.

A worldwide depression is today no idle threat, given the linkage between the rich and the poor through the medium of oil and the skyrocketing prices levied by the oil sheikhs.

India, for example, is dependent on chemical fertilizers for food production, much of it coming from Japan. Yet with Japan's bill for imported oil, the raw material of fertilizer, doubling last year and likely to double again in 1974, exports to developing countries are being drastically cut.

This means a pinch not only in food but in new industries in smaller Asian nations dependent on Japanese imports for plastics, textiles and electronics in South Korea, Taiwan and Singapore. We cannot quarantine away collapse in, say, India or Pakistan with the resulting famine, rioting and breakdown.

TO REVERSE the House vote will take long and painstaking effort. Certainly, it cannot come overnight. Whether this administration can bring it about is an open question, given the paralysis of will so evident.

Much of the effort will have to come from Secy. of State Henry A. Kissinger, who already has so much on his plate, and from Secy. of the Treasury George Shultz, reported about to resign.

We in this country are feeling the discomforts of the oil crisis and they may become hardships as it worsens. We have lived at a profligate level, six per cent of the world's population using more than 35 per cent of its resources.

But with internal reserves far beyond those of any other nation, this is little compared with the suffering of masses of people in large areas of the earth.

State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, introduced resolutions in the state legislature calling for turnover of surplus federal lands at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite to Marin County for use as county parks.

Speakers at a planning conference at Dominican College advocated abolishing Marin's city planning departments to provide unified planning for the whole county.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Every government is run by liars, and nothing they say should be believed. That is a prima facie assumption unless proven to the contrary. — I. F. Stone.

Artist Margaret Keane Found Happiness In God

HONOLULU (UPI) — Margaret Keane, the world famous painter of big-eyed waifs, is spending her days knocking on strangers' doors with a Bible in her hand.

The artist whose paintings of saucer-eyed children are internationally known is walking Honolulu streets, trying to get a foot in the door to talk about her new faith.

Although her success is the envy of many other artists and her marriage a good one, Miss Keane has finally found "abiding happiness' by becoming a Jehovah's Witness.

In her art-filled living room perched on a mountain overlooking the Pacific Ocean, Miss Keane explained that it was a knock on her door from a Jehovah's Witness that changed her life.

"I thought I was happy before," she said. "I had everything I ever wanted: success, a happy marriage and a family. But there was something missing."

"The children's faces in the paintings always had a sad, searching look," she said. "I think they're so popular because they reflect the need in so many of us to wonder why we're here.

"I've always thought about that," she said. "The children have a haunting look about them, as though they're searching for an answer too, but their look is mixed with hope."

Miss Keane said she explored many religions, including the eastern ones, before that prophetic knock on the door. "I admit I was skeptical at first. I even insisted that I would never become a Jehovah's Witness."

But she did start studying the Bible with the Bible student and found "it was fascinating. I couldn't put it down."

"I realized that to pin happiness on worldly success is too precarious," she said. "The lasting accomplishments are the spiritual ones and the only ones we can hold onto."

"I tried to find a flaw in the religion," she said, "but never found it." So Miss Keane and her daughter Jane, now 24, were baptized in the ocean in the summer of 1972, and nothing has been the same since.

"I used to spend all day painting," Miss Keane said. "It was my recreation, my career, my therapy, my life."

Now she is able to produce the same overwhelming volume of paintings just working a few hours at night and devoting her days to bible study, classes and knocking on doors, "something I never thought I'd be able to do."

Miss Keane quit smoking the day of her baptism after 22 years as a heavy smoker and claims she is accomplishing more artistically than ever before.

Her success has kept pace with her spiraling faith. The Margaret Keane Gallery in Waikiki hasn't had a month when the gross wasn't in five figures, and another gallery has opened in a shopping center.

The struggling artist who used to give away posters free in San Francisco sells oil paintings now, including portraits, for thousands of dollars. Buyers of her works include Generalissimo and Madam Chiang Kai-shek, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Jerry Lewis, Joan Crawford, Red Skelton and the late Adlai Stevenson.

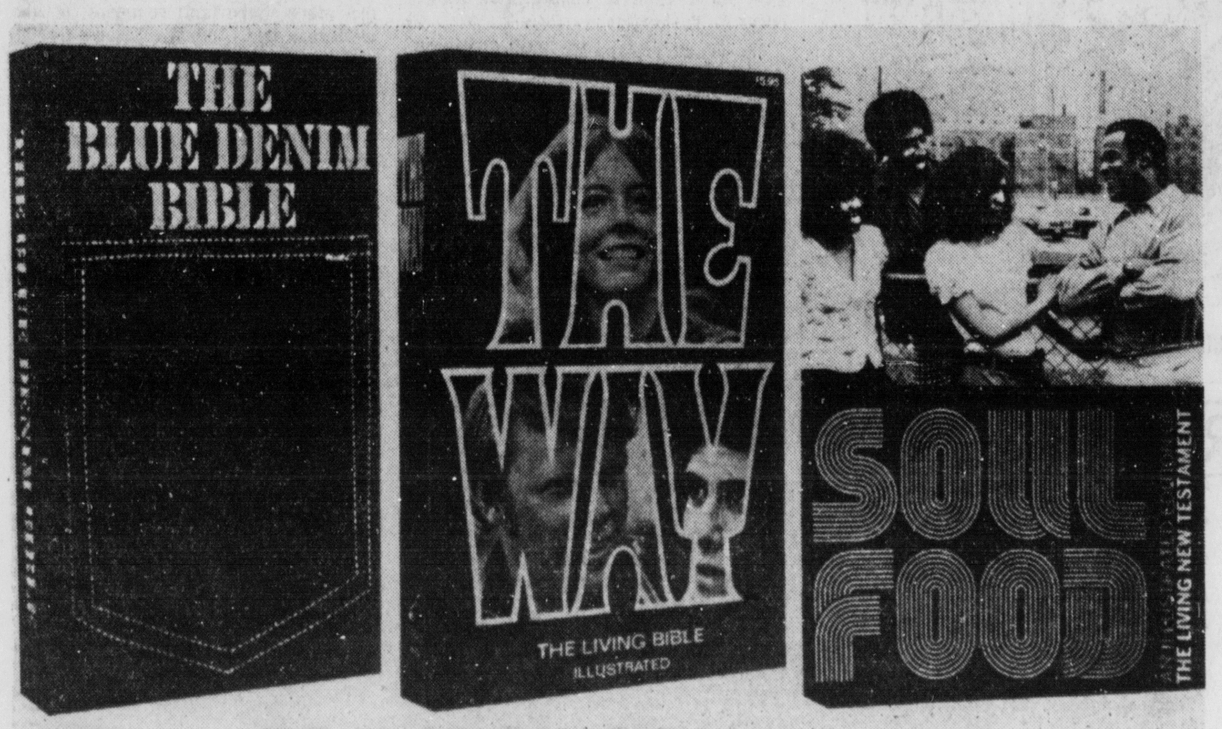

But Miss Keane said she prefers inventing faces to portraits. "When I start a painting I don't know what the face is going to look like," she said. "Maybe it will have the nose of one child I've seen, the mouth of another."

The artist, who is now in her 40s, was always fascinated by eyes. "Eyes are the windows of the soul," she said. "Some of my old school books have eyes which I drew in the margins."

Life was not always so pleasant for the attractive blonde from Nashville, Tenn. She started her career in New York where she went to art school and supported herself by painting designs on ties and cribs. Her first marriage ended in divorce in 1954 and the school also collapsed and was followed by a "paint out" in San Francisco's Union Square when Miss Keane challenged her former husband, Walter Keane, to paint a picture showing the famous eyes.

Walter had been claiming the teary children as his own output, according to Miss Keane, but she claimed the work always was hers. Walter did not show up at the "paint out," and Miss Keane, with her present husband Dan McGuire by her side, sketched eyes before a large crowd.

Miss Keane believes her faces are happier now, reflecting her own contentment with life. "They've lost the haunting look," she said, "and I have found abiding happiness."

NEW BIBLES — The new Bibles, with denim covers, feature photos and appeal to youth, don't look much like the old ones but they're still best-sellers on the non-fiction list.

A New Look Given To Good Book

People used to buy the Bible in record numbers just because they thought every home ought to have one. Today the best seller is still the Bible, but it's because more people than ever are reading and studying it — especially the young.

A lot of things have been done to improve circulation, from cloaking the Good Book in blue denim to selling it in a variety of flavors — strawberry, licorice, vanilla, etc. — all aimed at reaching the contemporary youth. But the biggest boost has been the by-product of making the Bible easier to understand and to read. In the long run this has attracted by far the largest number of young readers, according to Tyndale House publishing company.

Young people continue to have a lot to do with the rise in Bible sales — up 20 per cent last year. They're starting Bible study groups in ever-increasing numbers and providing the challenge to their elders to follow their lead.

Tyndale's "The Living Bible" is a paraphrased translation which has changed many of the conventional patterns of Bible distribution and reading. The publisher maintained, however, that it has taken its share of the Bible market from the mass of people who yearn to understand what the Book is saying to them.

Tyndale puts out a full paperback Bible called "The Way." Each book of this Bible is introduced with contemporary photographs of young people, coupled with relevant comments. For instance, Ecclesiastes is prefaced by a photograph of a young woman standing by a souped-up Volkswagen.

New Testament versions of "The Living Bible" include one for young people called "Reach Out," and one for blacks, called "Soul Food." Each utilizes the photographs and pertinent copy which makes it a book of practical use.

The next market "The Living Bible" will try for is women. Paul Mouw, advertising manager for Tyndale, pointed out that "women control most of the money and they're interested in passing on the faith to their children."

'Possession' Claims Laid To Movie, 'The Exorcist'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — "Get out of him, O accursed devil, and yield place to Christ who has won his soul."

So goes the key phrase of the ancient church rite of exorcism, preceded by an extensive sequence of other prayers — a ritual that is getting considerable notice these days.

"The attention is a bit frenetic, a kind of hysterial reaction," says the Rev. Edward B. Brueggeman, a Roman Catholic theologian of Xavier University in Cincinnati and a specialist on the subject.

"Much of it is hokum — about 95 per cent of it."

However, as a result of the current movie, "The Exorcist," and the general fascination with the occult, many churches and their institutions have experienced a wave of claimed cases of demon possession.

"All of a sudden there's plethera of it all over the land," says Father Brueggeman, who teaches a special course on cults in the modern world.

Both in theology and through the church's experience, he added in a telephone interview, the phenomenon of Satanic possession is extremely rare, although there are Scriptural premises for its possibility.

"We know there are powerful spirits of evil in the world through the freedom permitted by God," he said. "Our time had its stark demonstrations of that in Hitler and Stalin. And it's well that we should realize this."

However, regarding the current spate of upset people complaining they or others are suffering "possession," he said the danger is that their problem usually is psychological, such as unleased guilt feelings or mental illusions, needing treatment.

Typical of cases in which his advice has been enlisted, he said, was that of a young woman who was "simply hungry for attention. It was a case of a disturbed mind more than anything else."

Nevertheless, a rash of such complaints and inquiries have descended on church officials and pastors, usually as a result of the movie.

A St. Hugo's parish in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., the Rev. James Chichon says about 20 people, mostly college students, have showed up there "really rattled," reporting prolonges loss of sleep or other effects.

Many other parishes report a spate of alleged "possession" cases by people given nightmares or other anixeties by the movie. Of a youth who claimed some of the movie's odd audio-visual sensations, the Rev. Vince Connor of St. Jude's parish in suburban Denver, says:

"We said the prayers of exorcism over him more for his own consolation than as part of the ritual."

Rev. Ray Bringham, founder and president of the Inter-Church Renewal Ministry, will make four appearances in Marin County tomorrow and Monday.

At 3 p.m. tomorrow Rev. Bringham will be speaking at the Tada residence, 400 Marion Avenue, Mill Valley, and at 6 p.m. will speak at the Assembly of God — Central, 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

On Monday he will be conducting a luncheon get-together for everyone interested in starting an Inter-Church Renewal Ministry in Marin County. The meeting will be at noon at Lyons restaurant, 189 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday he will address a group at the Mill Valley Scout Hall, 177 East Blithedale Avenue.

A pastor for 20 years, Rev. Bringham has sponsored an airlift of young people and leaders to Copenhagen, Denmark, for a witness in the streets, universities and churches. He also arranged for pentecostal dialogues at the Vatican and led a delegation to an Inter-Faith Congress at Pontifical University in Salamonica, Spain.

Schools Report

The Rev. Thomas Riley, assistant superintendent for planning and evaluation of the archdiocese of San Francisco, will report on the status of schools in the archdiocese at a meeting of the parent-teacher group at our Lady of Loretto School in Novato at 8 p.m. Feb. 5.

Professor Will Talk About Old Testament

Professor Luis Alonso-Schokel, S.J., noted professor of Old Testament at the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome, Italy, will lead the Lecture-Dialogue Day program at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry, Thursday, Feb. 7, at 9:50 a.m.

The public program will be held in Room 210 of W. T. Conner Hall on the campus.

Professor Schokel is currently serving as visiting professor of scripture at the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley. He is also engaged in the Spanish Bible project in Madrid, Spain, translating the books of the Old Testament (with his commentary) into contemporary Spanish.

He is striving to use authentic Spanish literary forms to capture the spirit of the corresponding Hebrew literary forms.

In the Lecture-Dialogue Day program, he will be speaking on the subject, "Stylistics," developing some practical instance of literary criticism of the Old Testament.

New Superior Named To Fairfax Province

Sister Claire Coutu has been elected Superior of the Vice-Province of the Daughters of the Holy Spirit and will leave Putnam, Conn., Monday to take over her new duties in Fairfax.

Sister Claire succeeds Sister Therese Morneau, DHS, the first Vice-Provincial Superior of California, who has completed her term of office.

She holds an M.A. and a Ph. D. in Spanish from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., and has taught on the elementary level in Moosup and Plainfield, on the secondary level at Putnam Catholic Academy, and on the college level at Annhurst College in South Woodstock.

While at Annhurst, she also headed the Spanish department and was later appointed chairman of the modern language department. She aided students as dean of women, moderator of student government, and "dorm mother."

She left Annhurst College in 1968 when she was appointed superior-principal of Cathedral Girls' High School in Bridgeport.

Following two summers of inner city work in New Haven, Sister Claire was granted permission to work full time in the inner city apostolate. Transferred to Hartford in 1971, she worked out of St. Peter's Parish to assist the Spanish-speaking people of Hartford. There she became involved in ministry with minorities and migrants.

Because of her background in Spanish, her concern is chiefly the plight of the Spanish-speaking and to educate them to means they can use to bring about needed reforms, working to secure fair trials for them, providing Spanish religious services for prisoners, and picketing stores disregarding the lettuce boycott.

On July 2 Sister Claire ventured into a new area: teaching in an English as a second language program at the Cheshire School of Corrections.

Sister Claire is a native of West Warwick, R.I., the daughter of the late Albert C. and Rebecca (Brodeur) Coutu. She has been a member of the Daughters of the Holy Spirit for 30 years.

children CAN'T help WONDERING.
And they wonder a lot about God. They seem to have a natural awareness that He's here, and that He's important. But they want to know more.
In the Christian Science Sunday School, God's nearness and goodness become practical realities to children. They study and discuss weekly Bible Lessons, and how to apply their truths each day. They learn to look to God for His unfailing help.
No need for your child to go on wondering. Let him start discovering, at our Sunday School. We'll be delighted to welcome him and his friends.

The Band That Plays Its Jazz Dixieland

By DON KEOWN

Question: What do a contractor, a dentist, two attorneys, an industrial designer and two periodontists have in common?

The answer, if their names happen to be Dave Lewis, Bill Finke, Bob Murphy, Warren Perry, Pete Deetkin, Phil Crumley and John Hartman, respectively, is a strong affection for Dixieland jazz — and membership in the Natural Gas Dixieland Band.

Four of the seven professional men were members of the Dixieland band when it was formed in late 1970.

Pianist Finke, tuba player Lewis and Bud Weden, physician and banjo player, took the lead in the formation of the new group. They were joined by Earl Burgess, retired sales manager with the Ditto Co., on the trombone, Murphy on the clarinet, and Crumley on the trumpet.

SINCE THEN, Weden and Burgess have left the band. And the group has grown from six to seven with the addition of Deetkin, Hartman and most recently Perry, the drummer.

Deetkin succeeded Weden on the banjo, while Hartman replaced Burgess on the trombone.

Phil Crumley, one of the two periodontists (dentists specializing in the treatment of diseases of the gums), is the current leader of the band.

"There are only four periodontists in the county, and two of us play with Natural Gas," he says.

AT THE OUTSET, he reports, the Natural Gas Dixieland Band was very largely a Sleepy Hollow based organization. All but one of the six original members resided in that pretty community.

Now three of the seven members are Sleepy Hollow residents. All the others live elsewhere in Marin County except for attorney-clarinetist Bob Murphy, who moved recently from Marin to the Peninsula so that his wife could attend medical school, but who returns faithfully to his former county for all performances and rehearsals by Natural Gas. And who regards his move from Marin as strictly temporary.

The beginnings of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band was an informal matter, Crumley recalls, "of a bunch of acquaintances getting together, talking up the idea and just deciding to do it."

DIXIELAND WAS the natural choice for the music "because that was what we all enjoyed."

The selection of the name, Crumley recalls, involved several evenings of discussion, "once we found out we were at least good enough to listen to each other." A number of suggestions were made — "things like the Sleepy Hollow Tailgaters." And Natural Gas Dixieland Band evolved as a sort of compromise.

But the musical version of Natural Gas had its own energy and talent crises before the professional men turned musicians were ready to put their show "on the road."

"MOST OF US had played in high school or college, and then hadn't played again for years," Crumley says. "And up until six months before we started, our tuba man, contractor Dave Lewis, had never blown a tuba. His background was on the guitar, and a little bit of trumpet."

"As you can imagine," Crumley continues, "our first practice or two was pretty dreadful."

At the outset, the Natural Gas Dixieland Band practiced regularly once a week, despite the difficulty of scheduling for six very busy professional men, builting up lips gone soft through long disuse of their musical instruments, limbering up fingers that were more accustomed to filling teeth or turning the pages of law briefs than tinkling piano keys or manipulating clarinet valves, and building up a repertoire of tunes.

NEVERTHELESS, not too long after its organization, the Natural Gas Dixieland Band made it debut in early 1971 at Sabella's Restaurant at the annual fundraising dinner of the county's chapter of the American Cancer Society on a bill headed by Edgar Bergen.

That initial contribution to a drive to purchase a cobalt machine was the first of many appearances for the band at fundraising affairs.

Natural Gas has played for the cerebral palsy cause at the newly redone Paramount Theater in Oakland and for a benefit for the St. Vincent's School for Boys at that school, among other charitable causes.

IN ADDITION there have been appearances at the Music Box in San Rafael, the Lagunitas Lodge in Lagunitas, at the "Dixieland has such a free and happy feeling," says Dr. Phil Crumley in explaining why the Natural Gas Band has specialized in that very American style of music. "It's so relaxing. And you can stay away from the electronic speakers. . ."

For Max Shapiro, Life Is Just One Big Sports Camp — And He Loves It

One look at tall, easy-moving Max Shapiro and you almost automatically say, "Wow, you ought to be a basketball player!"

That's exactly what Max thought during his growing up days in St. Louis, and the hoops, nets and maple courts have had a strong influence on his entire life.

"Almost everything good that has happened to me," says Max, "has some connection with my love for basketball — including my marriage, living in Marin County and my involvement with my sports camps."

BORN IN ST. LOUIS, Max was 12 years old when the professional Hawks moved into town. Naturally, the team's move was big news, accompanied by spreads in the local newspapers and television interviews with coach and players.

It was during one of those shows, with coach Red Holzman on the air, that the announcer invited viewers to call in. Max picked up the phone and told the coach he'd like to apply for the position of water boy for the team.

"Come on down and be interviewed," was the reply.

The interview was simplicity itself. "Can you make all the games?" asked the coach. "Yes," replied Max.

"Good, then you're hired. Oh, and one thing more, you understand you'll just be working for prestige. Is that okay?"

"Yes," replied Max again, as certain that he wanted to work for the Hawks as he was uncertain what that word "prestige" meant. Even when he found out, he never regretted his decision.

FOR SIX YEARS Max remained with the Hawks, advancing from water boy to runner to statistician. When he graduated from Washington University in 1965, with an education major and political science minor, he would have liked to play for the Hawks, but honesty forced him to accept the fact that he wasn't top basketball material. For a year, before joining the Coast Guard, Max taught physical education in a local elementary school — just long enough to learn that teaching was not the career he wanted, either.

When he came out of the service, Jack McMahon, coach of the San Diego Rockets, remembered the enthusiastic young man who had been water boy when he played for the Hawks, so he offered Max a job as chief scout, touring the country and keeping an eye out for sharp new talent.

WHILE WORKING AS a scout and as director of promotion for the Rockets, Max came in contact with hundreds of promising young athletes. In talking with them he was often reminded of his own days as an aspirant to basketball glory. Hero worship was common, and one of the most often expressed wishes, "Gee, I sure would like to study his style and get some tips from that top player."

Combining that feeling with his memories of his own stays at live-in basketball camps during his grammar school summers, Max came to the conclusion that there was a real need for sports camps where boys could gain practice, experience and pointers on play from some of the best players in each sports field.

In 1969 he put these feelings into concrete form with the establishment of his first Sportsworld camp — the California Basketball Camp in San Diego.

DESIGNED FOR BOYS with an active interest in the sport, the camp was so successful that the following year facilities had to be expanded to accommodate twice as many boys. At the same time its name was changed to include that of its in-residence player, Bill Sharman. In the years between 1969 and 1973, enrollment in sports camps in California rose from approximately 250 campers to nearly 6,000. Of that 6,000, Max estimates more than a third attended Sportsworld camps in 1973.

"Our camps are run on the concept that it is the young person who has the final say as to whether he, or she, will attend camp," Max Shapiro of Sportsworld says. "Generally I talk to the callers, and if they are parents, I try to talk to the child, too, to find out if he has a genuine interest in the sport."

Encouraged by the success of his first camp, Max opened the Coach John Wooden Basketball Camp in 1972, in Thousand Oaks, and started a second Bill Sharman Camp, also in Thousand Oaks. Last summer, the Rick Barry California Basketball Camp was begun in San Jose, and next summer Rick will work at the San Jose camp and at a second to be held at Sonoma State College at Rohnert Park.

A number of young Marin basketball players attended the Rick Barry Camp during the summer, and several of Marin's young golfers were enrolled at the new Billy Casper Golf Camp in San Diego.

"OUR CAMPS ARE run on the concept that it is the young person who has the final say as to whether or not he — or she — will attend the camp. Generally I talk to the callers, and if they are the parents, I try to talk to the child, too, to find out if he has a genuine interest in the sport."

The camps are working camps, with learning sessions and practice games all morning and all afternoon, so no one has time to get homesick. The campers are so involved with their favorite sport, the excitement of playing with recognized experts and the joy of increasing their own skill at the game and raising their own level of self-esteem that, often as not, it comes as quite a shock to realize the camping period is over and it's time to go home.

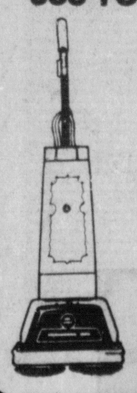

In 1970, a group of San Diego parents approached Max and asked him if he felt he could run a slim-down camp for girls along the same lines as the sports camps, but with the incentive not of mastering a

IN HIS SAN RAFAEL HOME, Leroy F. Wilkie readies his skis in eager anticipation of a session on the Sierra snow slopes. He's also an avid hiker and golfer. And he continues to work part-time in the insurance agent business in which he served as president of the Minto and Wilkie Insurance Agency Inc. 1928 to 1972, and for which he still serves as chairman of the board.

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

Seventy-Four-Year-Old Leroy F. Wilkie Is The Picture Of Vigor And Enthusiasm

"Hiking is one of the best forms of exercise," asserts active 74-year-old Leroy F. Wilkie, "and skiing is a nice way to meet young people." But he also continues his interest and involvement in the insurance underwriting business.

By RON LENT

Vigorous: "Possessing vigor: full of physical or mental strength or active force."

Webster's Third New International Dictionary definition aptly describes the demanding life style of San Rafael's Leroy F. Wilkie, insurance executive and outdoorsman.

The slight, 74-year-old Marinite is currently chairman of the board of Minto and Wilkie Insurance Agency Inc. at 1221 Fourth Street in San Rafael. He is also an active skier and hiker.

"I'M STILL AT it," he smiles. "I handle the old timers and their policies when I'm not skiing." The trim five-foot-six-inch, 132-pound businessman begins skiing "right after Thanksgiving," and he continues until the slopes are dry.

When not challenging the packed powder, Wilkie can be found on day-long hikes with his wife Esther, whom he married March 23, 1924, while working in insurance in his native San Francisco.

Wilkie, who was asleep in bed when the infamous 1906 earthquake struck San Francisco, recalls the historical horror well. "We were living near what is now the Sheraton Palace Hotel when the roof caved in on our house and killed my aunt (Anne Webster) who was in another bed in the room."

AS IS OFTEN the case in the human phenomenon called life, a low point is followed by a high. Wilkie was employed by National Union Fire Insurance in S.F. when "Charles Davis asked me to join him in Marin. I came over in February of '25.

"That same year (Tom) Kent and (Tom) Minto bought Davis and Freitas Agency (in September). We were located then right where Crocker Bank is now. In fact, we've been on the same block since 1924."

In 1928, Kent left for San Diego and sold his interests to Wilkie. Wilkie, who served as company president 1928-72, found that operating a business can be extremely difficult — particularly during the 1930s depression.

"I HAD A girl (Ruth Hargens) working with me and together we ran the business. She's still with the organization today, but back then, things were rough. Yet we never operated in the red. I started out with just Ruth, and I would come in at 9 in the morning and sweep out the office. In those days, it was tough to collect on policy premiums.

"With the coming of the war (World War II), business improved. The economy picked up, and people were buying insurance right and left. They bought plenty of war damage policies. They were worried that the U.S. would be bombed."

Wilkie, who co-founded the Insurance Agents Association of Marin County in 1930 with Farrington Jones, pointed out that "We worked like hell to sell policies at that time. We had modest annual premium increases even then. But it was a struggle. Today, we have 13 people working in the office . . . I've been real fortunate."

And so has his general insurance agency.

WHILE EXPANDING his operations, Wilkie broadened his social horizons, joing the Rotary Club in San Rafael in 1927. He served as secretary, 1928-44, and president, 1949-50. Wilkie joined the California Alpine Club in 1919 and became acquainted with the splendor of the Sierra.

From 1919 to 1969, he hiked the length of the Muir Trail — piecemeal. "That was a beautiful experience," he says. He ascended to the top of the 13,000-foot Mt. Teton in Wyoming in 1937 and climbed Mt. Whitney in 1960. Since 1969, he has limited his hiking endeavors to day-long ventures with his wife "around Olema to the ocean and back."

"Hiking," she asserts," is one of the best forms of exercise."

"And skiing is a nice way to meet young people," said the Far West Ski Association member. "You don't see too many of us old folks on the slopes."

WHEN SKI SEASON ends, Wilkie heads to the Meadow Club fairways where he works on his golf game and his 21 handicap. He quips: "It keeps me busy in the spring."

Wilkie has been a Meadow member since 1935.

Though he takes great pride in his physical conditioning endeavors, Wilkie prefers discussing his family. "My son Leroy Kenneth (age 45) has a boy 15 (Mark). My daughter Lorine has a 6-year-old son (William).

After being "kicked upstairs to chairman of the board (1972)," as he likes to say facetiously, Wilkie has more time for his various domestic and outdoor interests. Thus, he is not truly retired; Leroy F. Wilkie is working harder than ever, but in non-laboriuos areas.

There Is No Time To Be Homesick At The Busy Camps Of Sportsworld

sports skill, but of losing weight and keeping it off.

AFTER INVESTIGATING the methods used at some of the most successful weight loss camps on the East Coast, Max opened Camp Murrieta on the University of San Diego campus in 1972. In the two camping seasons that the camp has been in existence, the 300 campers have lost the astonishing aggregate weight of four and a half tons!

In 1973, Camp Murrieta East was started at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis., and in 1974 the third Camp Murrieta will be accepting the plump in Texas.

Designed as a full summer experience, Camp Murrieta has a seven-week camping period, filled with days of swimming, tennis, exploring and shopping. Dr. Richard Gross, assistant professor of medicine at the University of California, San Diego, supervises all the activities of the camps to assure every safeguard to the girls' health. A camp dietician is available for consultation and instruction, and handles the meal planning. A staff of young, enthusiastic counselors, many of them hoping to lose a few pounds, too, encourages and cheers on the weight-losers.

AVERAGE LOSS PER camper is 31 pounds in a summer. On her return home, the girl receives monthly mailings of menus and a return card on which she reports her success at keeping the weight off, or the problem of some of it creeping back on.

While San Diego would seem a natural base of the Sportsworld activities of Max Shapiro, he fell in love with Marin County and began the move about a year ago. Max's other love —his wife Barbara — made the final decision when she discovered that Marin County had the cleanest air of any of the nine Bay Area counties.

Born and raised in San Diego, Barbara had enjoyed living in an area that was considered not only a beautiful community, but one with everlasting, sea-washed, clean air. Unfortunately, pollution crept in, and she began a search for a more healthful spot in which she, her husband and their young son Marty could enjoy breathing the air. She had visited Marin and enjoyed the country atmosphere, and the benefit of living just across the bridge from San Francisco also appealed to her.

SO, WHEN THE surveys showed the air quality of Marin to be among the country's finest, her decision was easy.

While Max traveled from camp to camp, setting the summer programs into motion, Barbara scoured Marin looking for the perfect house, and quite by accident she found it. While visiting a friend, she chanced upon Strawberry Drive and noticed some houses going up. She saw one she really liked and contacted the architect, who said he was sorry, but it was already sold. In pulling back onto the road, she spotted another house under construction, so thought it was worth her while to look it over.

The house, she found, was spacious and open, a work of love by builder Milo Wiseman. Among its unusual features were a hallway completely paneled in weathered planks from an old barn. The front door jamb was graciously curved around a huge smiling sun of leaded glass and the living room bent around the kitchen, with a glass wall looking over trees and a bit of San Francisco Bay. It was, in a word, ideal.

NOW, IN THE settling-in stages, Barbara and Marty carry on their day-to-day discoveries of the joys of their new home, while Max works undisturbed in his den, his papers spread out over a miniature basketball court. The desk surface is an exact replica of a court, handsomely constructed of inlaid and polished wood designed by Mill Valley designer-artist John Holmes.

When weather permits the family is out jogging around the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, where they have formed a "passing" acquaintance with a cult of faithful joggers who also are out enjoying Marin's fresh, clean air. Biking and aerobic exercise help keep them fit and limber, but when it comes to spectator sports, Max and Marty go to the games alone.

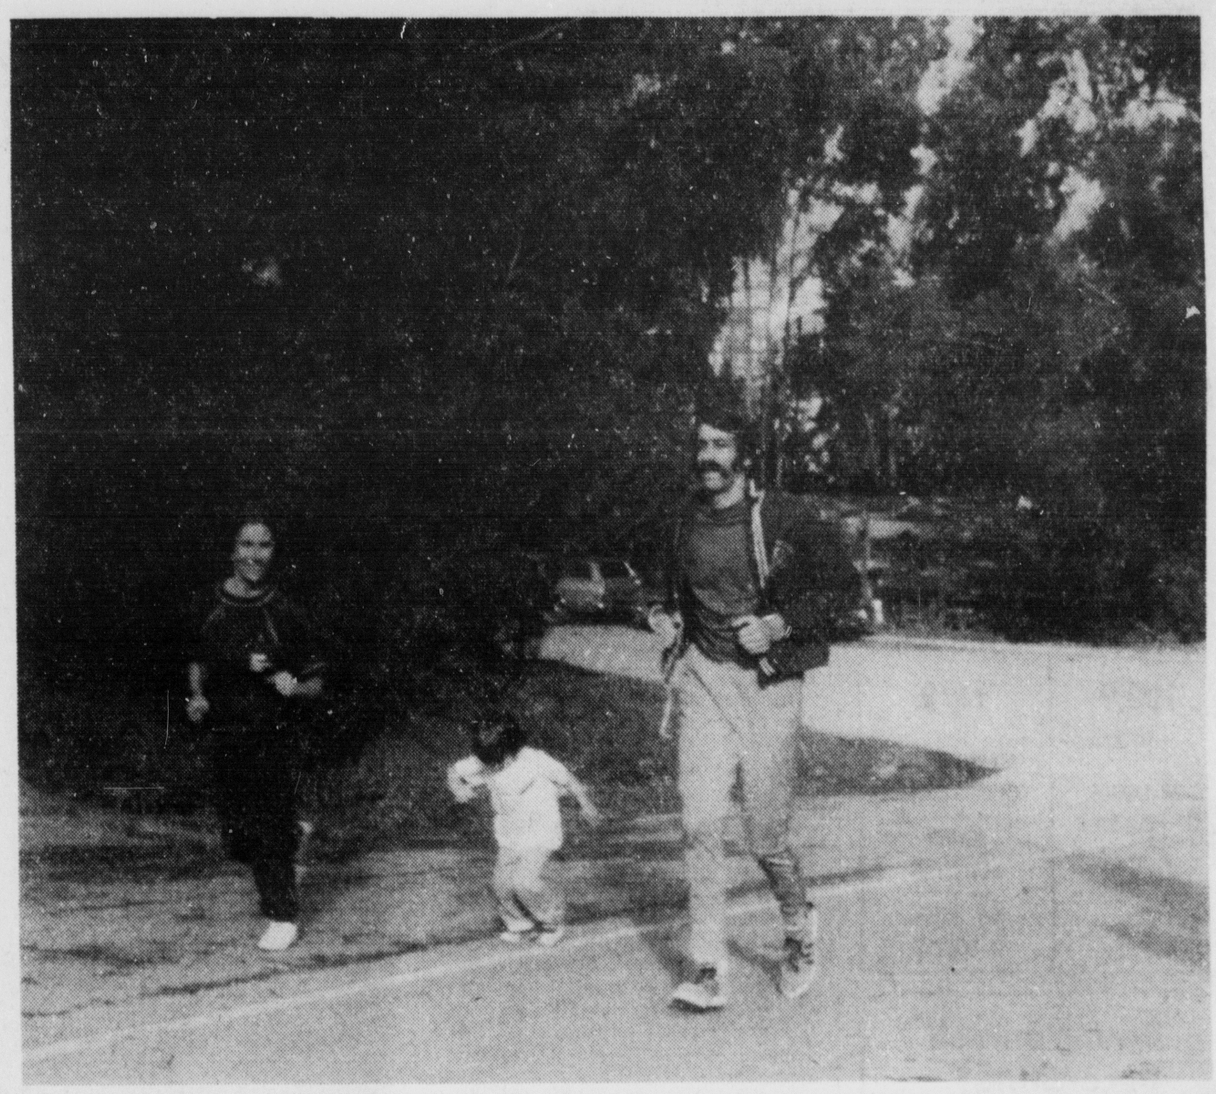

Watching people play games is not one of Barbara's favorite activities — in fact, once in her early married days when she felt she "had to show an interest," she went to a championship game where an enterprising newspaper reporter caught her reading a book during some of the most exciting moments of play. Fortunately for Max and his position with the team, the reporter found the event more amusing than newsworthy.

MAX AND BARBARA met in true storybook style — with their heads, quite literally, in the clouds.

When Max first started with the San Diego Rockets, he ran into an old friend and asked him if he knew any attractive girls. Being an unusual sort of friend, the fellow whipped out his little black book and gave Max a couple of names. Max wrote the names into his own book, but then got swept up in organizing his new job and never found an opportunity to call.

A quick trip north found Max on a plane which stopped in Los Angeles to pick up some additional passengers. A very pretty girl got on, and, guided perhaps by Max's ESP, sat down beside him. They struck up a conversation as plane travelers will, and as they talked, he began to have the feeling he had met this girl before. They started exchanging names. "Do you know so-and-so? No? Well, how about such-and-such? No? Hmmm."

ON AN IMPULSE, Max pulled out the little book and checked the names. "Could you by any chance be Barbara Kahn?"

IT'S JOGGING TIME for the exercise-minded Max Shapiros, and in the early morning wife Barbara, son Marty and Max enjoy their daily trot along the roads near their Strawberry home and the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary. When Marty gets tired, he simply sits down beside the road, confident that his parents will soon return. The Shapiros, recent arrivals in Marin, have made a number of friends among the other joggers they meet along the way. They are also enthusiastic bike riders.

She could, indeed. However, she stayed Barbara Kahn for only four months more; at the end of which time she became Mrs. Max Shapiro.

Now a full-fledged Marinite, Max has also become an involved Marinite.

Recalling the things which helped him grow up with a respect for his fellow man and a sense of fair play, Max had often found himself thinking of the programs of the Jewish Community Center in Saint Louis where he had joined in group activities for youngsters both as a student, and later as an instructor. He felt there was a need for similar programs in Marin, so offered his services to the Marin County Jewish Center in Santa Venetia. His ideas were eagerly accepted and in November the first program was begun at Miller Creek School, for boys in grades five through eight.

All boys from any part of Marin are invited and welcomed in the varying programs of sports.

FOR MAX SHAPIRO it is already the summer of '74.

He started planning the new season the day the last camp closed in August. In the next few months he will select and hire his staffs and check out facilities and supplies.

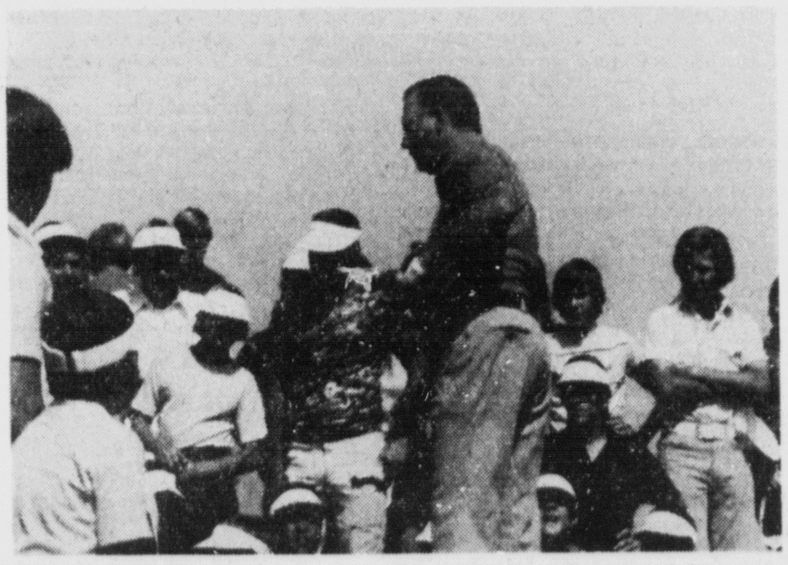

By June, Max Shapiro will be packed and on his way to camp —the first of eight he will attend in California — with additional stops at his basketball camps outside the state in Indiana, Georgia, Michigan, Maryland, New York, Connecticut and his old home state of Missouri.

When Max leaves for camp — even though he is president of Sportsworld and not just another kid striving for the first-string team — the first thing into the bag will be his well-worn basketball shoes, eager for a workout on the same courts with some of the champions.

"Almost everything good that has happened to me," says Max Shapiro, "has some connection with my love for basketball — including my marriage, living in Marin County and my involvement with my sports camps."

AS FOUNDER AND guiding light of the large and growing Sportsworld camp system, one of the things that Max Shapiro enjoys most is the opportunity to realize his boyhood desire to meet and get to know sports celebrities. Here he is photographed with Bill Sharman, left, former Boston Celtic basketball great turned coach whose name graces Sportsworld camps at San Diego and Thousand Oaks.

GOLFING STAR Billy Casper offers some tips on club control to some of the young athletes enrolled at Sportsworld's Billy Casper Golf Camp in San Diego. A number of Marin youths have registered for the camp program.

BOYS ENROLLED in Sportsworld's Bill Sharman Basketball Camp go through some limbering up exercises, before learning the techniques and strategies of the hoop sport from coach Bill Sharman and other greats of the game. Two of the camps now carry Sharman's name.

Christmas party of the St. Francis Yacht Club, at the annual installation dinner of the Marin County Bar Association (two years in a row) and at similar events.

The performances at the fundraising events are gratis, but there is a small charge for the other appearances, with the proceeds going toward the band's expenses.

The most unusual "gig" of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band, to date, was a weekend at the National Hotel at Jackson in the Mother Lode country.

WIVES ACCOMPANIES the musicians and friends from the Bay Area also made the trip "so that it turned out to be quite an outing. We had the afternoons free for kayaking, swimming and so forth."

The band no longer practices weekly.

"With so many of us having professional and civic meetings during week nights, it is pretty hard for us to get together," says Phil Crumley. "How often we practice now depends on how many new numbers we want to play at our next appearance."

Of tuba player Lewis, Dr. Crumley says: "He still doesn't read music in the bass clef. But he can get a new number down in minutes. He's amazing.!"

Burgess' battered old tuba, "purchased at a pawn shop for a lark," was for a time the Natural Gas trademark, and Crumley reports with some regret that "he has replaced it with a newer instrument."

THE BAND, HE adds, now has a repertoire that enables it to play for three hours or more without repeating numbers.

In the tradition of Dixieland music, most of the tunes are played without music, "although we do have some for which we use music."

There are the Dixieland standards such as the "Muskrat Ramble." And "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?"

A favorite is "A Closer Walk With Thee" from the black funeral marches of old New Orleans.

And "San Francisco Bay Blues."

ONCE IN AWHILE, Crumley says, a request will come from the audience for a polka or some other kind of music. "And usually we will oblige," he says, "although we try to make the point that it is a little out of our line, and that we are fundamentally a Dixieland band."

Vocals are handled by Crumley and by Dave Lewis.

"And occasionally," teases Crumley, "John Hartman, our only bachelor, will bring along a female guest vocalist."

Generally, the band wears no particular costume — "just whatever feels comfortable to us." But, Crumley adds, "we have been talking about some kind of jackets."

THE NATURAL GAS Dixieland Band is not attempting to pattern itself after any one band, says Crumley, whose personal hero is the late Louis Armstrong. "But what we do try to do is to stick rather closely to the original Dixieland style and not get off too far on the more modern things."

Their busy schedules prevent them from hearing as much Dixieland by other musicians as they would like, Crumley says, but adds: "We do get into San Francisco from time to time to hear Turk Murphy and his band."

What is there about this music that the bandsmen and so many others find so appealing?

"DIXIELAND HAS such a free and happy feeling," answers Dr. Crumley. "It's so relaxing.

"And you can stay away from the electronic speakers that are so much a part of rock. You don't encumber yourselves with equipment."

No more than a quarter of the Natural Gas appearances have been for dancing, Crumley says, "and generally we prefer the concert."

He explains that dancers generally prefer a mixture of tempos and volumes in their music, alternating the faster, louder numbers with the quieter, slower tunes.

"AND THERE just aren't all that many 'slow-quiets' in Dixieland."

While Dixieland traditionally appeals to an older age group, Crumley says: "We have been surprised at the number of people under 30 who turn out and enjoy our music."

And more and more in this age group are demonstrating a serious, sophisticated knowledge of Dixieland, as reflected in their requests and comments.

STILL, IT IS the 40-to-60 age group that is generally in charge of the affairs for which Natural Gas plays, and that is most likely to recognize the tunes.

There is a smattering of professional experience to be found in the Natural Gas roster, with much of that going back to the college years when the men played with bands while attending school.

John Hartman is one such with professional experience. He is the son of parents who were both public school music teachers, only recently retired. And a sister played with the popular Horace Heidt band.

WHILE ATTENDING dental school, Phil Crumley played his trumpet with a professional band. And some of the others have similar backgrounds.

Looking back over the first three years-plus of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band's existence, Crumley speaks for the group when he says: "It's been a lot of fun."

Furthermore, he is certain, a lot more fun lies ahead.

No matter how many times you have played "The Muskrat Ramble," there's a new joy each time you wing your way through it, or another lively Dixieland tune, again. And that joy is what one contractor, one dentist, two lawyers, a designer and two periodontists share in common.

"Our first practice or two was pretty dreadful," admits Phil Crumley of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band. But it wasn't long before the band was making public appearances, and winning itself a loyal following among jazz fans.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

AFRAID OF COLOR? Light and bright colors are very much part of the scene in today's home interiors. But if you're a color conservative, you may still feel you should stick to darker or "safer" colors.

Actually there's no reason to hesitate over "letting yourself go" a little with carpet color. Bolder colors are everywhere, and color can give a boost to the most faded rooms.

Experts recommend lighter colors for some rooms, such as bedrooms, where there is a daily fluffing of sheets and blankets, with lint and dust and fluff that will show up much more on darker carpets. And contrary to what many think, heavy soiling will show up less on lighter, brighter surfaces than on darker carpet areas.

You should still choose colors that you can live with comfortably. Like your furnishings, carpet is an expression of your taste and personality. But the chances are that, once you start looking open-mindedly at some of the new colors in carpets, you'll discover a livelier side of yourself you'll delight in showing.

There's a dazzling world of carpet color in our showrooms, in beautiful broadlooms created by the most famous mills. There are exciting textures to choose from as well. Visit the carpet people.

TODAY'S ROSTER of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band rip through a spirited rendition of "Muskrat Ramble" during a rehearsal at leader Phil Crumley's Sleepy Hollow home. The band has grown from six to seven members, with the traditional three-man frontline, and a four-man rhythm section.

BILL FINKE is the pianist for the Natural Gas Dixieland Band, one of the original members of the unusual musical group, and a dentist, residing in Marin, but with his practice in San Francisco.

DAVE LEWIS had played guitar and trumpet, but he took up the tuba for the first time with the formation of the Natural Gas band. He's a contractor by profession.

WARREN PERRY is an attorney by day, and a drummer with the Natural Gas Dixieland Band some nights. He is the most recent addition to the membership of the popular Dixieland group.

TWO OF THE FRONT-LINERS for the Natural Gas Dixieland Band get in some practice licks during rehearsal. John Hartman, a periodontist, is the trombonist, bringing to the band a family background in which both his parents have taught music. Bob Murphy, clarinetist, is an attorney who recently moved to the Peninsula, but who returns faithfully to Marin for all Natural Gas band performances and rehearsals.

TUNING UP before plunging into a Dixieland number are Natural Gas trumpet player Phil Crumley and clarinet player Bob Murphy. Bill Finke, pianist, can be seen in the background, ready to go. It's a rehearsal at the Crumley home in Sleepy Hollow.

CURRENT LEADER of the Natural Gas Dixieland Band is Dr. Phil Crumley, the trumpet man and a periodontist by profession. He is one of two of the dental specialists in gum diseases playing with the jazz group. His prior experience was with a professional band back in his dental school days.

An American In Monte Carlo Bids For Year-Around Trade

An American started it and now another American, Preston Robert Tisch, figures he is taking the process to its logical conclusion.

There was a time when the French Riviera was a resort for the few and the monied, a balmy stopover during the harsh winters elsewhere on the social round that took in Paris, London and New York.

FRANK JAY GOULD, an American, began the process of converting the Cote d'Azur into a season rest and recreation area for everybody some 50 years ago.

Now Tisch, president and chief operating officer of Loews Corporation, is intent on making Monte Carlo and Monaco into an all-year-around resort. He is betting millions that he can do it and he says he has convinced Prince Rainier that it can be done.

"Must have been 10 hotels around the world competing for the chance that Prince Rainier has given us," Tisch said. "We're building one of the outstanding hotels on the French Riviera and in the world itself to back our belief this is a great place to be any time of the year."

TISCH SAID THAT after visiting some of his hotels the prince gave him the go ahead for a 640-room hotel so constructed that it is, in effect, suspended between the land and the sea on the face of the hill on which stands the famous Monte Carlo gambling casino.

In this way, he said, it preserved the Mediterranean views from the casino and the opera house which adjoins it and does not detract from the promenade along which Monegasques like to stroll weekends.

Tisch said the hotel would have its own gambling casino but this would be operated in association with the Societe des Bains de Mer (the Sea Bathing Society) which runs gambling in the principality.

TISCH SAID THE hotel would be almost completely staffed by Monegasque and French nationals.

"I've come to the strong conclusion we ought to work with nationals where possible," he said. "We've tried it in London and in Hamburg and it's worked and we've got hotels building in Spain, Greece, Canada and another one in Germany and we'll try it in those as well."

Luxury Cruise May Sound Expensive, But Money Buys A Lot Of Comfort

Starting at $75 a day and averaging about $97 a day, a luxury cruise would seem prohibitively expensive to many; but it may give comfort-seekers the most for their money.

Truls Birkelid, hotel manager aboard the Royal Viking Sky, looks at it this way:

The cost of a luxury hotel room in Acapulco will run $100 to $120 per day, per couple, without meals. It is doubtful that the most luxurious hotel or restaurant in Acapulco can offer a gourmet menu the equal of the dining room aboard the Royal Viking Sky.

In Short, what one gets aboard the Sky, is better than what's available ashore, and taken altogether, costs less.

Further, Birkelid notes, the best resorts ashore are often crowded; the open sea is never crowded.

ON A TYPICAL day at sea aboard a Royal Viking Lines cruiser, the dining schedule reads like this:

6:30 — 8 a.m. Early riser's coffee (including fruit juice and fresh-baked Danish rolls);

8-10 a.m. Regular breakfast in main dining room (Everything available from Norwegian kippers to steak and eggs.);

10:30 a.m. Bouillon;

12:30-2 p.m. Sandwich buffet on deck at poolside;

12:30-2 p.m. Main dining room open for mid-day meal; (Everything available including choice of appetizers, soups, eggs, fish, entrees, daily specials, cold buffet, salads, deserts, fruit, cheese and choice of beverages.);

4-5 p.m. Tea and cakes;

7:30 - 9:30 p.m. Dinner in main dining room; (Endless gourmet choices, including a variety of specials every day.);

11:30 - 12:30 a.m. Midnight buffet.

If you do not get up for breakfast, your stewardess will serve you in your cabin at any time from 7:30 to 10:30 a.m. If you suffer unappeasable hunger between meals, your cabin stewardess will find something to tide you over. Automatically, your stewardess keeps the fruit basket in your cabin continually replenished with fresh oranges, grapes apples and pears.

GIVE THE HEAD waiter 24 hours advance notice, and he will arrange a special dinner for those at your table, at no extra charge. On the Royal Viking Sky's Jan. 5-20 cruise from San Francisco to Mexico, the head waiter arranged one night for a superb reindeer steak dinner for a table which included several Marin passengers. Reindeer meat did NOT appear on the regular menu at all during that 15-day cruise.

IN THE GALLEY of the all-new Royal Viking Sky, preparations proceed for a colorful and appetizing smorgasbord luncheon table. It's part of a schedule of sumptuous eating that begins with early morning coffee and pastry and continues through a midnight buffet. The pretty Scandinavian girls are as much an attraction on board the Royal Viking Line ships as the fine food.

Can European cooks prepare foods to American tastes?

Royal Viking Line makes sure by employing an experienced American chef in a supervisory capacity. Consequently, when ham and eggs, or a hamburger sandwich, or a filet mignon comes from the Scandinavian galley aboard,it suits the American taste exactly.

When Royal Viking Line set up an American subsidiary to handle its marketing, world wide, it chose Warren Titus, a former Marin resident, to head the subsidiary as president. His influence seems evident in the way the Scandinavian cooks prepare foods for American tastes.

IF YOU GO TO breakfast in the main dining room, chances are your room will be made up fresh by the time you return, including fresh towels. If you go swimming during the day and use the shower, the first time you leave your cabin and return, you will find fresh towels again. When you finally get to your cabin to retire for the night, you will find it all made up fresh again, with beds turned down, and more fresh towels.

The carpet on your cabin deck is vacuumed at least once daily, oftener if needed. Tub, shower, sink and toilet are cleaned thoroughly at least twice a day.

The young Norwegian stewardess is always smiling, cheerful and never appears hurried.

In addition to all the foregoing, there are matinee and evening movies (different films at each showing), nightclub entertainment each evening, informative lectures about ports of call, language lessons, dancing lessons and much else, all included in the cruise price.

Only tips, drinks from the bar and personal laundry cost extra. — J.C.

The Hawaiian Language Is A Simple One

HONOLULU, Hawaii — You, too, can learn to speak Hawaiian, which is described by linguists as one of the most fluid and melodious languages of the world.

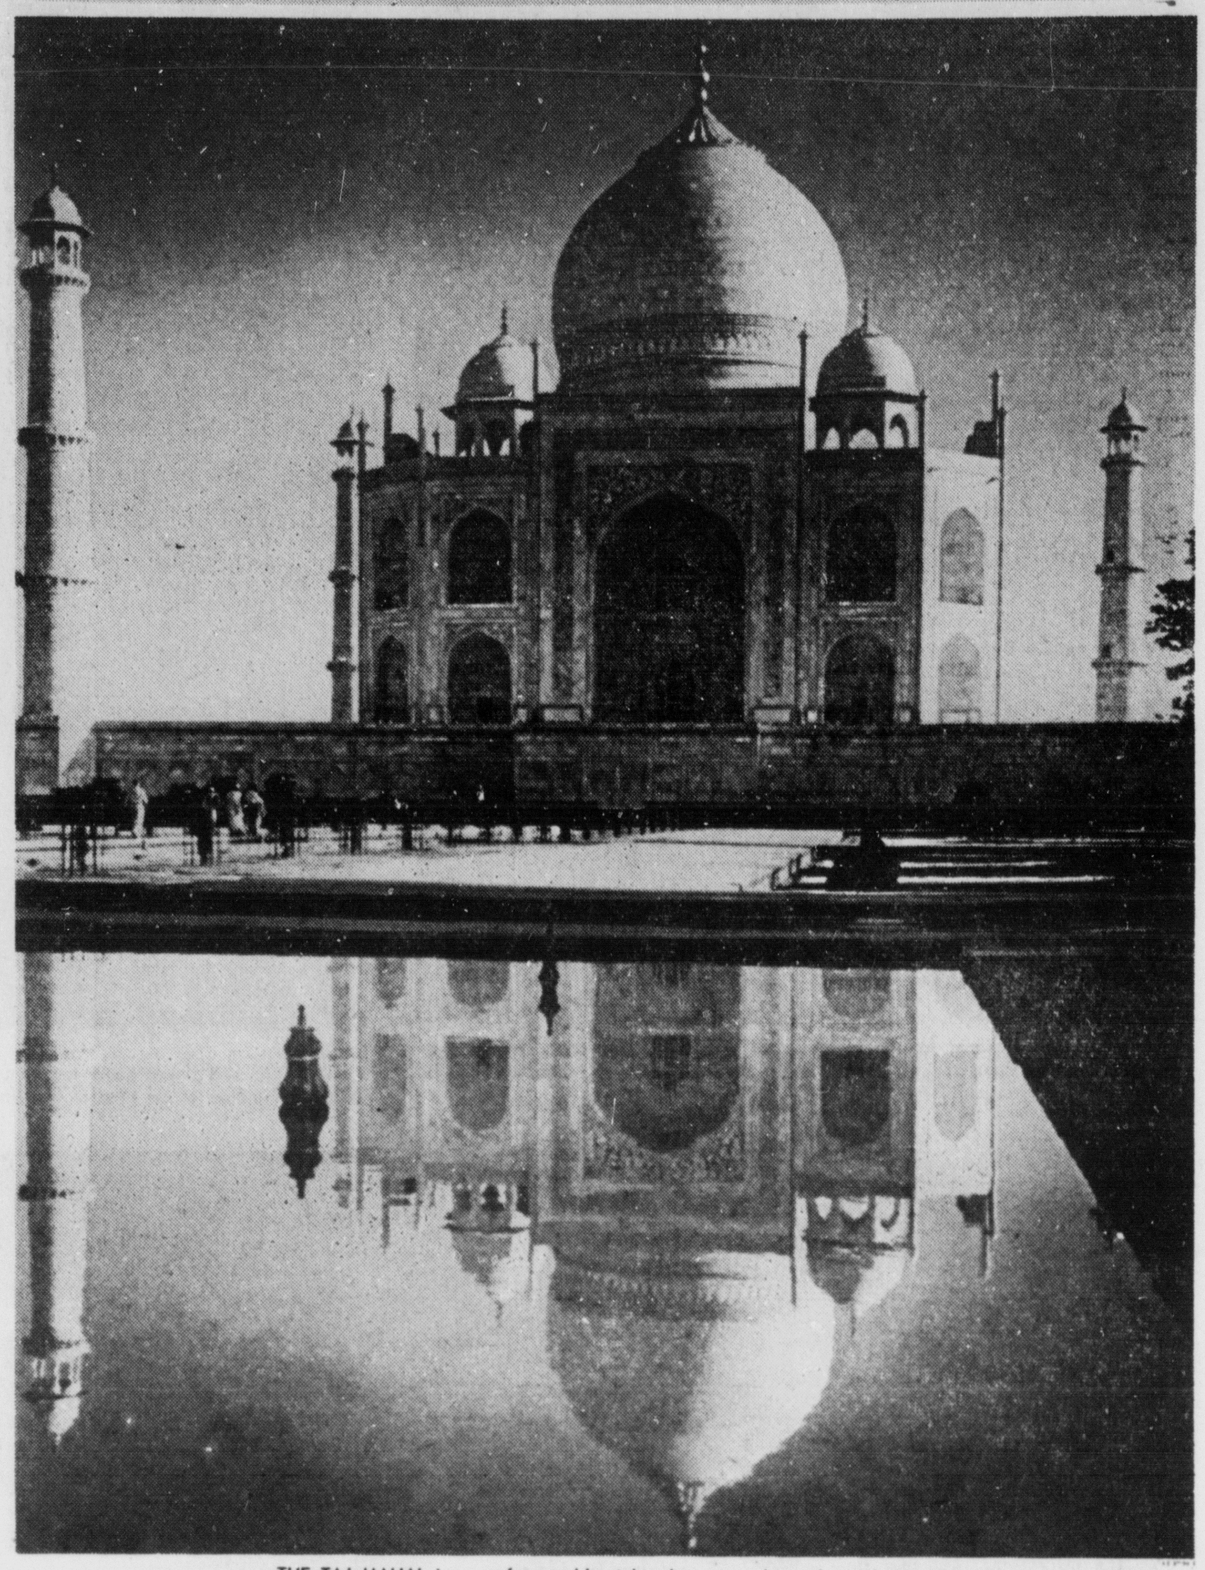

Visitors always feel more at home if they recognize local words and phrases and their meanings.

The universal word for greeting, of course, is "aloha." And anyone who has ever worked a crossword puzzle knows that "Aa" means "rocky lava." But do you know that "pau" means "finished, or ended,"; "kane" is "man;" "wahine" is "woman;" "holoju" is "Hawaiian dress;" "kamaaina" means "oldtimer;" and "malihini" is "newcomer."

"The Hawaiian language is actually very simple," reports the travel experts from Continental Airlines. "There are only 12 letters in the Hawaiian alphabet — the five vowels, 'a, e, i, o and u;' and seven consonants, 'h, k, l, m, n, p, w.' Each letter in a Hawaiian word is sounded. The vowels have the same sound as Latin. Pronounce 'a' as in among; 'e' as in they; 'i' as in machine; 'o' as in no' and 'u' as in too. Consonants have the same sound as in English with one exception — when the 'w' is next to the final letter in a word it is pronounced as a 'v'. The word 'Hawi', for instance, is pronounced 'Ha-vee,' but 'Waikiki' comes out a 'Wai-kii-kii.'"

The word "hoomalimali" in Hawaiian, for example, is the equivalent of "blarney," in English. If someone says "mahalo" for someone's "kokua," it just means that everybody's happy and saying "thanks" for the "help."

THE TRAVEL PAGE

THE TAJ MAHAL is an unforgettable sight when viewed, as shown here, at sunrise. But so it is, too, at midday, when its marble undergoes a series of lovely color changes, or at midnight viewed in the moonlight. The visitor should make it a point to see the Taj, not once, but several times at different hours.

The Taj Is More Than A Magnificent Tomb; It's A Monument Of Love

By RALPH HUBLEY

AGRA, India — Gazing at the Taj Mahal is as personal as watching someone you love. The form may be familiar but changing expressions reveal an intriguing variety.

My guide who had been here at least 20 other times during the week stood in awe with the rest of us who were seeing it for the first time.

The Taj, a monument of love that Emperor Shah Jehan completed in 1653 in memory of his wife, Muntaz Mahal, has been so praised by poet and painter that its delicate outline and symmetrical design are familiar to all who seek it out.

AND NEARLY ALL visitors to India come here to see the Taj. Most of these foreign travelers (at least 250,000 paid admissions last year) gasp at their first view, take a quick look around and then speed off to other destinations.

But the subtle changes in the Taj are seen only by those who linger awhile. The white marble takes on different hues at different times of day.

I returned to the scene three times one day to verify these slight changes.

It is only near midday that the Taj displays the stark ivory whiteness so often pictured.

IN EARLY MORNING the main dome and minarets have a yellow tint. Then about 10:30 a.m. a hint of green is reflected from the trees and lawns surrounding it.

In early afternoon tan streaks are noted in the marble. About 3:30 p.m. there is a rose hue picked up from matching red-stone structures on either side of the white marble monument and from the red walkways. Then again at sunset the yellow cast returns.

When there is a full moon the grounds are kept open until midnight so visitors can see the milky whiteness gleam in the moonbeams. Sometimes the jewels above the arched entrance sparkle and glitter in the soft glow.

A LONG-DISTANCE view of the Taj is offered from Agra Fort about a mile away and around a bend in the Yamuna River, upon whose banks both structures have been erected.

It's the same view the emperor had during the last nine years of his life when he was imprisoned in the fort by his son who took over the realm a bit prematurely.

Another remarkable discovery about the Taj is that it stands up well to close inspection.

The designs and inscriptions are inlaid with semi-precious stones. The visitor wonders at the tremendous effort it took to gather the tons of marble and to construct such an architectural masterpiece.

BUT IT IS the miles of intricate flowered marble inlays that stagger the imagination.

Somehow it is hard to believe that the Taj, as some modern critics have stated, is only "the result of a king's extravagance and represents forced labor of oppressed workers."

The beauty seems to transcend the conditions of the times. The artists and craftsmen must have caught the inspiration that they were part of something greater than simply building a magnificent tomb.

IT TOOK AN estimated 20,000 skilled craftsmen 22 years to construct the Taj and its accompanying buildings.

It is recorded that master craftsmen were brought from Persia and Turkey by the emperor and that they taught the local inhabitants how to perform the intricate inlay of semi-precious stones in marble. However, there is some evidence that this skill was already practiced in the area before the building of the Taj.

The nearby tomb of Itimad-ud-Daulah, built by Empress Nur Jehan in memory of her father, is a forerunner of the Taj. It was the first experiment in building with white marble.

WHAT HAPPENED to these craftsmen?

Many returned to their homelands and other major projects. But some stayed in the area.

At any rate, marble work is the chief industry of Agra today and demand for the product is growing on the world market.

Most foreign visitors make Agra a day trip from New Delhi by using the Taj Express, a luxury air-conditioned train with dining car that leaves Delhi at 7 a.m. and departs from Agra at 7 p.m. The trip takes three hours each way.

Real Dungeon In Charleston

Time machines may only be the subject of science fiction stories, but a real dungeon in Charleston, S.C., successfully transports its visitors into the tumultuous period of the Revolutionary War.

At the east end of Broad Street, the dark, dank cellars of the Exchange Building hides a group of American patriots, many chained to the damp brick walls for asserting their beliefs.

These suffering patriots are only wax, but their grief becomes real to everyone who steps foot into the Provost Dungeon.

Completed in 1771, the cellar of the Exchange Building was originally intended for customs storage, but the dark dungeon soon became a favorite hiding place for everything from tea to prisoners.

British tea, confiscated from the East India Co., was stored here in 1773, and a year later South Carolinians met in the building to elect their delegates to the first Continental Congress.

Before the British occupation of Charleston in 1780, Gen. William Moultrie, commander of the city's revolutionary forces, successfully hid a sizeable amount of black powder in a vault in this cellar. A few months later, the British occupied the dungeon and turned it into a patriot prison, the Provost.

The powder, hidden so carefully by Moultrie, was separated from the British by only the thickness of a wall, but it was never found. In 1782, after the British evacuated Charleston, the General returned to the Provost and retrieved his entire cache of ammunition.

The Salty Little Man From Independence: He Called 'Em As He Saw 'Em

PLAIN SPEAKING: An Oral Biography of Harry S. Truman by Merle Miller; Putnam, 432 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In 1962, David Susskind planned a television series on former President Harry S. Truman. He put together a team to write and film it, and they spent some weeks in Independence, Mo., interviewing and photographing the former President at the Truman Library.

The series never materialized. Susskind couldn't sell his idea to the networks. But Merle Miller, a writing member of the team, kept copious notes and some tape recordings of his conversations with HST and people who knew Truman.

He has put them together with running commentary in "Plain Speaking, an Oral Biography of Harry S. Truman."

There is a great deal of Merle Miller in the book. Some of the reconstructed conversation it a bit too pat. But there is a lot of Harry Truman.

In the current time of White House secretiveness, of a "loner" President, of surreptitiously taped conversations in the Oval Office, of a presidential staff made up of advertising men and lawyers, it is hard to realize how different things were back in the late '40s when the Man from Independence was the nation's chief executive. Miller's "Plain Speaking" emphasizes the difference.

There was no press-agentry for the Truman presidency. There was little concealment. The salty Missourian called 'em as he saw 'em, living up to the famous slogan on his deak: "The buck stops here."

Truman was a man of deep loyalties, and a few deep dislikes. The man he most admired, as Miller relays his comments, was Gen. George C. Marshall, architect of American victory in World War II whom he called back as secretary of defense and secretary of state after the war.

The two he most disliked were Lloyd Stark, who got his support for the Missouri governorship and then, as Truman saw it, turned traitor — and Richard M. Nixon.

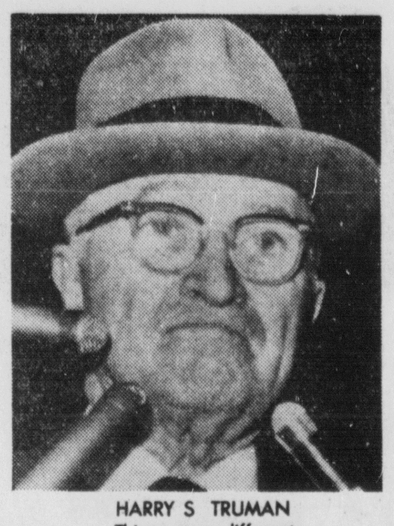

Nixon was a has-been vice president, an unsuccessful candidate for governor of California, when Miller got his interviews with Truman. But it may well be that HST, as quoted, said, "Oh, my, I do regret I never had the chance to run against him," and: "He not only doesn't give a damn about the people; he doesn't know how to tell the truth."

Truman never forgave Nixon for calling him and General Marshall traitors in a 1952 campaign speech.

"Plain Speaking" includes Truman remarks — very plain ones — about a lot of others: Eisenhower, MacArthur (he had little use for either), Dean Acheson (whom he admired), the Kennedys (whom he considered opportunists), and many more.

Miller may have dressed some of them up a little. But they sound like Truman.

Yes, there is a lot of Harry Truman in "Plain Speaking" — and all of it is good.

What Life At Sea Was Like

THE GREAT GREEN by Calvin Kentfield; Dial Press, 256 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

From his Tomales Bay home one recent morning, Calvin Kentfield had this bit of advice for aspiring writers: "Keep reading and writing. That's how you learn your craft; you don't need to go to school."

But whether or not you wish to write, Kentfield's new book "The Great Green," which prompted this reviewer's phone call to him, merits being read because it is one of the best and most innovative works to appear this season.

Subtitled "Memoirs of a Merchant Mariner," Kentfield's book sweeps away all the familiar cliches of going away to sea, yet creates the exact form and style of seamen's lives. This elusive subculture revealed itself to Dana and Conrad, but in recent times few books with the exception of Malcolm Lowry's early novel "Ultramarine" have been as successful as "The Great Green."

Kentfield's great gift is the ability to control his material with selective clarity, to come to grips with the sea and the men sailing upon it without succumbing to O'Neillesque caricature, or intruding as a foreign object in Melville's cosmological eye.

Kentfield's narrative is really not so much about himself as an evocation of people and places, the particular time and nature of his post-war voyages and shipmates. The raw stuff of repetitive personal experience is finely rendered into a statement of how it was, what it looked, felt and smelled like. This is both analysis and synthesis; and that is what writing is all about.

Mankind arose from the waters, and each of us began life in fluid suspension. Going away to sea is part of everyone's fantasy, a symbolic encapsulation of the life journey. And through Calvin Kentfield's fidelity to detail, a descriptive precision familiar to his previous novels and New Yorker short stories, he takes us along to Venezuelan jungle estuaries, the Norman castles of Sicily, and oil sheikdoms east of Suez, not to mention some fine orgies ashore.

"The Great Green," its title taken from an Egyptian term for the world's encompassing waters, is the first in a series of memoirs by Kentfield. The next, now in preparation, will be called "The Rock Island Line," an account of his Iowa home, where his father worked on the railroad. If the quality of "The Great Green" is maintained, we could be into a first-rate experiment in autobiography, a major contemporary remembrance of things past.

Calvin Kentfield's seagoing days are now over and he has come ashore to Marin County, where this current book was completed in Bolinas year before last. But in response to a final question as to whether it would still be possible for a young man to sign aboard a ship and see the world, as he did in the late 1940s, Kentfield's answer was a vigorous affirmative. But he cautioned that the life he describes in "The Great Green" was at the end of an era, for computerization and a corporate style have intruded upon the sailor's existence he knew.

On Sunday, Feb. 17, readers are invited to meet Calvin Kentfield from 1 to 5 p.m., at the Stinson Beach Book Store.

2 Thrillers Certain To Sell Well

KOLCHAK'S GOLD by Brian Garfield; McKay, 331 pages, $7.95.
THE BORMANN BRIEF by Clive Egleton; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 318 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Make room on the best-seller lists for two new novels of suspense, intrigue and adventure.

Brian Garfield's "Kolchak's Gold" and Clive Egleton's "The Bormann Brief" seem certain to achieve the charts, and deservedly so. The two authors have woven exciting, inventive stories, vibrant with action, upon the tapestries of recent history.

Garfield, one of our more ingenious American literary plotters, plants the foundations of his novel into an incident of the Russian civil war of more than a half century ago. A defeated White Russian entourage fleeing before the Reds takes with it the czar's imperial treasury of gold. And when they can retreat no farther, the desperate custodian Admiral Kolchak and his handful of doomed men hide the immense hoard in remote mine shafts.

Now, 50 years later, the young American historian Harris Bristow, finds himself drawn relentlessly into a hunt for the long lost billions.

Part of the pressure comes from his own curiosity, and part from Israel through the mysterious girl-agent with whom Bristow has fallen in love.

Needless to say, the American and Soviet intelligence apparatuses take a keen interest, too, in Bristow's growing involvement.

Garfield handicaps himself a bit by the technique he has chosen of telling his yarn through a continuing manuscript, purportedly the work of historian Bristow. It hampers Garfield's own natural storytelling style and ability. Nevertheless, he has written a gripping, thrilling tale, brilliantly integrated with history, and rich in its geographical content as it moves through four lands — the USA, Israel, the Soviet Union and finally Turkey.

Egleton, a British army officer, gives his novel a one dimensional time setting. That time is late in World War II. One of the German generals involved in the unsuccessful bomb plot against Adolf Hitler defects to England where he attempts to interest the British in a plan to assassinate the sinister Martin Bormann. His reception is unsympathetic until he is put in touch with the strange, iconclastic Lt. Col. Michael Ashby.

Ashby proceeds to put the German general's plan into operation, using an assortment of military misfits and bucking opposition within British Intelligence.

"The Bormann Brief" starts slowly, but before mid-point begins to pick up momentum fast.

Its conclusion — the actual carrying out of "Operation Leopard" inside Hitler's disintegrating Reich — is almost unbearably exciting — and very, very violent. One gets to know the men who make the mission — and their opponents — not through character analysis, but by their actions and reactions under fire. Egleton softens neither the innate evil of the Nazis, nor the more human failings of their foes.

Both "The Bormann Brief" and "Kolchak's Gold" should win up as stirring movies as well as best-sellers. As such, they are preferable to the "Exorcist"-"Rosemary's Baby" kind of sick suspense that has come into vogue and has been threatening the time honored place of the spy thriller in the fiction spotlight.

IN THE LAND OF THE COATIMUNDI

CHULO by Bil Gilbert; Alfred A. Knopf, 290 pages $7.95. Reviewed by Jean Rauzy.

Take a naturalist with a very large bump of curiosity about a particular beast, who gathers about him a group of helpers who share his curiosity.

Transplant this group into the very heart of country which abounds with the beast and turn him loose with a year to work on the matter, bringing a great background of information and skill, and the story should be good. It is.

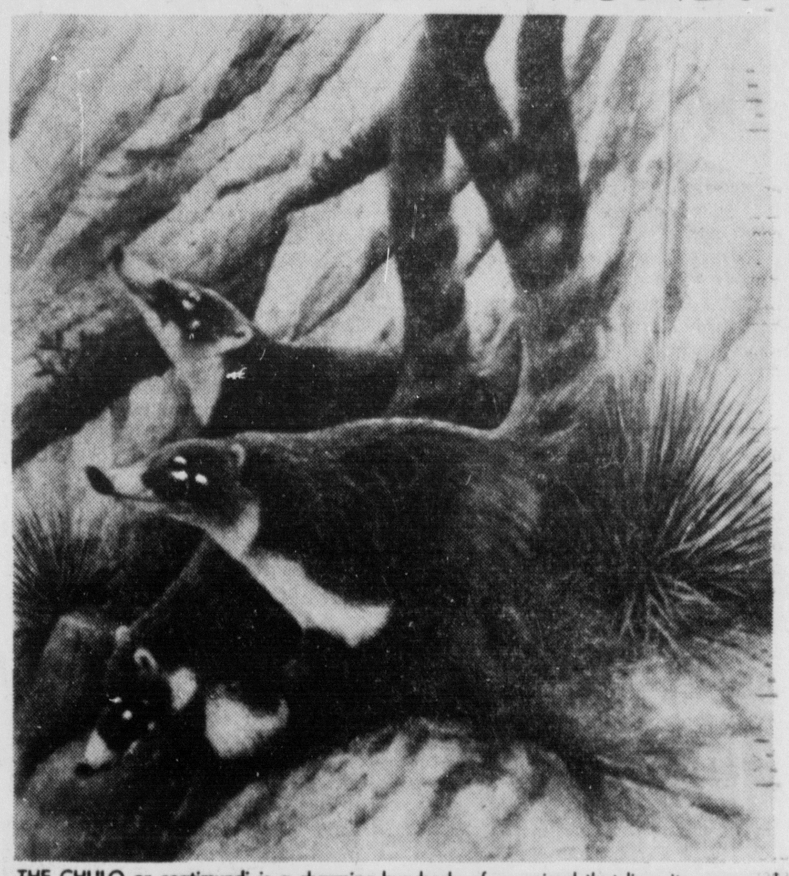

"Chulo" is about the expedition conducted by Bil Gilbert into the wilds of Southern Arizona to explore the life and times of the coatimundi — a small, raccoon-like animal primarily found in South and Central America. It is one of the few tribal animals known in North America, and the rules of its communal life are inflexible.

Ky Gilbert, Bil's 17-year-old son, Ky's friend Terry Straup, 16, and John Thomson, a young guitar playing dropout who joined the group very much on trial and became one of its essential elements, are the author's fellow observers. The human animals are drawn sympathetically and make as fascinating a study as they conduct their painstaking explorations while maintaining themselves in primitive camping style.

In the process of noting the function of each group in the coatimundi tribe, individual animals become known to the observers and to the reader.

One hilarious incident serves to illustrate the part played by the coatimundi groups: "The Supervisor," the most dominant of the adult males, attempted to rush the spring mating season by pouncing from cover on a sub-adult female. The matriarchs, alarmed by her squeals, quickly attacked him and drove him off. He never looked back as he ran for what was probably his life.

The people and the animals in "Chulo" are a delight to spend many hours with and the description of the scenery in chulo land is enough to send one off for a look immediately.

THE CHULO or coatimundi is a charming busybody of an animal that lives its communal life in Arizona, Mexico and farther south. Naturalist Bil Gilbert and his three teen-age sons spent a year studying — and falling in love — with three tribes of the delightful little creatures. Gilbert tells of the adventure in "Chulo," published by Alfred Knopf.

Some Of The New Books For Cooks

By MAXINE KEOWN

In many households the word "vegetable" is synonomous with "dull." But it needn't and shouldn't be.

"Vegetable Cooking of All Nations" (Crown, $5.95), edited by Florence Schwartz, makes that point, and makes it well.

It is a collection of 700 vegetable recipes taken from Crown's excellent International Cook Book Series, a series that under the editorship of Charlotte Adams has covered the ethnic culinary field from the Balkans to Finland, from China to Israel, with stop-offs at such points as Greece, Italy and Poland.

The result is immense variety in many approaches to the same vegetable — 37 ways to treat the mushroom, 27 for artichokes, 72 for potatoes.

There is special attention to the heartier vegetable dishes that can stand as a main course without apology, and to combination dishes using two or many vegetables together.

The book is by no means for vegetarians only. It will certainly give a helpful lift to the menus for families where vegetables are now regarded as that "blah" accompaniment to the meat, too often pushed aside and left upon the plate. And Crown has been able to offer it at a very reasonable price, considering today's rising publishing costs.

ARCO PUBLISHING Co., best known for paperbacks, has put out in hardcover a surprising and delightful little book called "The Granola Cookbook" ($6.95) by Eric Meller and Jane Kaplan. First one learns how to make and mix granola in its many varieties, from cheap to flamboyant. Then one is told how this healthful staple of the natural foods movement can be used as the key ingredient in a diversity of recipes, from breakfast pancakes to a number of candies. There are dishes like a granola omelette, walnut-granola cookies, granola in grape leaves, peasant pilaf with granola, granola hamburgers, ham and granola in cream, carob-granola cake, etc. A really tempting assortment of creative ways to put to use this product that began in the health food stores, but has won itself a prominent place on supermarket shelves. Let it not be forgotten, however, that granola tastes very well, eaten as is.

And yet another highly original book from Arco: "Smoky Mountain Wines and How To Make Them" ($5.95) by Paul E. Mahan. It offers some general instrucion on home winemaking, a hobby that is experiencing a tremendous boom. And then it provides some 200 recipes for wines to be made from various fruits, berries, flowers, grains, roots, honey, even vegetables — generally the products that early settlers in the Great Smoky Mountains found available to them in their new habitat, and which they put to imaginative use in continuing the winemaking traditions of their old countries. Some samples: sourwood blossom wine, wild cherrywine, elderberry wine, rose petal wine, red ripe tomato wine, potato parsnip wine, corn shuckin' wine, apricot honey wine, etc. There are also some directions for the serving of wine, and a small collection of recipes for cooking with wine. This one will enthrall hobbyists and entice new recruits into their ranks.

FOR THE FAMILY that has surrendered to the sweet-tooth, there's the "Dessert Cook Book" (Meredith) of Better Homes and Gardens. And to ease the conscience a bit, it does include some diet desserts. This is one of Better Homes' low price, $1.95, cookbooks that are so beautifully illustrated in color and tastefully designed that one is astonished at the cost. The contents range from the old reliables such as apple pie and brownies to "unusuals" such as banana split eclairs and fresh rhubarb betty. Every recipe starts the taste buds atingling and pushes caloric considerations aside. Especially useful is a section of easy-to-prepare desserts.

"Crossroads of Cooking" ($6.95, Ward Ritchie Press) is the work of Lou Seibert Pappas, , clearly done with dedication and affection, the product of her ethnic heritage (Scandinavian and German), her Willamette Valley upbringing, her marriage ties with a Greek family, and her extensive travels in Europe and Mexico.

On those travels, she and her husband made it a special point to search out, in restaurants, markets, delicatessens and homes, the special recipes of the lands they visited. The result is a collection that ranges from a souffle cheesecake of the Italians to German sauerbraten, from the classic French beef roast to Norwegian meatballs, from Hungarian filbert strudel to Swedish split pea soup. Such gems as the onion soup of Paris' LesHalles and the Eggplant Aegean of London's White Tower restaurant lend special sparkle to a really superior selection of international dishes.

THE RECIPES in "The Calendar Book of Natural Beauty" as the title indicates are not for the most part for eating. But the ingredients are usually edibles. It's the work of Virginia Castleton, beauty editor of Prevention Magazine and published by Harper and Row at $6.95. In a pleasant writing style she offers a month-by-month plan by which the woman can improve her appearance and health with aids and cosmetics from natural sources — rose food for fingernails, apple cream for freshening the skin tone, protein skin food and wrinkle reducer, honeydew-mint lotion, flower beauty bath, strawberry facial, honey facial, venus cream, etc. There are also a goodly number of health food recipes for eating — and, in keeping with another current interest, aphrodisiac of the month for each of the 12 months. Exercise is also covered, in a book certain to have a lasting popularity with the natural living set.

Not every parent wants his or her child gobbling sweets. But if you have bowed to what seems to be the inevitable in today's suicide, then "Candies, Cookies, Cakes" (Doubleday, $4.95) by Aileen Paul and Arthur Hawkins will at least enable you to cut the costs of satisfying what sometimes seems an insatiable craving for sugar. Directions in large type are fitted to the beginner level and to young readers and their attention span. Some of the inclusions; no-cook fondant, chocolate carrot cake, western cookies, cupcake cones, spice cake, peanut brittle, pulling taffy, creamy fudge. The co-authors have, indeed, done an exceptional job of keeping the contents simple, safe and sane.

Ann Bridges' Julia Back In Her Quiet Way

JULIA IN IRELAND by Ann Bridge; McGraw-Hill, 254 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Faithful readers of Ann Bridge have followed her Julia Probyn Jamieson through a long series of adventures in always changing settings, since she was introduced back in 1956 in "The Light-Hearted Quest." This is the most recent of the Julia novels, but certainly not the last.

Since Julia is employed by British Intelligence, the uninitiated might expect slambang action, and perhaps even blood and gore. Fans know better. This is low key suspense, about highly civilized people who conduct themselves at a civilized pace.

"Julia in Ireland" finds the young widow accompanying her beau, Gerald O'Brien, to his homeland to meet his friends and see his farm. Once there, Julia is caught up in a bit of local intrigue revolving around a speculator's plans to develop — and thereby destroy — an idyllic stretch of coastline.

For the James Bond crowd, all that may not sound very exciting. But Julia Probyn admirers thrive on this kind of quiet, upper crust soap opera. And in "Julia in Ireland" they get the added bonus of some interesting insights into Irish ways and thinking.

Early Interest In Coppel Novel

Pre-publication interest in Alfred Coppel's timely new novel, "Thirty-Four East," is fueling Harcourt Brace Jovanovich's conviction that they have a big best seller on the spring list.

To be published on April 17, in a 40,000-copy first printing, the book has been selected as a Reader's Digest Condensed Book and as a featured alternate of the Book-of-the-Month Club. Foreign rights have already been sold in nearly a dozen countries, including England, France, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Finland, and South America, and paperback rights have been sold for a quarter of a million dollars to Popular Library.

OLD MENDOCINO: ITS HOUSES AND ITS FAMILIES

"Mendocino," a paperback with colored pictures, the work of librarian Dorothy Bear and photographer Beth Stebbins, is available for $6.50 postpaid from its publisher, the Mendocino Historical Research Center, Post Office Box 922, Mendocino. It covers the histories of 33 Mendocino houses and their occupants, and is the first of a projected series of such books.

The Movie Daredevils

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

For the growing number of women who have rediscovered the economy and satisfaction of making their own clothing, Quadrangle-The New York Times Book Co. has published "Finally It Fits" by Ruth Amiel and Happy Gerhard.

The book is built around a system devised by the two Manhattan women for pattern-making that they assure us is fail-safe and can be adapted to any garment.

Two-color drawings supplement the directions, and with these, claim the co-authors you can turn out patterns cut to fit you and you only "as easy as A-B-C."

Price of the outsized book is $12.50.

ALSO FOR the women: "Today's Woman Knit and Crochet Book," a compilation of ideas for items that can be made with needle and yarn — everything from bright Scandinavian-design sweaters to filet lace tableclothes. Ellene Saunders is the editor, and has organized the directions well. Photographs and drawings are plentiful and helpful. Arco is the publisher of the $3.95 book.

"THE COMMUNITY Market Cooperative Catalog," $2.45, published by Alfred A. Knopf, is just what the title indicates, a compendium of goods and services available from co-ops, communes, collectives and similar groups, across the country.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

THE LINNET ESTATE by Dora Polk; David McKay, 264 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Mary Craig.

An ec centric dowager persuades Verity Bai les to leave her nursing post in London to accompany her to Southern California. Too intimidated by her benefactor to press for a definition of her role, Verity finds herself an "outsider" in a turbulent and hostile household.

Verity's confusion deepens as she meets her employer's mystical psychiatrist, lives through the aftermath of a young Nisie boy's puzzling death, and chances on almost medieval rites in the "Old Adobe", one of several houses on the estate.

More visceral than the run-of-the-genre Gothic, the plot involves heavy drugs and offstage sodomy before a Santa Ana whips the story to its dramatic close.

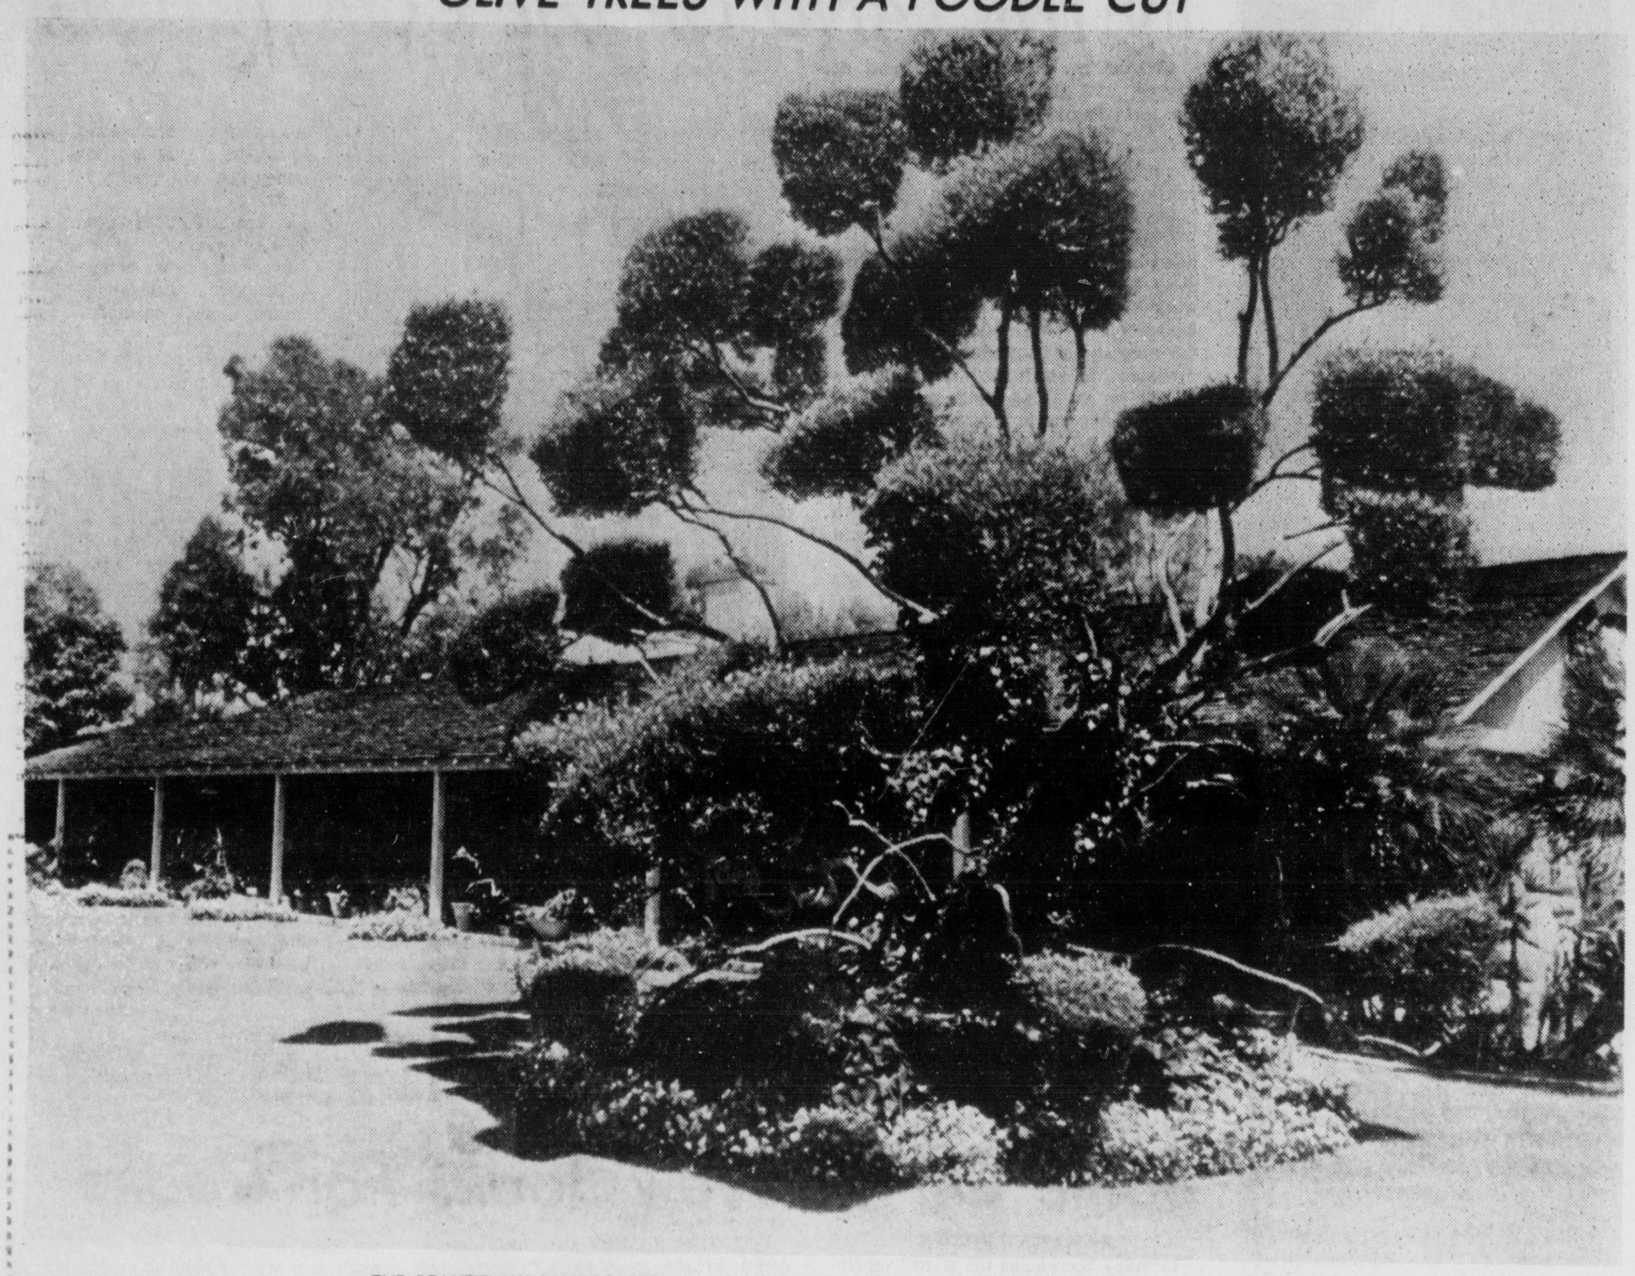

The Welsh-born author, a California State associate professor, betrays a fine taste for her adopted state by the Californiana woven into this story of new love and old hates. One must protest, however, such lapses as a nurse succumbing to ea at the sight of a hypodermic needle in use.

OLIVE TREES WITH A POODLE CUT

THE BEAUTIFULLY LANDSCAPED grounds of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Drachman in Tucson, Ariz., merited a 1974 Burlington House Award for American Gardens. Drachman, himself, designed the landscape, and plants and changes the plantings annually. Pots lush with tropical plantings line the front porch of the home. Masses of flowers surround the trunks of the olive trees with their very unusual "poodle cut." Flowers also line the curving brick driveway. Palm trees and candytuft, Iceland poppies, violas, pansies, calendulas, sweet alyssum, petunias and geraniums all thrive happily in the warm climate.

The Azaleas Will Flower From Fall Into May

You can have colorful Azaleas in your garden for over half the year. By careful selection and proper planting, this happy family of flowering shrubs will be beautiful for you for a long period of time.

Indicative of the Azalea's willingness to perform under Marin's growing conditions is the fact that many of the beautiful Belgian Indica varieties show color as early as September or October. They reach full bloom before Christmas and then taper off into the New Year.

AS THEY BEGIN to fade, other Belgian Indicas take over, to be joined in short order by the magnificent Rutherfordian hybrids, then the Kurume varieties, then the Southern Indicas. Before the list of evergreen varieties has faded out, the deciduous Mollis hybrids break their winter rest with a brilliant burst of color.

By this time it's early May, or will be when the last blooms fall.

Lest you still belong to that diminishing band who think of Azaleas as too tender or delicate for normal garden conditions, let's set the record straight: They may be favorites of the florist trade, but that is a tribute to their beauty and not an indication that they have to be grown under controlled growing conditions to thrive.

According to the California Association of Nurserymen, Azaleas are important items in the general nursery trade and will thrive in most areas of the state including the Bay Area.

THE DECIDUOUS Mollis hybrids are more to be found in Northern California than in the southern half of the state. The evergreen varieties will do well in all areas, including valley gardens, if they are protected from extremes of summer sun and given an acid soil with plenty of peat moss or leafmold and ample water overhead.

Due to the variance of soil throughout the state, you should check with your nurseryman for the proper planting instructions for your garden.

Most Azaleas like shade or part shade, but the Southern Indicas stand a fair share of sun. For that reason, these are widely used in Southern California and will surprise even some Azalea buffs with their rugged character. And they will do quite well in Northern California.

What The Japanese Tomato Ring Is All About

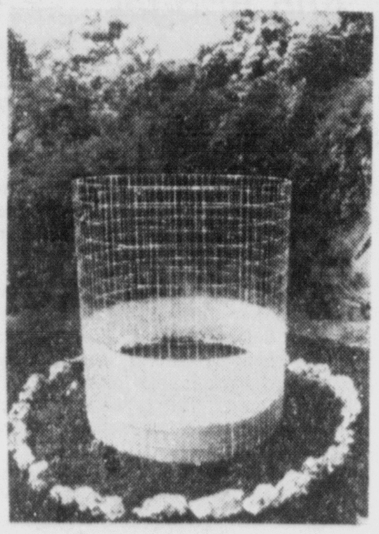

It's some kind of madness that breaks out in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., every spring, and it's known as the Japanese Tomato Ring fever. Here's the story:

We know backyards in Tokyo are very small. Perhaps that's behind the invention of the Japanese Tomato Ring. The idea is to get an awful lot — say, 200 pounds or more — of the highest grade tomatoes from a very small space. And not all at once either.

We'll leave it up to you to decide with your nurseryman the best type of climbing tomato for your area —never a ground or free-standing type! But to get results, follow these rules.

Empty the trunk in your car and head for the nearest lumber yard or hardware store. What you want is exactly 14 feet of cheap fencing, that welded kind with two-by-four inch rectangular openings. It won't cost much. Also, buy 14 feet of aluminum or plastic screening of 24-inch width. Now go to your favorite nursery, garden store or wherever you buy your supplies of this sort and purchase two 50-pound bags of pulverized (not composted) cow manure and a six cubic foot bag of peat moss.

DISCOVER A FAIRLY dry and sunny area you can spare in your garden. Make a seven-foot circle. Turn the soil for about six inches down. That's seven feet in diameter or a little more. You don't have to be too exact.

Make a circle of slightly less than five feet in diameter with the fencing. The slightly overlapping ends can be held together with wire or even paper clips. The five-foot circle now goes dead center in the seven-foot circle. The screening is placed inside the five-foot circle, at the bottom of the circle.

Now you have a choice, but a little cow manure and peat moss should be put aside. All the rest, a third of peat moss, a third of manure and a third of your backyard soil is mixed into one pile. Another way is to put a layer of half of the manure on hand in the circle, follow with a half of the peat moss and then with a half of the soil. Then repeat and you'll have sort of a six-layered cake. That's inside the circle with the fencing holding it in. Don't expect it to go much higher than ten inches of the screening. (You can build it higher in years to come).

WE ADVISED saving a small amount of the manure and peat moss. This is now worked into the cleared soil outside the ring, which should be about a foot wide.

Now you're ready for that time of the year when your nurseryman has his first tomato plants coming in — you can plant them any time after the frosts. Tomatoes take on an average of 90 days to produce ripe fruit.

We're going to let you in on a very important secret. Farmers often first "starve" their plants to get best production. A tomato plant has a singular habit of reacting to stimulation — and knowing this decides the crop you're going to get. If overfed, it goes on keeping to its vegetative (growing) stage instead of at a normal time of life turning reproductive as it should. You've seen those pictures of plants that reach the second story. Horrors! It's not big plants but a lot of tomatoes you want. So don't let this temperamental fellow do you wrong.

THE IDEA IS to hardly feed a tomato plant at all until it reaches the stage of blossoming, the stage of reproduction for which its life was rightly intended. Use fertilizer sparingly at first. A teaspoon per plant each two weeks until blossoms show is enough.

As for the plants, talk it over with your nurseryman. Four plants equal distance around the outside of the circle is enough for all the tomatoes you and your neighbors will ever want. But if you want to be a hog, go ahead and plant six.

A good idea is to put a heavy mulch on the top of that very rich soil inside the ring. Then you won't have to bother with weeds. Fallen needles of a handy pine tree do a really excellent job.

There are many ways to get more tomatoes. Stagger the first planting (after frost or whenever you begin) with two or three at the start and then two or three more between them, six weeks later. And if you plant all at once, don't forget to plant again in mid-season. The staggered-planting plan also works toward multiple crops with replanting.

BIRDS AND TOMATOES, of course, have an affinity. Best known way to combat them is to pick your tomatoes when the first flush comes into them, something of a white streak. (You'll become expert quickly.) Then ripen them on the windowsill or in a bag if you're in a hurry. Another way is to toss some kind of a mesh net you make over the ring.

Count on your tomato plants showing notches out of their leaves or holes in them. This means worms or caterpillars, the kind moths bring. The only answer is spray at the first sign. Your chance of a full crop without spraying quickly is slim.

Otherwise you'll have little trouble because this is a sturdy grower; and this way you'll have tomatoes and tomatoes and tomatoes and wonder how so little space could produce so many. The secret is inside that ring.

And — think! — you've paid about all your dues for years to come. Use the Japanese Tomato Ring over and over again year after year —and all you need do is recharge that mixture in the center with more dried manure.

'Rose Of East' Does Very Well Here In West

A rose by any other name can be very different.

If you were thinking of the popular true rose, think again. The "rose" from the East (Tibet, China, India, the Himalayas — and even the eastern United States) is the Rhododendron.

Rhodon is the Greek for rose; dendron is the Greek for tree. In any landscape, Rhododendron means beauty.

The Rhododendron you know for its trusses of big, brilliant flowers. Most people don't know, or could care less, that Azaleas are members of the Rhododendron clan. In nurseries, however, they are quite separate — and available individually throughout California as Rhododendrons and Azaleas.

Until recently, gardeners had the impression that Rhododendrons were too delicate or problemsome — and didn't take advantage of using these flowering favorites in landscape situations. Today, things have changed — Rhododendrons are attractive additions to the landscape — they feature a variety of bold, textured foliages that add interest and dimension to the surroundings. Frosing on the cake, of course, is the dazzling cool season display of color.

If you doubt that Rhododendrons are for your area, visit your nursery and check; the varieties offered are those which are best suited for local conditions.

The Prayer Plant

A prayer plant needs moist soil but don't allow water to stand on the crowns, as the stems rot easily. Best conditions include diffused sunlight, warm temperature and high humidity.

Houseplants Should Be For Enjoying — Never For Agonizing

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Even one houseplant can do something for a home, and several can make a big difference.

They dress up a room, adding grace and a home like touch. Because they are alive and growing, they keep doing things. This makes them companionable. They improve the air. They help us to feel in tune with our natural environment.

But they should not be a chore, a burden.

THEY ARE FOR pleasure, says Helen Van Pelt Wilson.

And she ought to know. She has grown hundreds of them, all because she loves them and finds them an unfailing interest and delight. She grew them even during several years in a city apartment. Now in the country she has them in north, south, east and west windowns and in a specially built "plant room."

"My pleasure in plants is twofold," she says. "I use them decoratively throughout my house, and I particularly enjoy growing them through the months when the more demanding outdoor garden is at rest."

SHE SHARES HER personal experiences and her extensive know-how in a new book that is for all the world like informal neighborly visits from a delightful friend: "Houseplants Are for Pleasure" (Doubleday, $7.95).

Houseplants help one to "look outward," she says, for they give one a reason for daily exertion, they are so good for people who live alone and who may be inclined sometimes to feel they are "not needed."

But whether alone or in a lively family, remember, she adds, plants "are to be enjoyed not agonized over. Throw out what does not thrive, cherish what responds to your interested attention."

WELL-GROWN PLANTS in plain clay pots are attractive and a vine cascading from an ordinary plastic bowl can be a pretty thing, but how decorative beautiful containers of all sorts can be and what fun to collect them! Why not have wall brackets and hanging pots, pedestals and plant stands, shelves against the windowpanes, planters, and flower carts. Possibilities are endless.

You might even have a "plant room."

Mrs. Wilson built one by adding a three-exposure room to her cottage. She has plants elsewhere, but enjoys this room, she says, for reading the paper, sitting over a breakfst tray, or writing letters on a card table instead of at her desk. She tells of friends who have them, too.

A FAMILY USES theirs also as a breakfast room. A woman sculptor has one in a passageway between her studio and her house.

One value of houseplants is that "there are kinds to suit almost every situation and light and heat," Mrs. Wilson tells us. Of course, you can make a hobby of African violets or the many kinds of geraniums or begonias, but you "need not concentrate on only a few kinds to have beautiful indoor effects."

Outdoors, she says, many different kinds in a bed may look scattery. Indoors the variety is interesting.

SHE GROWS THINGS as common as grape ivy and wax bexonias, but every year (a fan of catalogs) she orders about a dozen unfamiliar plants.

"In time some of these become favorites as did the trailing Velvet Plant," she says. She loves some of the ferns, enjoys the grace of vines and trailers, has had fun with minis and dwarfs. Perhaps you would enjoy a different emphasis each year. She has found this refreshing.

You will find her shared experience on plants under light, fragrant plants for each season, potting and care, propagation, what to do and when, and answers to practically all your questions as well as stimulating new ideas.

The "Where-to-Buy" pages are especially useful.

I HAVE ENJOYED and consulted Mrs. Wilson's "The Joy of Geraniums," and her "African Violet Book." This one on "Houseplants Are for Pleasure" is going to be another happy and useful favorite.

And while on the subject of houseplants you might like to learn briefly of four other recent publications.

Two of the handsome volumes of the many-volumed Time-Life "Encyclopedia of Gardening" are "Foliage House Plants," and "Flowering House Plants," both by James Underwood Crockett.

The series includes volumes on lawns, trees, shrubs, perennials, and other subjects. (Little, Brown $6.95 each).

IN A CLASS by itself among houseplant books is "The Indoor Water Gardener's How-To Handbook," written and illustrated by H. Peter Loewer (Walker and Co., $4.95). It is a small book, only 96 pages, but uncommonly useful, especially for apartment dwellers.

"The New York Times Book of House Plants," by Joan Lee Faust (Quadrangle Books, $9.95) gives a page to each houseplant with delightful colored drawings.

Is Your Tree Trouble Really At The Top?

Some tree problems that appear in the crown are due to root troubles.

Some stem from jamming roots into a tight space, planting too deep (smothering); or planting too shallow, bringing root freezing in winter or baking in summer.

Poor soil, insufficient food, insufficient water, too much water, unwise grading, changing the water table, or exposure to winds that sway the crown and break rootlets, and drastic temperature fluctuations, are other difficulties.

And, when such troubles occur, they leave the tree open to secondary woes, such as infectious fungi, bacteria viruses and harmful nematodes that attack.

Experts say most tree root diseases are caused by root-destroying fungi. Some are shoestring root rot, bark-loose root rot, mushroom root rot and butt rot. Most householders do not know of root diseases until it is too late to provide control.

So, buy good stock, plant carefully in good soil with adequate drainage, and water and feed properly.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓The most economical time to purchase a great many plants is right now, while they are still available in bareroot form. Possibilities include the roses, berry and grape vines, shade trees, fruit trees and most flowering shrubs.

✓Summer-blooming bulb flowers that can be planted in February include gladiolus, hybrid lilies and cannas.

✓Rose pruning time is upon us, and it's an important chore if you want your bushes to bloom well in 1974.

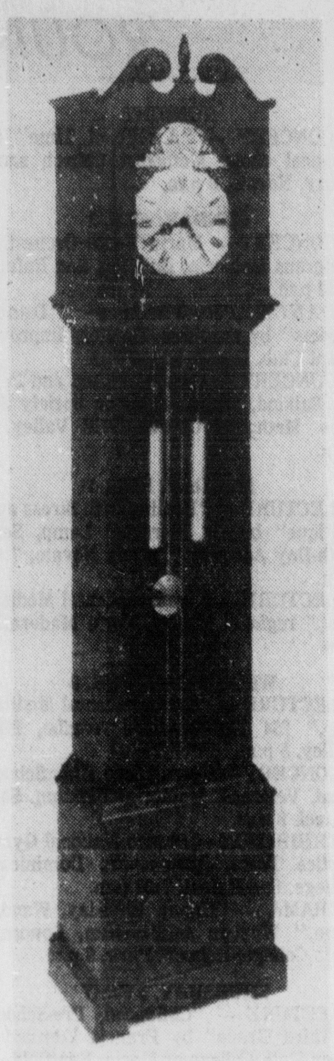

✓You can start your war on those pesky snails and slugs now. The wet winter is certain to produce a bumper crop of the pests.

✓A birdfeeder kept filled with wildbird seed or grain will attract our small feathered friends into your backyard at a time when the activity they bring is most appreciated.

✓Early February is a good time to sit back, take an overall look at your garden, and plan the landscaping improvements you will be undertaking in the late winter-early spring weeks just ahead.

✓Have your mower sharpened now, before the spring rush begins.

GRANDFATHER CLOCK BUILT BY GRANDDAD

PROUD, INDEED, is the family that possesses a massive, dignified grandfather clock. But in the past there have been only two ways to acquire these treasures — by inheritance of a family heirloom, or by purchase. If you lack the ancestral ties for the former, or the money (and the cost is considerable) for the latter, there is now a third means by which you can become a grandfather clock owner. You can build your own. Steve Ellingson stands ready to help you. Just send $2 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Grandfather Clock Pattern 464. The pattern is full-size, and Ellingson has simplified the construction of the case so that the only major tool needed is a table saw. You can build with solid lumber or plywood. All you do is trace the pattern parts onto your wood, saw them out and assemble. Mouldings are stock items found in lumberyards. And if you have difficulty coming up with the top decorator carvings locally, Ellingson tells you where to order them by mail. The clock shown at right is six feet tall. It can be built to use an inexpensive weight-driven movement. Or you can make it to run without weights and pendulum, substituting a flashlight battery-powered movement. In the latter case, shelves for knickknacks may be built into the pendulum area. Then, some proud day, you may find yourself gifting your grandchildren with a grandfather clock actually built by grandfather. Now, there's a real family treasure!

Get The Most From Your Fireplace

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

There's nothing cozier than curling up in front of a blazing fire on a chilly winter evening — especially during the energy crisis when the rest of the house may be a drafty 65 degrees!

The Fireplace Institute reports a run on fireplaces, firewood and chimney cleaning services around the country. It says fireplace manufacturers report growing back orders.

The increase in requests for permits to cut firewood led the government to open 155 national forests to the cutting of firewood for personal use.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, in a brochure, urges: "enjoy your fireplace, especially during the energy crisis," and follows up with tips on how to use a fireplace efficiently and safely.

WOOD FUEL, THE service says, may be cut from trees that are considered undesirable, those that are poorly formed, diseased, of little-used or weak species, such as pin cherry, or genetically inferior species.

The Forest Service suggests fireplace wood often can be obtained from dumps and landfills where, since many local ordinances forbid open burning, as much as 30 per cent of the debris may consist of reusable wood, including logs, limbs, and tops of trees felled by storms.

Fireplace wood also may be available as industrial wood scraps from sawmills. Lumber companies often offer these materials at minimal cost. Power companies also may have available logs, limbs and tree tops that result from their powerline maintenance efforts.

"CHOOSING A KIND of firewood to burn is much like selecting a favorite wine or cheese, since each wood species can offer something different in aroma or heat value," the brochure notes.

Softwoods, like pine, spruce, and fir, are easy to ignite, because they are resinous. They burn rapidly with a hot flame. However, a fire built entirely of softwoods — just like a fire of scrap paper — burns out so quickly that it requires frequent attention and replenishment.

This characteristic of softwoods can be a boon if you want a quick warming fire or a short fire that will burn out before you go to bed or before you step out for the evening.

For longer fires it is best to use softwoods in combination with the heavier hardwoods, such as ash, beech, birch, maple and oak. These burn less vigorously and with a shorter flame.

Oak gives the most uniform and shortest flames and produces steady, glowing coals.

AROMA IS BEST derived from the woods of fruit trees such as apple and cherry and nut trees such as beech, hickory and pecan. Their smoke generally resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit.

By mixing softwoods with hardwoods you can achieve an easily ignited and long-lasting fire. By adding some fruit or nut woods, you can capture the nostalgic wood smoke aroma as well.

Most wood species will not burn if freshly cut. Wood, whether you cut it or purchase it, should be reasonably dry, or "seasoned," the service notes. Splitting logs hastens drying. Split logs, or small round logs, stacked outside under a roof, should be ready in three to six months.

LOGS SHOULD BE purchased, or cut, to fit your fireplace when laid across the grate. When you buy wood request a mixture of wood species and diameter sizes. And don't worry about pockets of rotten wood you may find in the logs.

To build a fire, the service recommends the following procedure:

Place two logs on the iron grate or fire basket, and lay tinder between them. Dry scrap paper may be more readily available than the classical tinders such as hemlock twigs and cedar or birch bark.

Above this, place a small handful of twigs or split softwood kindling. More dry logs go over this base.

A tepee formation of kindling and small branch wood will ease the fire through early combustion stages until the logs are aglow. Place these logs close. The narrow air spaces between them promote better drafts. The heat reflected between adjacent surfaces aids in raising and maintaining combustion temperatures.

FOUR LOGS GENERALLY make a good fire. Adjust them and maintain the flames by pushing the ends into the flame from time to time. Add kindling and new logs as needed to rekindle a dying glow. Rake coals toward the front of the grate before adding new logs.

Add new logs at the rear of the fireplace where they will reflect light and heat into the room.

"Choosing a kind of firewood to burn is much like selecting a favorite wine or cheese, since each wood species can offer something different in aroma or heat value," advises the U.S. Forest Service.

Ashes should be allowed to accumulate to within an inch or two of the bottom of the grate to form a bed for the glowing coals that drop through. The ash bed concentrates heat and directs drafts of air up to the base of the fire. By covering the burning logs these excess ashes can then be used to check a flaming fire. A fire "banked" this way will hold glowing coals for 8 to 10 hours, making it easier to rekindle the flames.

To build a safe fire, the Forest Service emphasizes, first make sure your room is well ventilated, the fireplace damper is open and the flue clear.

Some modern homes, especially those with electric heating, are so air-tight an air vent may have to be installed. When wood or charcoal is burned without sufficient oxygen some carbon monoxide will be released.

AVOID BURNING wet or green wood. This results in increased production of wood tars and several associated "smoke" products. These may condense in the chimney flue and possibly result in a chimney fire.

Place a screen in front of the grate to catch any flying sparks.

Keep a fire extinguisher handy. Keep other combustibles at a distance. Never use flammable liquids to light a fire indoors.

Some materials never should be burned in a fire, among them plastics, poison ivy twigs and stems and chemically treated woods such as discarded poles and railroad ties.

Resinous woods should be used with particular caution. Hemlock, larch, spruce and juniper all contain moisture pockets in the wood. Upon heating, trapped gases and water vapor build pressure in these pockets and pop with great vigor.

These rules in mind, sit back and enjoy your fireplace. Use it to dispel early morning or evening chill —it's more economical than a large heating system — and, should storms or power failure disable your usual means of heating and cooking, be reassured you have your fire for emergency use.

For A Satin Finish, Use The Pumice And Rottenstone

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Want a glass-like super-smooth finish?

There are many ways to achieve this, including the use of special rubbing compounds. An old standby — and one I use with excellent results — is the pumice-and-rottenstone treatment.

AFTER THE FINAL coat of finishing material has been allowed to harden completely — wait at least three or four days — wipe off the surface to remove any accumulated dust.

Moisten a small area with a light mineral oil, or paraffin. Sprinkle some powdered pumice on the part that is covered with oil. Rub pumice and oil into the wood, working in the direction of the grain and using firm but moderate pressure. Relax the pressure a bit along the edges of the wood.

After you've done this you'll find that even the tiniest irregularities in the finish have disappeared. You'll also find the original high gloss has been cut down considerably.

Some people prefer the less glossy finish that's produced with pumice powder and oil. In this case all that need be done is rub off all traces of oil from the surface.

HOWEVER, MOST people prefer to restore at least some gloss and achieve the kind of satiny finish seen on professionally finished furniture. That's where the rottenstone powder comes in.

Following the same procedure as before — except that this time around you use rottenstone instead of pumice —rub mixture (oil and rottenstone) vigorously into the wood. After the entire surface has been done, still more rubbing is in order. When the rubbing has produced the kind of finish that satisfies you, apply an enriched wax.

No rubbing needed here because the natural waxes in the product produce the hand-rubbed look true wood buffs demand.

Some professional woodworkers use water with the pumice and rottenstone instead of oil. It works very well on any finish except shellac.

However, because it has a faster cutting action, there's some danger that the beginner may find it more difficult to handle. So best play it safe.

Keep in mind in finishing woods that softwoods tend to be more porous than hardwoods, and if used require a filler. Generally hardwoods are preferred for furniture, for that reason, and because they are warp-resistant, and also because their natural rich color and distinctive grain patterns also contribute to their finish.

ECOLOGY BOOM HITS THE ROOF

There's no hiding a homeowner's interest in ecology. Sometimes, it shows on the roof.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association reports that "earth-tones" — bold browns, olive greens and slate grays — have become popular colors for roof shingles. They are especially effective with the new "textured" asphalt shingles, which have a rustic look and offer the benefits of fire-resistance. The shingles' natural colors and appearance help a home relate to its environment.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — What kind of paint should be used on cinder blocks? I have been told that since they contain alkali, I should be careful not to use oil-based paint. Is this correct? The blocks have no paint on them.

A. — Alkali is present in concrete and the mortar used in brick joints, therefore oil-based paints should not be used on them. However, cinder blocks are a special case because they contain both alkali and acid. Your best bet is what is called a swimming pool paint, a portland cement paint or a solvent-thinned resin, in which category portland cement belongs.

Q. — Our plastic garden hose had a damaged area in it. I bought the necessary couplings, cut the damaged section and then tried to place the serated nozzle into the inside of the hose. No matter how hard I pushed, the nozzle would not go into place. What did I do wront?

A. — Nothing. This is a trouble sometimes encountered with plastic hose that has become stiff with age. You can solve the problem by dipping the cut end into hot water for a few minutes. This softens the plastic a tiny bit and permits you to push the nozzle inside the hose.

Q. — When using a wood chisel, why is it that I always seem to split the wood?

A. — You are doing one of three things, perhaps all three: cutting across the grain rather than with it; holding the chisel in a too-verticle position; trying to remove too much wood at a time rather than making shallow cuts.

Q. — One of the shades in our house is driving me mad. Every time it is pulled down, it snaps up again rapidly as soon as I let go of it. What is causing this and how can I fix it?

A. — The spring inside the roller has been wound up too much. Raise the shade as high as it will go. Lift it out of the brackets and unroll it by hand about half way. Replace the shade roller in the brackets. It should now work properly, but if it doesn't, do the same thing a second time.

Q. — We have bought and installed air conditioners in two of our rooms. Outside the windows where the air conditioners have been placed are high bushes. Will these interfere with the operation of the air conditioners?

A. — Definitely. They need not be removed, but they should be pruned sufficiently so that the flow of air to and from the units is unobstructed.

Divider Adds Charm, Utility

A free-standing buffet server and room divider combination added in living or family room lends decorative dimension as well as usefulness.

A clear-finished sliding-door buffet, or one four to five feet long built of western pine boards, may be suspended between side panels of paired, slightly spaced two-by-10-inch Douglas fir planks.

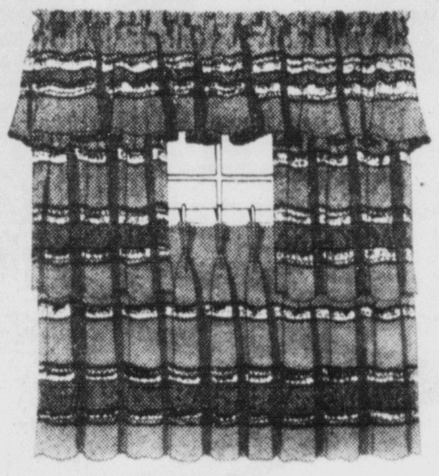

Planks are sealed or lightly stained to retain natural wood tone and the cabinet is painted to complement room furnishings. A frame of one-by-three-inch pine or fir ties the side panels together at the ceiling.

The Ravers' Favorites From Britain Have Yet To Catch On In The States

By BRUCE MEYER

In England, the name for them is "ravers."

A raver is the kind of rock fan who goes to a concert with no intention of listening passively to the music. The raver wants to boggie, to cut loose and scream and go home delightfully exhausted, almost purged by the music and the excitement.

There are a lot of ravers in England, many of them quite young —as young as 8 or 9 (most of the youngest are girls). All of them are crazy about Slade. And that has put Slade in unchallenged control of the British charts, with a string of singles hits unbroken since 1971.

SLADE'S MUSIC is loud and simple. They have very few tunes that are anything but an invitation to boggie, and their purpose on stage is single-minded: keeping the audience out of their seats.

Lead singer Noddy Holder resembles a large and puckish leprechaun, with an indomitable will to get even the most lethargic audiences "up off their backsides."

Guitarist Dave Hill adds what he calls "brash flash," appearing in silver epaulets, eight-inch heels, glitter-bedecked face and one of the world's great infectious smiles, fostered by an exceptionally large quantity of teeth.

Like the last British super-group to hit these shores, T. Rex, Slade is finding the lucrative U.S. market tough to crack. Their albums —two on Polydor, one on Warners — have had only scattered success, and only one single, "Gudbuy T. Jane," has made any chart progress at all.

FOR A BAND whose lifeblood is singles, that can be disastrrous. The Warners album, "Sladest," still has a chance — it's a collection of singles that have hit big in Europe and could catch on.

In fairness to the group, it must be acknowledged that they are taking the setbacks in stride, tackling the colonies with a healthy dose of good humor that contrasts sharply with the arrogant bitterness of T. Rex's Marc Bolan.

"America has kept our feet on the ground," Holder says. "We've got to start from scratch. Coming to America has tightened our act. In Europe we can do a lot of clowning around. Here we've had to work on the playing."

BUT HE DOES feel that time is on Slade's side, now that the band is beginning to attract the kind of audience it needs in North America: "The younger kids, who don't compare us to the Beatles and Stones. Those bands are from the '60s, and, sure, the kids know about them, but they don't identify. A lot of people don't seem to realize there's a new generation of rock 'n' roll fans — the new cycle has begun, the sixth cycle."

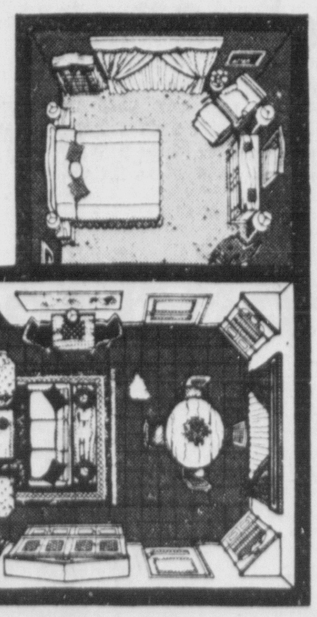

The sixth cycle?

"Sure, this whole thing started in the '20s, with Al Jolson. He was the first pop star, a freak for his time. Everybody thought he was mad to black up and ad lib on stage. The '70s are the sixth cycle since then."

The way Slade sees it, they can't lose. And they may be right.

The Binge Of Music By Mozart

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

NEW YORK — At or near the top of the classical record listings every year is the music of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, that remarkable genius, who died in Vienna at the age of 35 in 1791.

In the months just before Christmas, Philips demonstrated its own commercial judgment that 1973 will be no exception by importing no fewer than nine records of Mozart's instrumental music, a veritable feast of Mozart.

ONE OF THE favorites surely must be Mozart's Serenade in B Flat "Gran Partita" written for two oboes, two clarinets, two basset horns, four horns, two bassoons and double base (8 39 734).

It is beautifully played by the Netherlands Wind Ensemble conducted by Edo de Waart, one of the most interesting groups now recording.

Written in 1881, the year he ended his 10-year musical bondage in Saltzburg to the Prince Archbishop Collorado, the serenade almost celebrates the break with several innovations —among them the use of four horns instead of two, the use of basset horns and the employment of a double bass, a string instrument, instead of a wind instrument, the double bassoon.

Mozart's early and late symphonies provide a striking contrast.

Mozart completed his first symphony when he was 9. Most of the others were written in the first half of his life. The last 17 years saw only 10, including the famous last three, Nos. 39, 40 and 41, in 1788, three years before his death.

THE ITALIAN I Musici group records four of the earlier ones (6500 535) from the years 1770, 1771 and 1772. They are decorative, fresh and charming in the idiom of the time when the young composer was coming to grips with the symphonic form.

Colin Davis and the London Symphony Orchestra record two of the last three Nos. 39 and 40 in which the mature Mozart has moved into another world of profound self-expression and taken the symphony with him. (6500 559).

The serenade "Eine Kleine Nacht Music," written in Vienna in 1887, is a magical work of the mature Mozart that has become perhaps the most familiar of his works, a short statement that has come to epitomize the whole.

I Musici puts it on record again along with the last and best of his five violin concertos, all written in 1775 while he was in Saltzburg, and the short Adagio and Fugue in C Minor. Soloist Roberto Michelucci (6500 537).

I MUSICI WAS formed in 1952 when 12 students at the Academy of Santa Cecilia in Rome banded together to play for their own pleasure and then gave their first public concert. So began one of the finest music ensembles playing.

In the present series, they also made two records of Mozart's divertimente (6500 536) and (6500 538).

The musical divertisement has always been popular in Austria for social and family occasions, and Mozart used them for creative experiments. They are as their name implies — light pieces, charming foretastes of the Mozart genius.

MOVING ON TO another orchestra, the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields under Neville Mariner, we have Mozart's flute concerto in G played by Claude Monteux and his oboe concerto in C played by Neil Black, both on one record (6500 379).

Also with the Academy is another record (6500 380) containing the Concerto for Flute and Harp in C played by Monteux and harpist Isian Ellis and the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat for oboe, clarinet, horn, bassoon and orchestra. The soloists are Black, oboe; Jack Brymer, clarinet; Alan Civil, horn, and Michael Chapman, bassoon.

The performances are excellent.

Each time I join the skimming gulls
And soar across the Golden Gate
I think of David Strauss and hope

All safely blinded by Big Brother,
I hope the Devil's safety man
Is that same guy and not some other!

John Davidson Enjoys Rustic Life With Family

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Davidson, who plays Sally Field's befuddled husband on "The Girl With Something Extra," is definitely one of California's horsey set.

John and his wife, Jackie, live in a picture book community, Hidden Hills. It is about 30 miles north of Hollywood and composed only of residences with repose on acres of rolling hills.

Whitewashed fences, stables and corals abound. Almost every family owns at least one horse. John keeps two Arabian saddle horses on his property.

HE OWNS TWO houses, one across the street from the other. His father lives in one of them, where John hung his hat as a bachelor. It is surrounded by 2½ acres of greensward and trees.

John's house has five acres of grounds.

Inside and out John's home brings to mind the Ponderosa ranch house of the "Bonanza" television series. It is rustic in design with paneled walls in every room. The furniture is comfortable, utilitarian; a mixture of early American and genuine antiques.

Arrival of the Davidson children forced John to add three rooms to the house, increasing its size by a third.

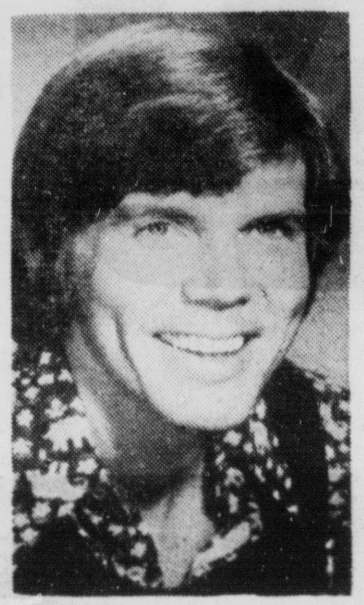

THE NEW ADDITIONS are a larger dining room and two bedrooms. One other bedroom has been converted into a music room where John rehearses for his frequent appearances in night clubs, in concert and for road show musical products of "Oklahoma," "Music Man," "Carousel" and "Camelot."

He and Jackie are the parents of John Jr., 3, and Jennifer, who recently celebrated her first birthday.

Davidson is a city boy from Pittsburgh, Pa., but he wants his own children to be brought up in a country atmosphere. He thinks having animals around is a healthy experience for them.

THERE ARE EIGHT sheep, four ducks and a gaggle of chickens on the property. John thinks of the animals as pets and therefore cannot bring himself to eat the eggs laid by his hens, much less fricassee the chickens.

The Davidson household includes an enormous English sheep dog, Shannon, and a tiny Maltese terrier, Tampa. Tampa goes on trips with the family. Shannon stays home.

JOHN DAVIDSON
Of the horsey set

John is an easy-going man, still in his 30s, whose hobby is raising Arabian thoroughbreds on a ranch in Northern California.

HE AND JACKIE go for long rides astride their own horses every weekend on miles of unfenced trails. They are buying a pony for John Jr.

A housekeeper-cook makes life easier for Jackie. John avoids mucking out the stables by hiring a neighborhood teenager who earns a handy living caring for other horsey families in the area.

But John does feed the horses at the crack of dawn and again in the evening.

IN ADDITION TO riding together, John and Jackie are members of the nearby Calabasas Tennis Club where they try to play at least once a week. In addition to being man and wife, there is a strong bond of friendship between John and Jackie. Togetherness is a way of life with them.

Jackie is up early in the morning to have breakfast with John who makes the long freeway drive to Columbia Studios, arriving at 7:30. He is usually kept hopping on the set until 7:30 in the evening. But Jackie waits dinner for him every night.

During production breaks John packs up his family and heads for skiing areas. His favorite is Heavenly Valley near Lake Tahoe.

"THE GIRL WITH Something Extra" is one of the few successful shows to make its debut this season. John says the NBC situation comedy is gradually including more dramatic stories.

Between his long hours on the set and his outdoor activities at home John has little time for social functions.

It's just as well. Not too many Hollywood performers enjoy the rustic life.

From Unlikely Beginnings Came Danish Master Of The Fairytale

He was born April 2, 1805, in the slums of Odense, on the island of Fyn, Denmark, the son of a poor shoemaker and his superstitious, almost illiterate wife.

His grandfather was insane, and his grandmother, a pathological liar, spoiled him. A sensitive child, he preferred daydreaming and playing with a puppet theatre to associating with other children or learning a trade.

From this ill-starred childhood rose Hans Christian Andersen, the man whose writings produced some of literature's best-loved and most widely-read tales, many of which reveal an optimistic belief in the victory of goodness, beauty and harmony.

Moreover, in the majority of his stories, an autobiographical element is clearly distinguishable. One such," The Little Mermaid," will be seen as an animated special on Monday at 8 p.m. on the CBS Television Network. Richard Chamberlain is the narrator.

Much like his little mermaid, whose love for a human prince leads her to seek an immortal soul through human love, pain and selfless works, Andersen himself was a chronic — albeit, often times thwarted — seeker in life.

At the age of 11, after his father's death and his mother's remarriage, Andersen went to Copenhagen in search of his fortune. Although he succeeded in getting work there as a supernumerary at the Royal Theater, he nonetheless experienced great hardships. In 1822, Jonas Collin, one of the Royal's directors, took an interest in Andersen and raised enough money to send him to grammar school.

It was an unfortunate move. The school's headmaster made Andersen the butt of his humor and reduced the 17-year-old student to despair. Four years later, the headmaster moved to another school, taking Andersen with him. But he and his wife made life so miserable for Andersen that Collin arranged private tuition so that the boy might enter Copenhagen University.

Andersen's first book, "Youthful Attempts," was published in 1822 under the pen name William Christian Walter (his own first name bracketed by those of Shakespeare and Scott). In 1835, his first successful novel, "Improvisatoren," was printed, beginning his world fame.

While seeing "Improvisatoren" through press, Andersen began to write tales for children. "The Tinderbox," "Little Claus and Big Claus," "The Princess and the Pea," and "Little Ida's Flowers" appeared in the spring of 1835. Neither Andersen nor his Danish critics realized then that he had entered a field in which he was to become supreme master.

Andersen remained a bachelor, although he fell deeply in love many times; notably, with Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer. Forever the seeker, Andersen constantly traveled. While he regarded the house of Jonas Collin as his real home, he suffered greatly from never feeling entirely accepted by the family.

As with "The Little Mermaid," Andersens' later works centered around his experiences. When he died in 1875, he had no idea that his fairytales — many based on the happenings he had himself known or observed — would make his name immortal.

Columnists Barred From A TV Panel

By JAY SHARBUTT

A local version of public TV's "Washington Week in Review" is afoot at KCET-TV in Los Angeles. But there's a major difference in the type of journalists appearing on the show.

All are working newspaper reporters who get out each day and inspect documents, grill assorted politicians, bureaucrats and other miscreants.

Columnists — which in Washington are generally defined as those who munch on what others report — aren't invited on KCET's "Los Angeles Collective News Review."

"I DON'T WANT columnists," says Taylor Hackford, who produces the half-hour, once-a-month show. "The nature of this show is going to be pretty much hard news reporting.

"And I find that I don't get a lot of hard news when I read columns."

He says he wants only journalism's front-line troops because "we're trying to get some perspective and long-range repercussions of stories they've reported, as well as some of the behind-the-scenes things they haven't written about in their articles."

On last month's show, the stories ranged from campaign contributions in California's gubernatorial race to a move to recall a Los Angeles city councilman.

THE FOUR REPORTERS discussing their stories were from the Los Angeles Times, the Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram, the Santa Ana Register and the Northeast Newspapers chain.

Hackford, 29, says an important part of "News Review," which began last month, is that "one of the chairs is always open to a reporter from one of the suburban newspapers.

"Los Angeles, by its very nature, is all spread out and people here have less of a sense of community than they do in other major cities."

Hackford says he doesn't want reporters from Los Angeles' commercial TV stations on "News Review."

The major factor, he says, is that most don't have regular beats, or assignments, let alone air time for in-depth coverage.

"Print reporters, on the other hand, have beats," he said. "For example, Bill Boyarsky, the political reporter on the Times, knows Los Angeles, the city, the county, the state governments.

"He's there every day. And when you get a print reporter like that, someone who's immersed in a subject, I think people like this can provide a helluva lot more perspective than the people in the electronic media."

Jason Robards–Always Thinking

"I like him but I think there's a touch of madness in him. What bothers him? Why is he tortured? I've got to understand him," said Jason Robards.

He was talking about his role of Frank Elgin, the alcohol-plagued actor who is the central character in "The Country Girl." The new "Hallmark Hall of Fame" production of this Clifford Odets play, in which Robards co-stars with Shirley Knight Hopkins and George Grizzard, will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

Said Robards: "Elgin is an interesting character. He's known what it is to be on top but he's hit the bottle and has gone downhill. He's afraid. What does he feel inside? I have to know if I'm to do justice to the script."

SIDNEY CARROLL, who adapted the Odets drama for television, said of Robards: "It's a marvelous thing to watch him rehearse. He never does two things the same way. He's always thinking, always searching for the meaning behind the dialogue."

JASON ROBARDS
As Frank Elgin

Robards has played the role on the stage (most recently in a production featuring Grizzard which opened the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., in 1971).

But he says television requires a different technique. "On stage I play a bit more broadly; for television, I reverse gears and I must make one line, one expression and one move take the place of six I would use in the theater. The compression forces me to get deeper into the character so that he might come across to viewers more quickly."

Robards says he approaches each acting assignment with three wishes: "I hope I have a good director; I hope I'm teamed with a good cast; and I hope I do a good job."

The tall, dark-haired actor says he decided to become a performer after reading O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" while serving in the Navy. "O'Neill, I think, is the greatest American playwright. I bet he never had a moment of peace in his life."

GROWING UP as the son of a famous stage and screen actor, Jason Robards Sr., did not preordain a show business career, Robards said. "I wasn't star struck. My father didn't bring his work home with him. I grew up in Hollywood, which in those days was a small town. I rode to school on a bicycle and I played baseball a lot. I wasn't the type to sit in a studio and watch Dad work.

"I was in the Navy for seven years — I was at Pearl Harbor the December day the Japanese attacked in 1941. When I decided to give acting a shot, I wrote to my father and told him of my decision. I'll never forget his reaction. He wrote back, 'It's a heartbreak, kid. But if you're going to do it, get some training. Don't hang around Hollywood studios.' I took his advice."

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

CBS has signed a new multi-year contract with the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association for exclusive television rights to the U.S. open championships, which it has broadcast for the past six years.

For the 1974-75 season NBC has acquired a Screen Gems one-hour series, "Born Free" based on the well-known Joy Adamson book about African lions and the movie's derived from same. Actors have not yet been cast. The series will be filmed in Kenya, home of Joy and George Adamson and lioness Elsa and her offspring.

The GE Theater two-hour special based on the career of baseball great Roy Campanella, whose career was cut short by a disabling auto accident, will be aired on CBS Feb. 22. Paul Winfield, playing Campanella, Ruby Dee and Lou Gossett have the leading roles in "It's Great to Be Alive." Campanella will appear in intro and epilogue sequences.

Diana Douglas and Jim Davis join Moses Gunn as principal players in the new ABC "The Cowboys" series due on the network Feb. 6.

Hugh Downs, late of the "Tonight" show and "Concentration," will be back on NBC's air March 14 as narrator for "The World You Never See," a documentary about nature marvels made visible only through microphotography.

ABC Sports has acquired exclusive telecast rights to the 1974 Canadian Open Golf Championship, which will be played at Mississuagua, Ontario. Third and final rounds will be aired July 27-28.

A Rodgers Legacy For The Children

When Richard Rodgers created a musical version of "Cinderella" with the late Oscar Hammerstein II, he expressed this wish: "I'd like this show to be something for the children of the world forever. We hope it will be enjoyed by future audiences everywhere."

"Cinderella" will be rebroadcast Sunday at 7:30 p.m. as a 90-minute special on the CBS Television Network.

The special, originally televised in 1965, stars Lesley Ann Warren, Ginger Rogers, Walter Pidgeon and Celeste Holm. Also featured in the cast are Pat Carroll, Barbara Ruick and Stuart Damon.

Rodgers noted that "Cinderella," the only musical he and Hammerstein ever wrote exclusively for television, required "just as much work writing, planning, casting . . . as there is in a Broadway show," adding that "in fact, an original television musical takes as much time to prepare as an original Broadway musical."

He found that television offers many advantages over the stage, however. "The camera can do everything that the eyes and ears of the theatre can, while also being able to get closer to the subjects. In the theatre you arrive at a close-up in a more synthetic fashion."

Rodgers, as executive producer, devoted close personal attention to every aspect of the production of "Cinderella," from the original planning session with producer-director Charles S. Dubin, through weeks of rehearsal, to the final day of taping.

Sheree North Has Role Of An Early Feminist

Sheree North was reading a book between scenes on the set of NBC Television Network's "Hec Ramsey" series where production was taking place along Denver Street.

While extras scurried around attired for the turn-of-the-century Western series, Sheree was dressed similarly. But it seemed somewhat incongruous for her to be reading "Free and Female" by Barbara Seamen.

The book was leisure reading but, coincidently, helped Sheree with her role as the Widow Helpenstall, a 1902 militant feminist in the "Dead Heat" segment of "Hec Ramsey," to be colorcast Sunday on NBC-TV.

Sheree was so earnest about playing the widow believably that she did some research: "I went around watching people make speeches and read books by Betty Freidan and Germaine Greer. All woman should read about the women's movement because it's about us."

CLORIS LEACHMAN
Not a defeatist

Seamstress Shirley

Shirley Knight Hopkins, co-star in the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama, "The Country Girl," on NBC-TV Tuesday, does her own sewing and cooking when she is at home in England. "I even sew skirts for myself and my daughter Sophie," she said.

Cloris Leachman Sinks Teeth Into A Meaty 'Migrant' Role

"How do I look?" demanded Cloris Leachman.

In truth, she probably never looked worse. Her hair, half in and half out of a ponytail was held up with a piece of string. Her dress looked like a tired accordion. Her bobbysox were dusty and her sneakers needed a bath.

"I wanted them to black out my teeth," she confided, "but they really thought that was one too much. I think it would help me look terrible, though."

LOOKING TERRIBLE was indeed the object for the Academy Award-winner. She was doing her best to look her worst for her role as the overworked, overtired, mother of a large family of migrant farm workers in Tennessee Williams' "The Migrants," the season's second "CBS Playhouse 90," to be telecast Sunday at 9 p.m. on the CBS Television Network.

Dressing down to the part was the least demand on Miss Leachman for this role. She had a very delicate self-imposed line to walk, in order to create a believable character.

"I want to create a feeling of movement, not of depression," explained Miss Leachman, during production. "These desperate, exhausted people don't wait on the sidelines of life. They play the game — every day of their lives. They may lose, but they play."

HOW WELL SHE was toeing the mark was a question Miss Leachman asked herself before every scene, and asked crew and cast members after each take. She demanded to know if they thought she was "firm, poignant, real."

"It's hard to convey this idea," she said. "I'm not going for values that are sad. My character is not a defeatist, any more than you could call Ma Joad a pathetic defeatist in 'The Grapes of Wrath.' My migrant mother is always just a bit larger than the tragedies that strike her down. People could start to cry at any part of this drama, but not with any help from me. I don't intend to play it for tears. I want no sympathy. I'm a tough lady, you understand.

"Usually, I just let myself sink into a role, but this part I had to fight. This woman arouses my natural pity. But pity is a bad diving board for an actress. I'll try understanding instead."

AN IRONSIDE EPISODE

Fay Spain Is Back After Long Absence

Television is better than ever in a definite, but subtle way that can be detected only by an insider, says an insider who has been away from it for a while.

She is actress Fay Spain, blonde, shapely, attractive and — perceptive.

Some 15 years ago Miss Spain was all over the screen, both small and large. Movie-wise, she was Darling Jill in "God's Little Acre" and Rod Steiger's co-star in "Al Capone." On TV she guest-starred in "Playhouse 90," "Lus Video Theater," "The Eleventh Hour" and did 11 roles on "NBC Matinee Theater."

THEN SHE GOT married, inherited her husband's four youngsters by a previous marriage and left acting for homemaking. Now, with the kids grown and more time on her hands, she has returned to acting. She plays a lush who used to be the campus cutie in Ironside's high school graduating class in the "Ironside" colorcast of Thursday on the NBC Television Network.

More or less forgotten by casting directors, she can't get roles as she used to — by waiting for her phone to ring. Instead she has to go out and keep auditon appointments set up by her agent.

She went on interviews for roles in the motion pictures "King of Marvin Gardens" and "The Last Picture Show." She didn't get the roles, but she did get an inkling of that change that has made TV as well as movies better than ever. This change she noticed even more in subsequent interviews for roles on television.

THE CHANGE, said Miss Spain, is in the casting offices.

"In the old days," she explained, "they didn't care what you were like as long as you looked the part and had the credits. In the old days we used to dress up for these adutions and they'd make us as uncomfortable as possible."

She added, "now you go in for an interview and they just chat with you. They're more interested in your character than your credits. They're more interested in what you're really like than what you look like."

AS A RESULT, said Miss Spain, television dramas as well as movie dramas, are more frequently getting the right person for each role.

"And it shows," she said, "in the dramas that are coming out. They're marvelous."

In short, Miss Spain indicated, TV is better than ever because casting is better than ever.

RAQUEL WELCH stars as a roller-derby queen who has the whole team going in circles when she races after romance in "Kansas City Bomber," the "Thursday Night Movie" to be seen at 9 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10. It is the first television screening for the action picture.

'The Kid' Is Eager To Retire

Oldtimers among us will have no trouble remembering Jackie Coogan in "The Kid," but they might have trouble accepting the fact that "The Kid" is planning his retirement at age 65.

Jackie made his film debut in the title role of "The Kid," a silent movie starring Charlie Chaplin. That was 55 years ago. Coogan was a 4-year-old angel-faced tot then.

Since then he has appeared in almost countless movies, many of them silents, including "Peck's Bad Boy," "Oliver Twist," "Johnny Get Your Gun" and "Boy of Flanders." Next came his talking pictures — among them, "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "Million Dollar Legs," "Kilroy Was Here." Then came television.

Jackie figures he's been in some 1,400 TV shows before and after his run in the "Adams Family" series six years ago.

Coogan will be seen on NBC-TV's "Ironside" colorcast of "Class of '40" Thursday as a garrulous classmate of Chief Ironside (series star Raymond Burr) at their high school reunion.

Angel-faced no longer is the word for Coogan. Balding is. Also moustachioed. Even beefy.

"I've been in show business 55 years," said Jackie during an "Ironside" break, "I'm 59 years old and I plan to keep working until I'm 65. Then I'm going to retire. I've got 50 acres on the gulf at La Paz, Mexico and I'm going to hunt and fish."

Jackie figures he's entitled.

"In all this time," he said, "the only vacation I've had is the four years and 11 months I put in with the Air Force in World War II."

The Villain Role Jack Palance Couldn't Reject

"When I do interviews," says actor Jack Palance, "I'm frequently asked the same question I was asked as far back as 20 years ago. 'How do you feel having the voice of a poet and the face of a pugilist?'

"Well, I've learned to live with this tough-looking face, and I don't let it interfere with my personality at all."

Palance adds fangs to his most frightening scowl and portrays the potent archetype of evil in the film "Dracula," which will be seen for the first time anywhere on Friday at 9 p.m. in color on the CBS Television Network.

"I HAVEN'T ALWAYS played villains," says Palance, discussing his reaction to being stereotyped as a motion picture heavy. "But villains usually have the meatiest roles and provide the actor with more dimension than playing the 'good guy.' "

As a performer, Palance takes villainy seriously.

"It's not enough to play bad men," he explains. "you must justify all behavior, including badness. That way you contribute something worthwhile. I feel that there's a large part of myself in every role I play. That's why I sometimes take a long time figuring out what I'm supposed to do."

"DRACULA" WAS a role that seemed almost perfect for Palance to play, although in recent years he has been trying to free himself from the image of a bad guy. As Quincy Whitmore in "Chato's Land," he portrayed a complex, prejudiced man unable to adjust to his times — but essentially sympathetic. In "The Horsemen," he portrayed a 75-year-old character role.

Featured spots on television talk shows, singing and reading poetry, have all been working towards changing his image.

"I've become bored with playing smiling psychopaths," he admits. Nonetheless, "Dracula" and the chance to play a character done by other actors over the years, yet make him a unique villain, was too much of a challenge for Palance to pass up.

"This new version stays very close to the original novel by Bram Stoker. We have added certain things to show Dracula as a real man back in the 15th Century. The fictional character, historians now point out, is based on a real 15th Century Rumanian prince whose name was Vlad Tepes. I think he was one of the maddest killers in the history of mankind. There, you have a villain, and you wonder how a man became so cruel."

Dan Dailey Guests

Dan Dailey will make a guest appearance on "The Odd Couple" with Tony Randall and Jack Klugman.

"GOOD TIMES," a new comedy series, stars John Amos and Esther Rolle as James and Florida Evans. The series, which premiers on Friday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10, deals with the life, joys and sorrows of a black family living in a Chicago ghetto and their struggle to make a better life for themselves.

Rock And Country Fans Compared

Crash Craddock, who guest-stars on NBC-TV's new musical series, "Music Country, U.S.A." Thursday, was a rock star before switching to country songs.

He compares rock buffs to country fans this way: "Country fans will drive many miles to see a favorite performer, whereas rock fans will usually wait until the performer gets to their city."

The Statlers

The Statler Brothers, who guest-stars on NBC-TV's late-night 90-minute country music special, "Johnny Cash's Country Music," are neither Statlers nor brothers. But they were all born and raised in the Shenandoah Valley and still live in their hometown of Staunton, Va.

Radar To Rescue Of Doomed Birds

Two popular and distinctly different members of the entertainment world recently pooled their resources — with "mother nature" as the sole beneficiary.

Involved were Gary Burghoff, popular stage, screen and television star, and Busch Gardens-Los Angeles, the scenic family entertainment center in San Fernando Valley. At stake was the care and future welfare of 13 injured birds.

The cooperation resulted in the presentation of 12 seagulls and terns plus one mallard duck by Burghoff to Busch Gardens, which is renowned as the "home" of more than 2,000 birds represending 25 species from all over the world.

FOR THE PAST few years Burghoff, who portrays the character of "Radar" in the top-rated CBS television program "MASH", and his wife Janet have been devoted to the care and rehabilitation of injured birds at their home on the beach at Malibu.

"Like many other people, I preached the cause of ecology and conservation for many years without actually making any physical contributions of my own," Burghoff said. "One day an opportunity presented itself and I have been happier ever since."

That oppportunity arose when two small children brought some injured birds to the Burghoffs' to be taken care of in a small aviary that they had for raising finches.

Soon, word spread around the community. And birds were being brought in at a rapid pace. Burghoff began getting calls from as far as neighboring Ventura County, requesting he come pick up injured birds.

TO ADEQUATELY care for this increasing influx of birds, Burghoff built an open-top aviary (15-foot diameter with 8-foot high wall) on his two acres.

During the past three years, Burghoff has treated and released many different birds, including doves, pigeons, sandpipers, Pacific ground pelicans, Arctic loons and nearly every type of native gull.

With the help of a neighbor, Dr. Eric Hughes, a veterinarian with the Pacific Coast Animal Hospital, he has treated birds for almost every injury and disease imaginable.

However, as Burghoff points out, when one works at his profession 12 hours a day, there isn't sufficient time to meet all outside needs. "I finally decided that we had to find a place with the facilities, interest and dedication to care for the birds," he noted.

ACCORDING TO Burghoff, Busch Gardens was the obvious answer.

"My wife and I have long been admirers of Busch Gardens — not only for its inherent beauty and ecological concern, but also as one of the finest places in Southern California for the care and preservation of wildlife."

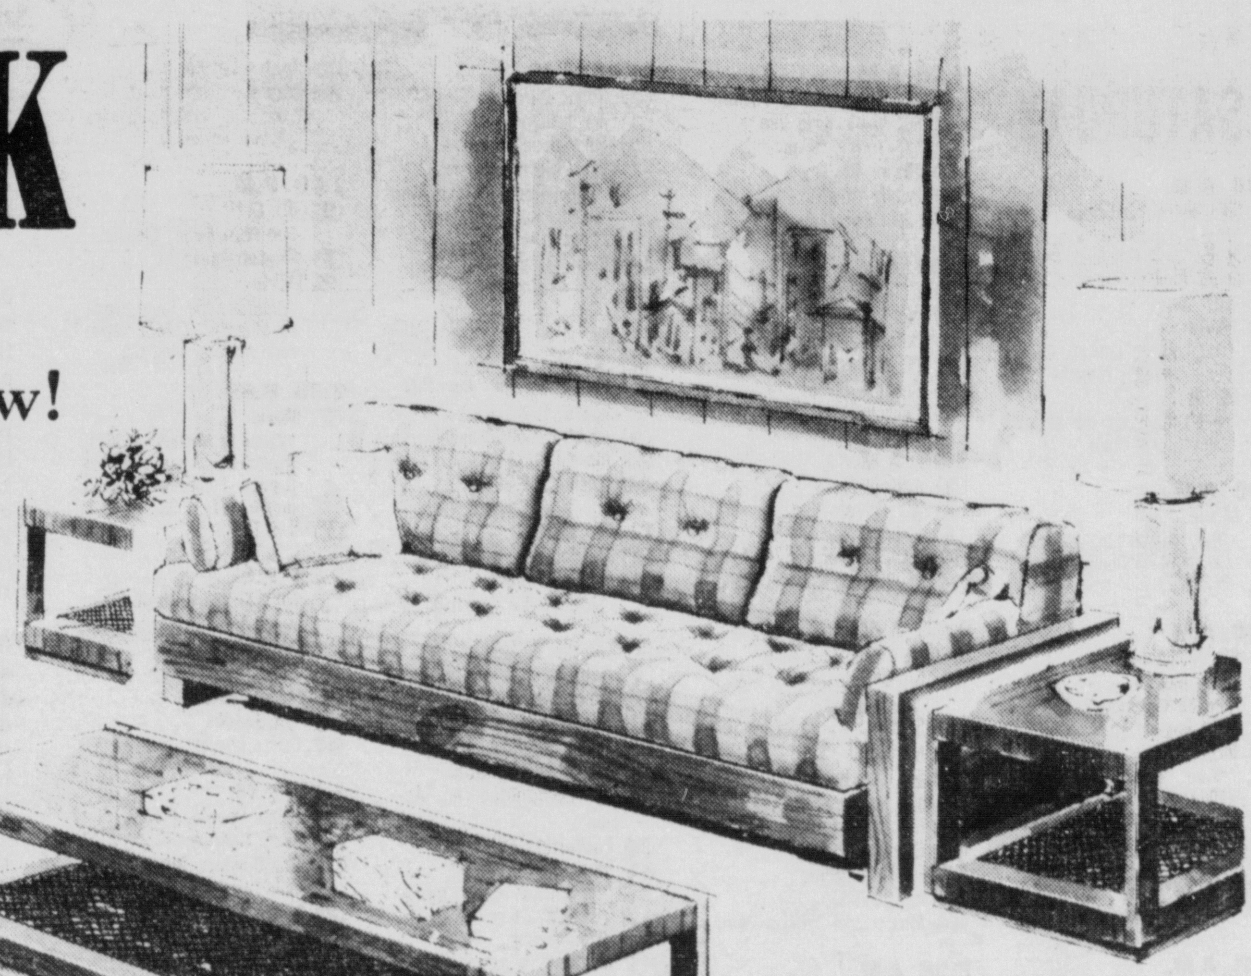

After several discussions with Cliff Prator, zoo manager of Busch Gardens, the presentation was made. Accepting for Busch Gardens was Jack Massae, general manager.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ANTHONY QUINN

Don't you think a child should grow up and then decide for himself what religion he believes in?—F. R., Danville, Ill.

● No, I don't. I believe you must know the form of a thing before you decide anything about it. Children should learn a religion so that they'll have a foundation from which to spring, from which to change if they so decide. Although I'm not Catholic, my children are being brought up Catholic. Later on, if they want to change religions the way I did—fine.

FOR IRVING WALLACE, author

How long does it take you to research a book such as "The Word"?—John Newlin, Santa Rosa, Calif.

● It took me ten years—two years full-time, eight years part-time—which included nine trips to Europe, 58 interviews with Bible experts, and endless poking around the back streets of Europe. I had to become an expert myself in Bible publishing, archaeology, Jesus, carbon dating—and still remember I was writing a suspense thriller. It was hard work but great fun and a memorable experience.

FOR BART STARR, former football star

Would you ever come back to football as a coach?—Lee Pollard, Bethel, N.C.

● I'm not particularly planning to get into coaching, but the right opportunity might change my mind.

FOR CAROL BURNETT

I read that you got straight A's in school. Did your grades come easy?—Barbara Cunningham, Pocatello, Idaho

● I was a B student. Grades came easy in subjects I liked. The others came hard.

FOR SUSAN SAINT JAMES, star of "McMillan & Wife"

Is it true that you sew most of your clothes?—Mauri Forsberg, Yuma, Ariz.

● I used to, but I don't have time now, what with the series and my baby. I wear blue jeans a lot.

FOR GOV. GEORGE WALLACE

Do you have any hope of ever walking again?—Mrs. Rita Hurst, Lancaster, Pa.

● From what neurosurgeons have told me, I'm afraid I can't expect to walk again.

FOR JUDY COLLINS, folk singer

I've heard you're going to quit folk singing and one-night concert tours like your friend, Joni Mitchell. Is this true?—J. B., Buffalo, N.Y.

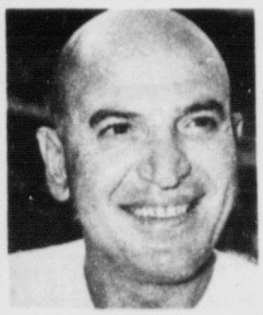

● I will not quit singing, but I will quit touring for a while. I want to spend more time putting together my records and writing new songs. I also want to devote more time to my friends.

FOR ARTHUR O'CONNELL, actor

I remember you years ago in "Citizen Kane" with Orson Welles. What was he like to work with?—S. Vogler, San Antonio, Texas

● We all realized he was a genius. And he was very patient and gentle—not at all the opinionated man he's been made out to be. Many times we'd do a scene and he'd get back and see it through the camera and say, "I was all wrong!" and we'd start over. He was very open-minded.

FOR TELLY SAVALAS, star of "Kojak"

Is it true that you shave your head daily?—David Gomia, Middletown, Ohio

● I shave it every day and have done so ever since I played Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." If I didn't shave it now, nobody would recognize me.

FOR PETER RODINO, JR. (D-N.J.),
House Judiciary Committee Chairman

Why does your committee need $1 million to figure out whether or not President Nixon should be impeached?—D. A. L., Louisville, Ky.

● Any impeachment inquiry—but particularly one concerning the President of the United States—involves many uncharted and untested issues. It's necessary to assemble a staff of the highest quality and rectitude, including persons with extensive judicial experience, to assist in carrying out a proper and complete investigation. And this costs money.

The Top Five Women Golfers:

Style, Grace—And Now Big Money, Too

By Helen Dorsey

"I want to be treated like a woman."—Kathy Whitworth

Veteran golfer Patty Berg, a stocky, grizzled, gray-haired lady who turned pro in 1940, remembers the old days well: "We had only three tournaments, five professional women players, and the total prize money was about $500. In the Women's Western Open in 1941, we played all week for $100."

Today, lady golfers win small fortunes in tournaments sponsored by large corporations and receive abundant television exposure and publicity.

For a close look at today's five top LPGA money winners, FAMILY WEEKLY interviewed the girls as they awaited the upcoming $100,000 Sears Women's Classic, to be held February 4-10 at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

So move over, Arnie and Jack—let's hear what the girls have to say.

KATHY WHITWORTH
(1973 EARNINGS: $82,864)

Kathrynne Whitworth, 1973 top money winner, is sometimes called the Jack Nicklaus of the women's tour. She is ramrod-straight and lanky, 35 years old, and walks with an easy lope. She has the face of a pioneer lady and speaks directly, with a Texas drawl. Kathy, the perfect example of the longtime pro, exercises great discipline in her game and has a low tolerance of anything that may interfere with it.

"The most important thing is your attitude about the game and what your purpose is out there. To be a good player, you must be able to concentrate well. You don't always hit the ball perfectly, so you have to be able to learn to adjust. You can't let outside things interfere with what you're doing."

Kathy enjoys the company of men. Her tastes are definite. "I like mature men, men older than I am. I like sports-oriented men, but I think it's more important that a man be a strong individual because I'm so independent. However," Kathy added, "I don't like men who are overpowering to the point that they are obnoxious. I have a strong personality, and to complement me and respect my views I need a strong man. I'm not trying to wear the pants. And I'm certainly not a Women's Libber. But I want to be treated like a woman. At the same time, I'm not helpless, because I can do things for myself. Therefore, I think mutual respect is important. I've found several fellows like that, but they are very rare indeed."

Success has given Kathy the opportunity to buy two homes—one in Denton, Texas, the other on Padre Island, off Texas, where she enjoys her hobby of digging for old Spanish coins washed ashore from shipwrecked galleons.

JUDY RANKIN
(1973 EARNINGS: $72,989)

Judy Rankin, the second biggest winner, is the only married girl in the top five. Petite (5-3) and blonde, the 105-pounder has been called a "Nordic spark plug" because of her powerhouse swing and deadly chip shot. The 27-year-old, who also lives in Texas, started playing golf at age five.

Wide World

"I used to cry a lot over my golf."
—Judy Rankin

Judy is very emphatic about her reasons for pursuing the the tour. "Money. Of course I enjoy the game and I really am addicted to the competition. But I certainly wouldn't do it to the extent I do or work as hard at it or put my family out if it were not for the money."

Judy's husband Walter, or "Yippie" as she calls him, and their five-year-old-son Tuey are a great support to Judy, accompanying her on many of the tours. "I'm amazed how well the married girls are able to play because of all they have to do before they ever get on the course," says Yippie. "Judy has to see that Tuey and I are both fed and worry about getting baby-sitters."

Yippie – a former football player, now an insurance executive—understands the game of golf fairly well, but not the mental concentration it requires. "You have to keep your composure. At first, I used to want to tell her, 'Stomp 'em in the ground!' It took me a couple of years to get over that."

Judy and Yippie do a good deal of Monday-morning quarterbacking over her mistakes after she's had time to cool off. "Sometimes I welcome what he has to say," says Judy, "but sometimes I can't seem to get my head together and we have a conflict simply because I'm not open to any discussion!"

Judy is a perfectionist. "I used to cry a lot over my golf. It's always been a very serious part of my life. It was a hardship on my entire family, even down to my aunts and grandparents. But my father's idea was that if I could do something well, it would enable me to have a better life."

Still, she looks to partial retirement—or at least the luxury someday of saying, "I don't feel like playing this week."

SANDRA PALMER
(1973 EARNINGS: $55,439)

Sandra Palmer, third top winner, is compact in build and an excellent all-round athlete. Another Texan, Sandy ranks with the best shotmakers in the game.

A pretty girl (she was a beauty queen and cheerleader in college), she is very direct, almost terse, until she sizes you up. She shares an apartment with roommates in Dallas.

"If you're just interested in watching pretty girls, you ought to go to a beauty contest or a burlesque show."

Sandy tries hard to pace herself. "Traveling takes its toll. And I tend to practice too much, which is pretty exhausting by the end of the year. But I really do enjoy the fame and I can't think of anything else I'd rather Mega-Vitamin Reducing Plan Is Guaranteed To Work: . . . even if you are a big eater . . . even if you are not physically active . . . and even if you've got a slow basal metabolism rate!

Tremendously More Potent than All the Famous "Popular Diets"

Far More Effective than All the Advertised "Inch Reducers"

More than 85,000 men and women have used Mega-Vitamin Reducing Plans. And scores of delighted users from every state in the U.S. and Canada have enjoyed fantastic success with this outstanding weight loss plan.

NO WAITING! TRIPLE TABLET PLAN WORKS QUICKLY!

You lose weight faster and more permanently because you tailor the Mega-Vitamin Plan to fit your body thus maximizing your weight loss within the briefest possible time.

YOUR COMPLETE MEGA-VITAMIN PLAN LEAVES NOTHING TO CHANCE!

Now, because you make the Mega-Vitamin Plan adjust to you (rather than you adjusting to it) you can avoid overstimulating yourself with wasteful supplements and unnecessary foods or nutrients. And, as importantly, you will not understimulate your weight loss. After all, you may be among the many who require a greater body jolt to get your weight loss rolling.

THE MEGA-VITAMIN FORMULA HELPS THE CELLS OF YOUR BODY TO WORK EFFICIENTLY IN THE DIGESTION AND METABOLISM OF YOUR FOOD!

These newly developed Mega-Vitamins were created especially for this reducing plan. And although the formula of a dozen important ingredients contains more than the daily minimum requirements . . . a normal, healthy adult may enjoy them without any side effects when taken as directed because your Mega-Vitamins are not ANOREXIANTS.

POWERFULLY POTENT FORMULA WORKS EVEN WHILE YOU SLEEP!

In addition, your Mega-Vitamins contain laboratory tested ingredients that will help appease your appetite and counteract hunger. Your Mega-Vitamin formula is combined with one of the strongest diet aids available without a prescription.

SELECT THE SPEED OF YOUR WEIGHT LOSS!

Before starting, you will actually determine the speed of your weight loss. You can speed it up or slow it down . . . whichever you prefer. Because no two people are alike — your actual weight loss will depend on your body metabolism, daily living pattern, etc.

EAT HEARTY! EAT WELL! NO DRASTIC CHANGES!

The Mega-Vitamin Plan encourages you to enjoy many of the same foods you now eat. Mouthwatering meats, scrumptious salads, delicious vegetables, hearty potatoes — even breads and luscious desserts are definitely acceptable.

LEADING MEDICAL AUTHORITIES PROVIDE CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE!

Yes, ask your physician about this Mega-Vitamin Plan. Doctors know that a successful weight reducing plan offering a PERMANENT WEIGHT LOSS must provide for a well-balanced program of protein, fats and carbohydrates, And, you must maintain an adequate amount of vitamins and minerals. Your Mega-Vitamin tablets help you achieve your goal by supplementing the diet regimen which, of course, plays the major weight loss role by restricting your calorie intake.

The Top Five Women Golfers

do. I'm smart enough to know that you can't do it forever, so I try to work hard at it while I'm doing it."

Touring, she says, makes marriage pretty well out of the question. "It would take an exceptional man, someone who would not be too demanding. Because if you're going to play a competitive sport, it has to be an all-round job. And if you're married, that's another full-time job, too. Besides, men don't want you to be away from home. If I could find someone wealthy enough who could go with me, it might work out nicely. I like athletic guys, guys who like being outdoors, with some intelligence. I like people who have some compassion for what I'm trying to do."

Sandy feels some of the other women golfers work too hard to project "the feminine image on tour. Of course, people enjoy coming out and watching attractive women. I mean, who wouldn't? But sometimes that's overdone and detracts from the game. Most people come out to watch good golf shots. If you're just interested in watching pretty girls, you ought to go to a beauty contest or a burlesque show."

Sandy does, however, enjoy dressing up off the course, enjoys going out and meeting people. "Sometimes people get the wrong impression because they think you're in town to have a good time. That can be overbearing and strained. But most of the girls know how to handle themselves very well."

"Some of the words I can't repeat. In a sense, I kick myself."
—Betty Burfeindt

BETTY BURFEINDT
(1973 EARNINGS: $51,030)

Betty Burfeindt, fourth big-money winner, is Irish and red-headed, with a temper to match. A creature of sunny and stormy moods, the 27-year-old New Yorker (she lives now in Palm Springs) gives herself pep talks on the course to help her improve her game. "Some of the words I can't repeat," she says, smiling slyly. "In a sense, I kick myself, as if to say, 'Get yourself in gear and get going!'"

Betty is a determined competitor. She entered the ranks of professional golfers after winning a mink coat in the 1970 Sears Tournament. Her greatest test of courage came in 1972, when she nearly died from a thyroid condition. She is also constantly fighting attacks of fatigue due to a metabolic condition.

Betty claims having a temper helps her game. "If your temper takes over, that's no good, but I think if you get mad enough at yourself, you can do what you want to do. I just don't think you can go along staying only on one level."

Betty's interests beyond golf include going to the movies, dancing, and decorating doors using decoupage (the practice of gluing pictures to wood and then covering them with layers of varnish). Like many of the girls on tour, Betty feels a need to be alone. "I socialize with the girls, but I don't hang around any one particular group. I definitely have to get off by myself sometimes."

CAROL MANN
(1973 EARNINGS: $47,734)

The Veruschka of the links, Carol Mann stands 6-3. She just misses being pretty, but she makes up for it by her kooky personality. She lives alone in a Baltimore suburb, loves music and finds therapy by strutting around her apartment listening to rock music. She thrives on driving her Mercedes "as fast as I can," and would someday just adore to "put a knapsack on my back and roam the world."

Ten years ago, when the 32-year-old blonde turned pro, she longed for "fame, fortune and travel." Now she finds golf "the best way I can express myself. I look on it as an art—a creative action. It's wonderful to be able to play golf skillfully and beautifully and to have the self-discipline while you're producing these beautiful shots."

Carol is introspective, and she admits this hinders her game (she has had to stop reading so many psychoanalytical books). "I've been coming out of an emotional funk. I was full of doubts and fears about everything. My confidence just got shattered. It affected my game to the point I was not able to put mind over matter. Now I feel that I'm able to do that, and my game has improved."

"I look on golf as an art—a creative action."—Carol Mann

Carol, predictably, is self-conscious about her height. "I used to walk into a room, and when someone would remark about my height, I'd want to fall into a hole."

Until recently, one of Carol's chief diversions was playing the flute. But she lost "the damn thing in a car. I've thought about taking up the piccolo. The thought of me playing a piccolo is so wonderfully incongruous!"

Stop kidding yourself!

Doesn't it strike you as strange that somebody as down-to-earth as yourself would think that if you close your eyes to serious questions, they will go away?

Yet there are plenty of people who spend their lives kidding themselves about the things that really matter. What things? Well, religion for one. For many, religion is like electricity. They know what it is until you ask them. And even when they can define religion, they don't see it as the most basic relationship of their lives.

If religion up until now has meant little or nothing to you, isn't it time you stopped kidding yourself? "It's all make-believe," you say. But what if it isn't? Write for our free pamphlet: "Religion Means God and Me." No one will call.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

©1973 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

In this picture, everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. No way. He's Gerry Atric, over-the-hill hippie. Irons his hair twice daily. Cigarettes taste just as flat. Gimmick: Watching bowling pins "do their own thing, man." 2. Naomi Glowsoul. Gimmick: Uses so much body english that police have raided the place four times. 3. Nope. It's Angie "The Arm" Kugelman. Throws so hard three automatic pinsetting machines have quit. Smokes cigarettes so heavily filtered, he's like a man giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a rock. 4. Right. He just likes bowling, not gimmicks. Likes his cigarette honest and no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 5. Zooty Smith. Gimmick: Has worn same good luck clothes since he broke 125 in 1942. Smokes war surplus cigarettes and saves the tinfoil. 6. Whiz Kid Pringle. Developed math formula to bowl a perfect strike. Unfortunately releases ball on backswing.

Camel Filters. They're not for everybody (but they could be for you).

Models have perfect faces, and there isn't a thing you can learn from them, right? Wrong! Like all of us, they're not at their best in the morning—until they "put on" their faces. Let top model Sunny Griffin show you what she had to learn the hard way!

You Can Correct Your Facial Flaws (Top Models Do!)

By Rosalyn Abrevaya, Women's Editor

"Before." Cover girl Sunny Griffin looks like this until she "corrects" her features with makeup.

You may not care that you weren't born with an aquiline nose, sculpted chin and prominent cheekbones – the ultimate model. But if you've ever had a hankering to improve your looks, what a malevolent delight to discover that top fashion models have feature imperfections! Sunny Griffin (left), a super-model known for her perfect girl-next-door face, says that often people don't even realize she's a model unless she's had 15 minutes with her makeup bag of tricks. "On my first job, I arrived an hour early without any makeup and sat down quietly in a corner waiting for someone to tell me what to do. Nothing happened. Then I heard the photographer frantically calling my agency to complain that 'the model' hadn't arrived yet. I was too embarrassed to tell him it was me! I never appeared without some corrective makeup again."

Sunny describes her problems as "chronic dark circles around my eyes, flat cheekbones, a bump on the bridge of a too-long nose, prominent chin, sparse eyelashes and an uneven skin tone sprinkled with freckles." Here's how, working with Wayne

A "Map" of Sunny's Makeup Magic

Like an artist working on a canvas, Sunny daubs strokes of color in strategic places, as outlined below.

Franken from Coty, Sunny makes up her perfect photo-face. She uses several shades of a rich protein foundation and cream blusher.

1) To hide dark circles around her eyes, she applies a very pale flesh tone (but not white—it looks too owlish).

2) To even skin tone, cover freckles and the occasional blemish, a shade of foundation that perfectly matches her complexion is applied. (Sunny always tests her makeup near a window to see how it looks in clear daylight.)

3) To create high cheekbones, Sunny uses a darker shade of foundation below her natural bones and a rosy blusher on top (as shown). A touch of rouge around the hairline and on the chin adds sparkle to the face.

4) To sculpt a perfect jawline, the dark foundation is applied in broad strokes under the chin.

5) To fix that too-long bumpy nose, she uses dark foundation down both sides and under the tip.

6) To dramatize eyes, Sunny uses brown eyebrow pencil blended along top and bottom lashes and shaped in an arch across the hollow of the eye. (She recommends the pencil for eye liner because it has a softer line and is easier to control.)

7) To make the most of skimpy lashes, Sunny applies coats of mascara alternated with pats of powder, which acts as a fixative.

8) For an appealing mouth, a light daub of the darker makeup shade is applied just under the center of the lower lip. (Check your makeup again after you've dressed, advises Sunny. The rouge that may have seemed too bright—after applying mascara, eye shadow and lipstick—may need heightening.)

"An important part of my beauty routine," Sunny tells us, "has nothing to do with makeup at all." First, she always thoroughly cleanses and moisturizes her face morning and night. Second, she's a fanatic about health and exercise. Eating a balanced diet is one of her chief tenets. Here's her prescription: "My working-day breakfast, which I never skip, is high in protein. I make an eggnog of skim milk and egg, and add fresh fruit, when available, or vanilla flavoring. With this, I have one slice of whole wheat toast with honey, no butter, and drink decaffeinated coffee. Lunch? I carry it with me. I tote raw carrots and celery, sometimes with a bit of spicy dip, a piece of cheese and an apple. This way I get protein and crunch. Dinner is usually fish. (My only problem there is that my husband hates it!) Snacks? I never keep sweets in the house—they're too irresistible. But I do indulge in a candy bar occasionally so I won't feel deprived." Sunny has a complete physical every year and exercise is a way of life with her. She skis, plays tennis and works out in a gym. "I never ride when I can walk," she adds, "and I try to walk at a blood-circulating pace."

3 Tricks Professional Models Use

1. The best trick for making lips "sparkle": super-frosted lipstick or, over your favorite lip color, a finishing touch of petroleum jelly.
2. If you forget all makeup rules, remember this one: A corrective dark daub diminishes flaws or helps them recede (as in creating attractive cheekbone hollows), and a light makeup application enhances (as in pastel eye shadow to bring out small eyes). The only exception: the lip area—dark lipstick will draw attention to a wide mouth. Reverse the rule here.
3. Three tiny dots of blue mascara or moistened blue brow pencil placed at the lower outer edge of the eye will bring out the whites of your eyes.

The ABC's of Hand Care

Good nails, on well-kept hands, are an essential touch of beauty. But they're not easy to come by! Many nails are needy and show it in splits, breaks and other troublesome signs of weakness. How to get them in shape?

First, your diet. If you have vitamin, calcium or protein deficiencies, they'll show up in unhealthy looking nails. Check with your doctor; then you might supplement your diet with a daily vitamin or a packet of gelatin.

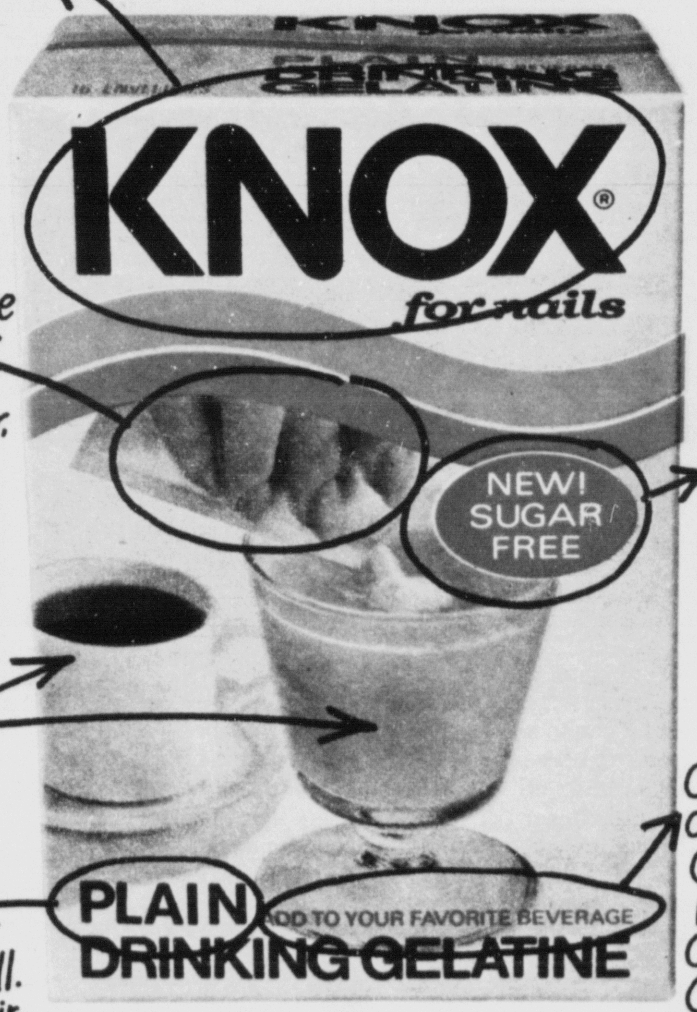

Do try to spend 20 minutes once a week grooming your nails, taking the opportunity to treat hands and arms to a brisk cream massage. Between manicures, use a terry-cloth towel to gently push cuticles back each time you wash your hands. Use hand lotion and nail-cuticle cream to nourish the cuticle down where the nail takes root. If your nails are too soft, you'll find nail hardeners on the market, some fortified with protein.

Other helps: buffing or massaging the fingers toward the tip to improve circulation. Remember that the cold winter weather has a definite effect on your nails. They become more brittle in winter and therefore need extra-special care.

Start your own "nail security system." Always carry a small emery board in your purse for on-the-spot repairs. Don't use your nails as tools! Use the end of a pencil to dial the phone. Grasp objects especially hairpins, with the cushions of your fingers. Pry open the tops of containers with kitchen gadgets. Cover up your hands with rubber gloves when you do your heavy household cleaning jobs such as hand-washing clothes, painting or cleaning silver. Turn light switches off and on and push elevator buttons with your knuckles rather than your nails.

The fact is that, by practicing a little "nail consciousness" every day, you can manage to get away with spending a minimum of time and effort on basic care—and still have beautiful hands to show for it.

At 38, I got rid of 10 pounds and my gray hair, and went to work for a decorator.

Over the past few years I'd gotten a little fatter and a little grayer. Year by year. Maybe because my husband loved me too much. But deep down I knew. And here I was nearing 40.

Before when I'd had these feelings I'd work it off cleaning a closet or something. This time I knew I had to renew myself. It was painful but I went looking for a job.

I decided one thing I didn't need was gray hair. Every time I looked in the mirror it was depressing. That gloomy gray-brown color just wasn't me!...

I didn't want to use a peroxide dye though. I wouldn't touch my hair till I found out about Loving Care® lotion. It's not a permanent tint or dye. It's a gentle color wash.

It's different from most all other haircolor brands because it doesn't have peroxide! And it doesn't change your own natural color. Just the gray goes away.

Now I'm doing things. I like myself. And who knows what's ahead! I feel as a person I've only just begun and forty is going to be fabulous!

How to Give Yourself a Perfect Manicure

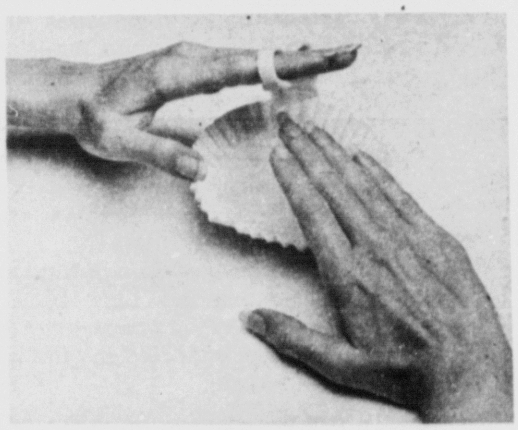

There probably isn't a woman alive who wouldn't enjoy the luxury of a professional manicure once a week, but few have the time, the money or a convenient salon. Here's how to succeed on your own, illustrated by the experts at Cutex.

Begin by removing every last trace of polish with polish remover, using cotton in a gentle outward stroke. Then rinse fingertips.

With an emery board, filing in one direction toward the center, shape your nails, aiming for a medium length (about ¼ inch beyond fingertips) and a broad oval shape—best for resisting breaks and bruises.

For the most professional-looking manicure, angle the emery board at 45 degrees.

Then proceed as follows:

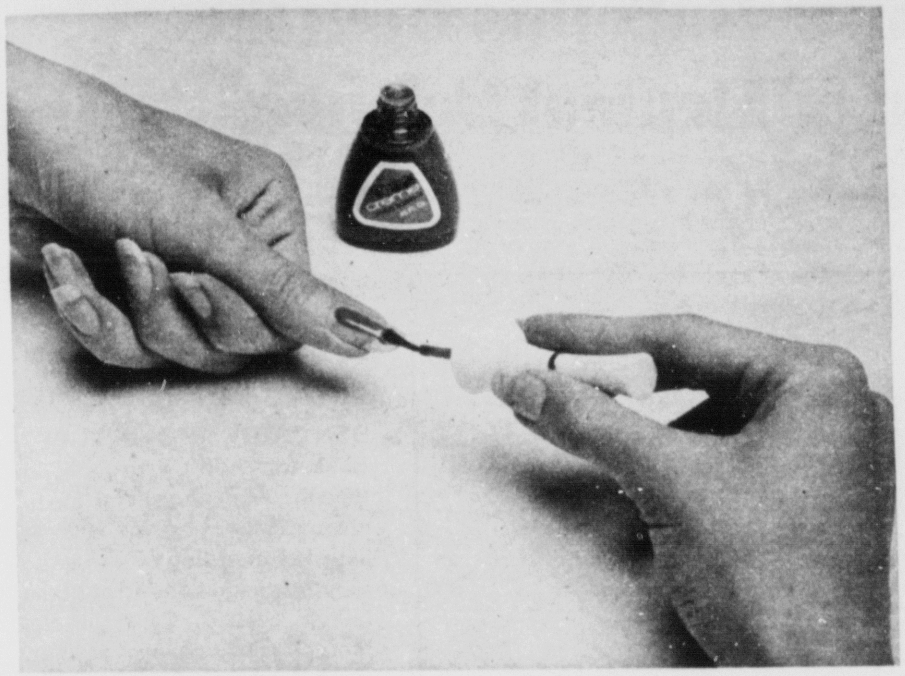

After shaping nails, bathe your hands in a warm, sudsy solution, gently scrubbing nails clean with a good hand brush.

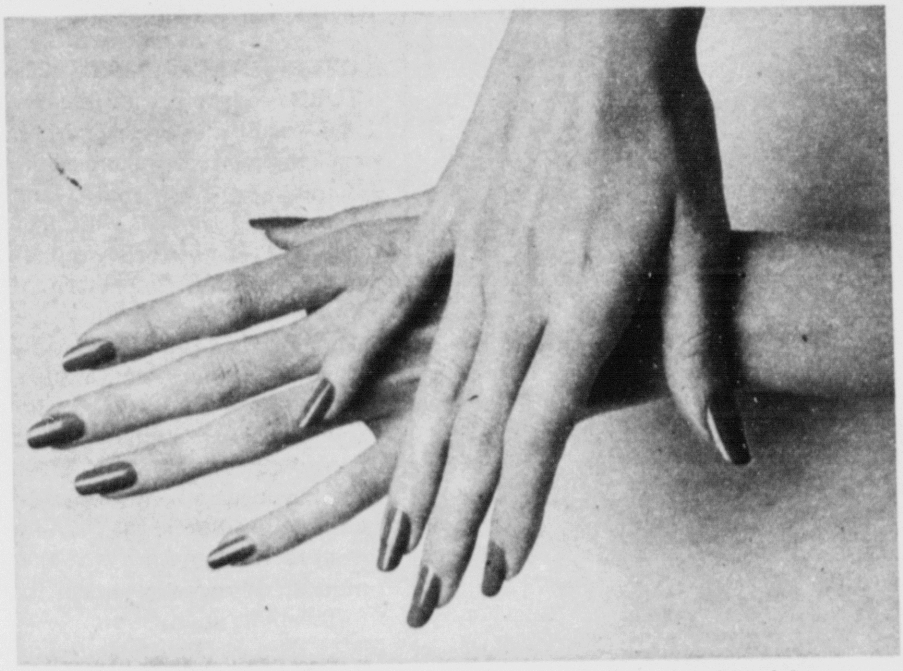

Loosen cuticles by nudging them back with a manicure stick lightly wrapped in cotton and dipped in an oily cuticle remover. Then rinse with warm water.

Three strokes—that's all it should take to apply a coat of polish perfectly. Always polish your handiest hand first, leaving the less dextrous one bare while it's working. Stroke number one goes down the middle of your nail; strokes two and three down each side. Always start at the base and work to the tip. Ward off disheartening smears by beginning the polishing process at the thumbnail and then working your way back from the pinky to the index finger. Two coats of polish usually do the trick. Allow one minute for the first coat to dry before applying the second. Finish with a final protective coat of "colorless" polish for extra shine and staying power.

The final, perfect manicure! For a neat finish, run a manicure stick tipped with cotton and dampened with polish remover along the outside of the cuticle and fingertip to clear away any smudges of polish.

How's Your Nail IQ?

Did you know that—

1. Use of a metal file can weaken and split nails (an emery board is recommended).

2. Nails should not be shaped too deeply at the corners. Pointed nails will break faster than oval-shaped.

3. Tobacco stains can be removed by rubbing the areas with a wedge of lemon or cotton soaked in hydrogen peroxide.

4. Digging your nails into a cake of soap before tackling a gardening chore will keep them cleaner, protect against breaking.

5. A complete new nail grows every three to five months—faster in summer than winter, faster on the right hand (if you're right-handed) and middle finger, and even faster during pregnancy.

Cucumber and Beauty

by ANA MAHER

Every woman, at some time in her life, faces the spectre of an aging skin. Most women never solve the problem, and finally become resigned. A fortunate few find the answer and are rewarded with a complexion that remains fresh and youthful all their lives.

Ten years ago, I had this skin problem. Nothing very serious, but when I took my mirror over to a bright light, I could detect evidence of dryness and tell-tale signs of advancing years. And I didn't like it. I knew that these were danger signals that warned of an aging skin.

I was also very bewildered. I had always taken the best care of my skin. And no matter what I did, my complexion showed no improvement. Finally I became resigned. After all, everybody gets older and most of us show our age.

Then one day I had a visit from an elderly widowed neighbor. This charming lady was about seventy, but she had the most beautiful, moist, youthful skin. I remarked about it and mentioned my own skin problem.

She told me she used a marvelous cream which had been formulated by her late husband, a physician, and that she made it herself. "Try it," she said, and then she left and returned with a jar of this cream.

So I tried using my neighbor's cream.

In only three weeks, I began to see a marked improvement. My skin was fresher, clearer, smoother. After two months, my former dry, dull skin was revitalized. My skin now had a youthful, almost translucent quality. I was thrilled with my neighbor's formula.

For six years, this kind lady kept me supplied with this cream. And I want to tell you that my skin was more vital and younger looking than it had been when I first started to use it, six years before.

Then my neighbor died suddenly—and with her went that wonderful cream and its secret ingredients. I was saddened by the loss of a good friend—and dejected by the loss of a miracle cream. Her family told me that her personal papers revealed no formulas of any kind. I was desperate. But I did have three jars left from the last batch she had made.

So I took the cream to one of the best known analytical cosmetic chemists. The cost of the analysis was enormous, but I got what I wanted. I had the wonder cream formula.

It had a base of pure cucumber juice, two super-moisturizers, three natural lubricants, and a special component to keep the cucumber juice fresh. My chemist told me that the formula consisted of only safe, pure ingredients—no hormones, estrogens or steroids.

I made a batch of cream for myself, following the chemist's instructions. Then my friends and relatives began using it. And in every case, the results were absolutely astounding.

Soon friends began insisting that the cream should be made known and available to all women, since the problem of aging skin is universal.

So my cream was put on the market four years ago, with the financial help of an uncle. It is called Cucumbre Frost.

The same wonderful results experienced by me, my friends and relatives were repeated time and time again by women all over the country. I have in my file hundreds of letters from grateful women telling of the remarkable results obtained with Cucumbre Frost.

Treatment is not a complicated ritual. I don't have time for that and the chances are you don't, either. You apply Cucumbre Frost at bedtime. Leave it on all night. It feeds, protects and nourishes your skin while you sleep.

I know what Cucumbre Frost can do for you. Therefore, I offer you this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Try it. See for yourself in your own mirror how, after a few treatments, Cucumbre Frost helps revitalize dull, dry, aging skin. How, when used regularly, Cucumbre Frost helps facial skin to regain lost smoothness, moistness and freshness. Many women wrote me of astonishing results after only two weeks. Some take longer. But I say this to you: If, for any reason, you are not delighted with Cucumbre Frost—return the unused portion to me for a complete refund. No questions asked.

You have the opportunity to have a vital, youthful, lovely skin—at no risk. Cucumbre Frost can be purchased only by ordering it directly from me. Simply fill out the coupon and mail today.

Medicine Chest: At-a-Glance Bulletins from the Changing World of Medical Science...

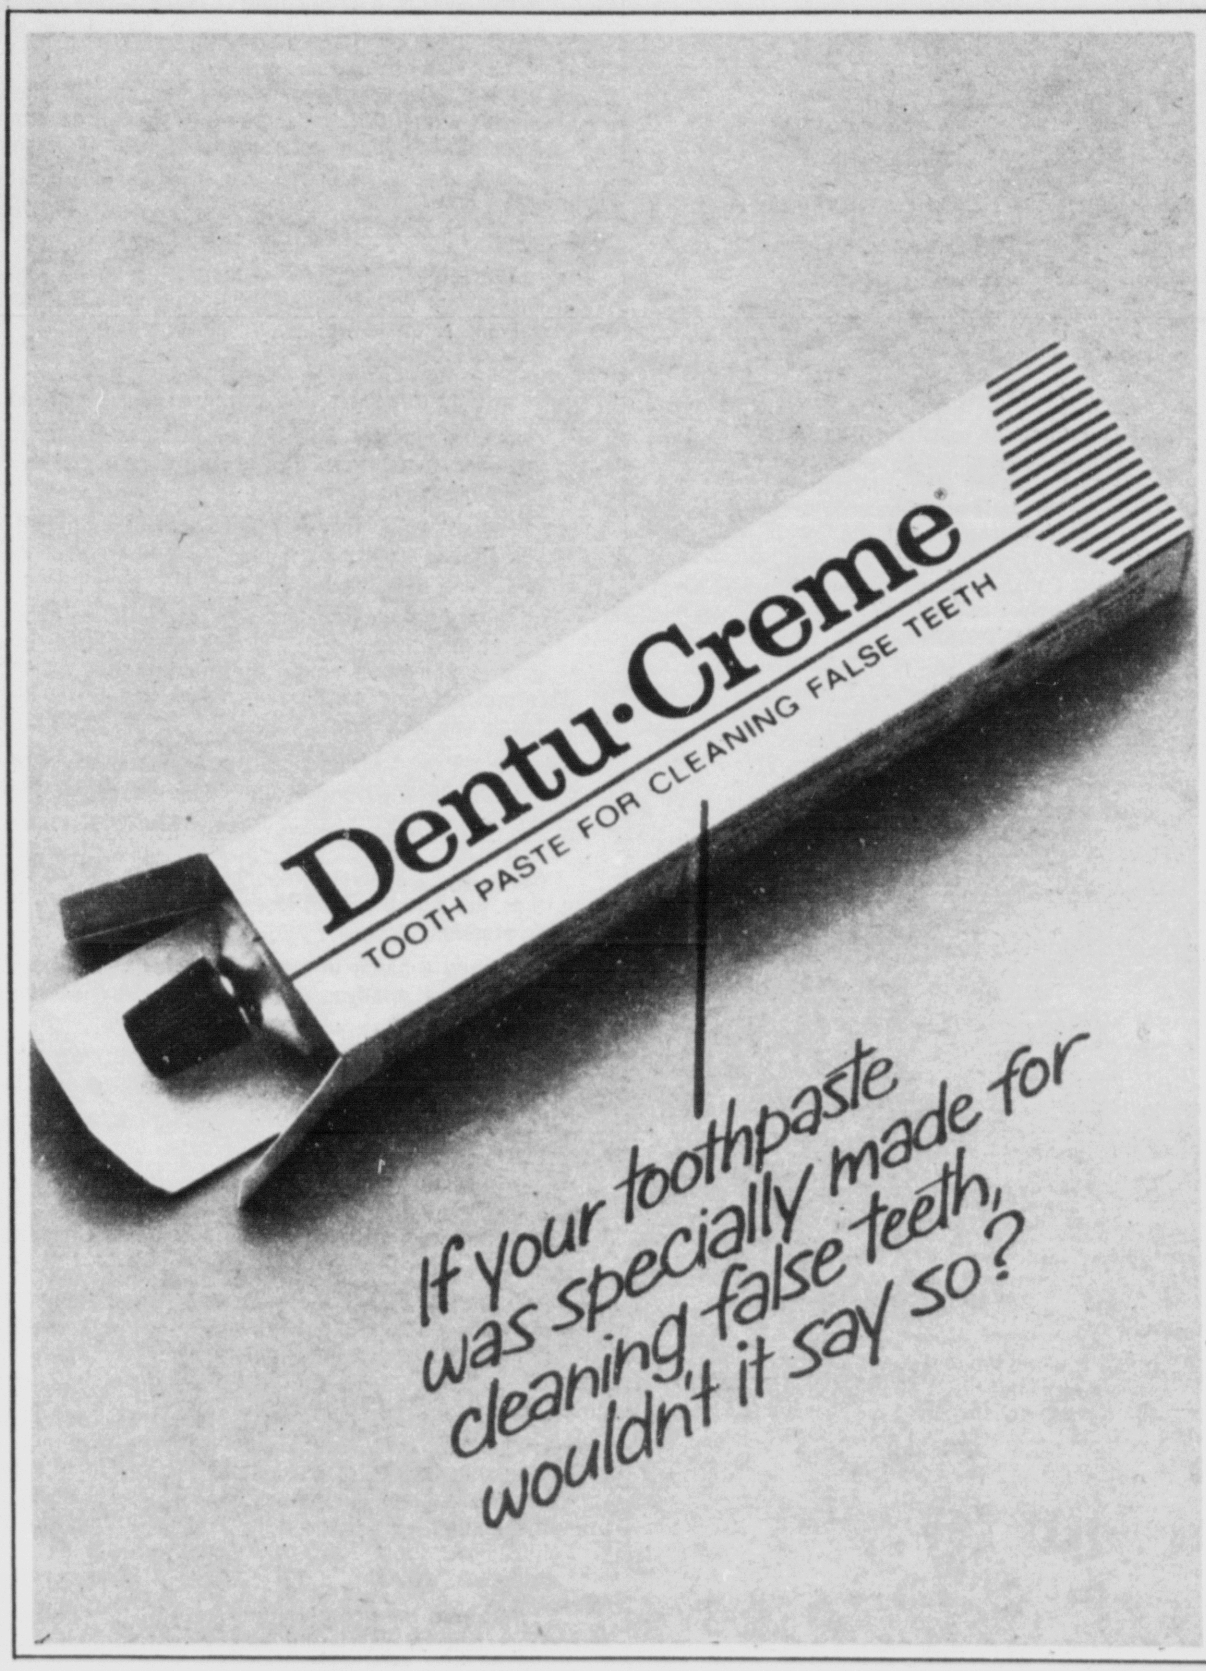

By Erwin DiCyan, Ph.D.

CAN SENILITY BE CURED? Yes . . . maybe. . . . In the past, senility has been treated with drugs. But now there's evidence that some senility, in early stages, can be helped by adequate nutrition. Given the proper vitamins, minerals, trace minerals (minerals needed in minute quantity), and food that is thoughtfully prepared, some so-called senile symptoms are often much reduced. One secret: Older people need an adequate caloric intake, but carbohydrates should be reduced and proteins increased. This is according to Dr. T. G. Taylor of the University of Southampton in England. Another thing to watch for – dental problems. Older people's dentistry must be maintained to assure a varied diet.

DO "ANTACIDS" REALLY WORK? Consumer interests often claim that medicines advertised on TV are ineffective and that some are even dangerous. Not so. The majority probably serve a good purpose. For example, a recent article in the "Journal of the American Medical Association" by Drs. Daniel Hollander and John Harlan reports that antacids (such as those on TV commercials) are effective in helping to heal and relieve stomach ulcers. Of course, many doctors have prescribed antacids that way for years. Still, it's good to keep in mind: "Consumerism" is one thing, cynicism is another.

SON OF VITAMINS C AND E? Vitamin B_6 may be the next rage after vitamins E and C. Watch for it. Another name for B_6 is pyridoxine. B_6 has a number of functions, including protection of the nervous system against convulsions. A few years ago, cases were reported in which, in the processing of a baby food, B_6 was lost. The babies fed with that food developed convulsions. In a recently published book ("Vitamin B_6– The Doctor's Report," by Drs. John Ellis and James Presley, Harper & Row, N.Y.), B_6 is reported to be useful for impaired circulation, rheumatism and nerve affections of the hands. But more study is needed.

A NEW FLU. The influenza virus has a new look this year. Last year's flu shot alone will probably not protect you. The new flu is the old Hong Kong flu with a face-lift–the same, but different enough to make a new protective shot advisable. The new flu vaccine is given a few weeks after the customary flu shot. With the energy shortage this winter, heating may be low. Assuming that this makes one more susceptible to the flu (a point on which there is controversy among doctors), it is doubly advisable to protect older people and those with respiratory problems or chronic heart disease. Warning: Since these vaccines are cultured in eggs, those allergic to eggs should avoid them.

DENTISTRY MOVING UP? Look for dentistry to move in the direction of general medicine. A relatively new concept called stomatology looks at the mouth as a kind of mirror of the body. Certain signs in the mouth, such as changes in color, or the presence of spots, can indicate a serious medical condition – leukemia, cancer, jaundice. Even measles shows its signs in the mouth before a general rash occurs (spots inside the cheeks, called Koplik's spots). What it all means: increased status for dentists (and perhaps higher bills?).

CYCLAMATES MAY RETURN. Remember three years ago when the sweetening agent, cyclamates, were ordered off the market in one weekend? Many scientists disagreed with that step. They did not believe cyclamates harmful. Since then, a dozen different studies in many parts of the world have indicated cyclamates got a bum rap. The manufacturer who sponsored those studies, Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., has made a formidable 15-volume petition to the FDA to restore cyclamates to the market. A decision should be forthcoming soon.

DOCTORS AFRAID OF DRUGS? Doctors fear drug addiction so much that they are reluctant to prescribe adequate doses of narcotics even for people who need them. This is the finding of a survey by Drs. Richard M. Marks and Edward J. Sacher of Albert Einstein College of Medicine. The survey found "a pattern of undertreatment of pain . . . leading to widespread and significant patient distress." This sometimes takes on strange and illogical forms, such as the fear of some doctors to give generous pain relief to terminal-cancer patients because it might addict them. Or take LSD. Experiments show that LSD comforts patients dying of cancer and enables them to face death with little or no distress. Still, doctors refuse to use it. LSD has bad connotations. This is the kind of thing critics point to when they complain Americans are not being allowed to "die with dignity."

TWO NEW CANCER TESTS. (1) You'll be hearing more of CEA (which stands for carcinoembryonic antigen) as a test for cancer. Developed by Drs. Phil Gold and S. O. Freedman of Montreal, the test is particularly promising for finding cancer of the gastrointestinal tract—the digestive system. It's not as useful for other cancers. The test is done by taking a blood sample from patients and putting it in contact with serum from rabbits who have been injected with serum from known cancer patients. The amount of CEA, if found, is calculated. This determines likelihood of cancer. (2) Up till now, breast cancer has usually been confirmed by a biopsy taken under general anesthesia. A small portion of the breast is surgically removed and examined. When the material is found to be malignant, the breast is often removed while the patient is still under anesthesia—with the patient having the shock of waking up minus a breast. Now there is a simpler method. The biopsy can be made on material that is drawn out of the breast by a needle. This does not require general anesthesia and the results can be had in an hour. FW

Eighth in a series:

She's Betty King Barker, industrial designer who can list among her credits 4 careers, 3 grandchildren, 2 sons, and 1 husband. She also manages to find time for tennis, golf and looking after her good looks. To keep her silvery hair bright and beautiful, she uses Silk & Silver, Clairol's long lasting color lotion in Silvery Pearl* #14.

"So easy," says Mrs. Barker, "I just shampoo it in every few weeks—it colors away the yellow, adds lots of body and wonderfully rich deep color." And it has no peroxide.

Star Chat

George Peppard, TV's "Banacek":

"My Temper Is Like the Onslaught Of the Ice Age"

Pictorial Parade

George Peppard: "I keep my business separate from my private life."

George Peppard arrived for breakfast looking like George Peppard is expected to look: his nearly white hair neatly cropped (he started graying at 30), wearing a white tennis outfit and a healthy tan that made his eyes look an even lighter blue. His attitude was one of studied serenity and patience. His voice: low and perfectly modulated. In short, he seemed totally in control of himself. Yet somehow it was like sitting next to a flawless bottle—with the cork ready to blow.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You have the reputation of being very self-confident and very self-sufficient. Do you consider yourself a loner?

PEPPARD: I probably am. But to say I'm a loner is like talking about the weather—what can you do about it? It exists. Period. And I don't consciously think of myself as that. It's only an exterior observation of myself.

FW: Do you feel this is a good attitude?

PEPPARD: Not especially. It certainly is a handicap in relating with other people.

FW: Does being an actor have anything to do with your feeling aloof?

PEPPARD: Being in this business—and famous—automatically isolates you. The work itself creates this because you spend 12 hours a day secluded on location or on a sound stage, and you're never in contact with anyone. Also, the hours prohibit socializing, so you don't meet new people. There's simply no opportunity.

FW: You were an only child. Do you think that caused you to be a loner?

PEPPARD: Probably, to some extent. But not wholly. It was also because of the way my parents were. They had a greater sense of privacy than most people. They kept things in the family. There were certain things they didn't talk about to others. I'm also a private person.

FW: How does it show?

PEPPARD: For instance, I don't allow any pictures to be taken in my home. Ever. And no pictures of the children—you know, the typical "at home with the kiddies" thing. [Editor's note: Peppard has two children—Bradford, 18, and Julie, 14—by his first wife, Helen Davies. He has another son—Christian, six—by his second wife, Elizabeth Ashley, from whom he is also divorced.] Naturally, the children are familiar with publicity, and I think nothing of taking them to tennis tournaments where flashbulbs pop off all the time. But that's different. I keep my business separate from my private life.

"Please understand, and let me make this clear: I have no complaints! In talking frankly and honestly, there is the danger that I sound grudging. I am not. I picked the profession, they pay me well, and by my own choice I want to stay in it!"

FW: You seem to have extraordinary self-control. Don't you ever get angry?

PEPPARD: I suppose I bottle it up to some extent. I don't often get angry. I don't want to, because when I do, I get very angry.

FW: How does it show?

PEPPARD: It's been described as "the sudden onslaught of the Ice Age."

FW: Then how do you let off steam?

PEPPARD: Tennis helps. I really enjoy it. And I feel good afterward, even though I'm tired.

FW: Do you have any other ways of getting rid of your anger?

PEPPARD: I can sublimate my anger by listening to music. I love classical music. My mother was a music teacher at UCLA. Besides, I don't get angry as much as I used to. I'm 44 now, and I've matured. I used to be neurotic about things that didn't really matter.

FW: Did you ever undergo analysis?

PEPPARD: Yes, several years ago.

FW: What made you do that?

PEPPARD: How shall I put it? I'll have to be more verbal than I want to be, I think, to try to explain. When you're unhappy, and there's no realistic reason for it, or when you find your desires are being frustrated, and you're the reason for it—then you realize you need help.

FW: So you believe in analysts.

PEPPARD: I don't believe in all analysts. You have to have a good one—one you can communicate with. I tried six analysts before I got one I could communicate with. In fact, I'd tried to undergo analysis twice before. I failed. A lot of so-called "analysts" just hand you all of their problems and inadvertently compound yours. That's what happened to me.

FW: If you work all day, then go directly home, isn't that tiring—and frustrating? And didn't frustrations cause you to become neurotic in the first place?

PEPPARD: Yes, yes, you're right. Frustrations do build up. For example, in relating to a woman: If you live with a woman, she alleviates some frustrations for you. Or rather, she can, if it's a good relationship. If not she only increases them and becomes a party to them.

FW: Would you want your children to become actors?

PEPPARD: I would not strongly oppose anything they wanted to do. But the two older youngsters are not that interested in acting, having witnessed the effects and consequences of the profession.

FW: If you feel this way about show business, why do you remain in it?

PEPPARD (quickly): Please understand, and let me make this clear: I have no complaints! In talking frankly and honestly, there is the danger that I sound grudging. I am not! I picked the profession, they pay me well, and by my own choice I want to stay in it! In fact, I have my own company, Long Rifle Production Company, and I am looking forward to directing before long.

FW: Let me change the subject a minute. What do you think of Women's Lib?

PEPPARD: It has some good points. I think women should have equal political, wage and job opportunities. I think we have to recognize women as "people."

FW: But what about women in your life? Wouldn't you like to get married again?

PEPPARD: Yes. . . .

FW: You don't sound convinced.

PEPPARD: Being married to an actor who works as hard and as long as I do is a difficult job. And that's what it has to be—a full-time job!

How your Horoscope can bring you wealth, love, success and happiness.

by Norman P. Kennedy

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there are money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go through life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go through life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth – when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family, relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people. Famous scientists Galileo, Carl Jung, Johannes Kepler, Roger Bacon, Tycho Bache and Albert Einstein all believed in astrology.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win World War II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

Hitler turned back to astrology – too late. He read his horoscope in the last moments of the war as Berlin burned around him.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

The Miami Herald also tells the story of astrologer Clifford McMullen, who is George McGovern's personal astrologer. He warned McGovern that if he ran for president, that he would win the Democratic nomination, but he would lose badly to President Nixon in the November election.

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon, J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From an article in the Miami Herald came this story:

"Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75 year old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide."

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages, Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

The Weird Ways We React to the Time of Day

True or False: You are most susceptible to infection at a certain time of day. (See number 1)

Things are different at one time of the day than another. Just how different may surprise you. This True-or-False quiz goes into it.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You are most susceptible to infection at a certain time of day.

2. There are two times in the day when most people's "mental clock" works almost as well as the one on the wall.

3. There's a best time of the day to take medicine.

4. If something of importance has temporarily slipped your mind – a name, where you've put something, or whatever–there's a best time of day to try to remember it.

5. There's even a best time of the day to get rid of household pests–such as flies and roaches.

ANSWERS

1. True–according to the recent findings of a team of specialists at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, which showed that susceptibility to infection–particularly colds and respiratory ailments–is appreciably greater in the late afternoon than at any other time of day. The study showed that a substance secreted by the body–secretory immunoglobulin-A (IgA)–exerts a major protective function against contagion and disease. The body produces this substance in the most generous amounts between midnight and 8 a.m., with production at the lowest ebb from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

2. True–according to research findings cited in a National Institute of Mental Health study. Investigators had asked hundreds of people to tell them what time it was without looking at a clock. When the results were evaluated, it was found that people's time sense "was most accurate between 8 and 10 a.m. and again around 4 p.m. During midday, people typically misjudged the time, thinking that it was earlier; while at the end of the day they assumed that the hour was later."

3. True. Research sponsored by the U.S. Public Heath Service reports that medications taken at one time of day can have far more beneficial results–with fewer side effects–than if taken at another time. Laboratory tests showed that drugs administered at one hour of the day produced undesirable effects in 78 percent of the cases. When dosage was administered at another hour, undesirable effects occurred only eight percent of the time. The best time of day to take a given medication depends both on the type of medicine and the person's individual response to the drug.

4. True. The best time is during a rest period, when you're stretched out on a lounge or easy chair. Studies show that your memory processes function most effectively when you're as relaxed as possible–mentally as well as physically.

5. True. Don't laugh, we're not kidding. There is a best time of day to rid your house of such pests. It's four o'clock in the afternoon. In studies conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, scientists discovered that insecticides are much more effective on flies and roaches in the late afternoon than they are at any other time during the 24-hour period. How did the scientists find this out? They studied the insects' daily biological rhythms, sprayed them with insecticides under controlled conditions at various hours of the day and night, then collected mortality statistics. The time when the pests were found to be most susceptible to the insecticides was in the late afternoon.

Those Horrid Age Spots

"I was so embarrassed, I had tea with my gloves on."

"Then I found Esoterica. The medicated cream that works below the skin's surface, in the pigment-forming cells, to help lighten and fade age spots and other darkened skin discolorations on hands and face.

In a matter of weeks, my skin looked younger and clearer."

Esoterica®
HELPS FADE EMBARRASSING AGE SPOTS.

advertisement

Now, a blunt promise by an eminent dermatologist:

Every cell of your face has a "clock" in it! Here's how to wind those clocks backwards!

Revealed by an eminent dermatologist (see his word-by-word statement below): How, with the proper scientific instruction, you can literally stop the biological "clocks" in your skin . . . actually look ten to twenty years younger than your real age . . . erase wrinkles, blemishes and coarseness . . . and do it all using nothing more than such simple ingredients as water, soap, and (especially) salt!

This is, quite frankly, a vital message about what is perhaps the most revolutionary home-medical-guide ever published on facial care . . . facial beauty . . . renewed facial youth. Its results are so spectacular, its documentation is so overwhelming, and its methods are so vital to your future life that we must repeat, in full, two more quotes from its opening pages:

"As a matter of fact, we have only recently acquired the ability to really do something about the more serious changes in appearance that accompany aging . . .

"In the past, the average person stood very little chance of being able to look younger. Without wealth or the right genes, there was very little hope. The advent of modern skin care has changed all this. Now it is no longer necessary to pamper yourself or be born with good skin. The idle rich no longer have any advantage . . . the genes you inherit are no longer a limiting factor, because we can now compensate for even delicate, age-prone skin . . . Thanks to modern research, we now know what causes many of the unattractive problems that appear with age. With this kind of knowledge, we have been able to develop methods that are effective in combatting or solving these problems.

"The practical application of these methods can produce spectacular results. A person can easily look ten to twenty years younger than his or her actual age, and this can be achieved with a minimum of effort. My own interest in this subject was first stimulated by an eminent dermatologist who was one of my first teachers. He was not only an early advocate of these new methods, but he practiced them himself. The results were truly impressive. At almost eighty years of age, he appeared to be in his early fifties."

This, Then, Is The Startling New Promise That Lies Right At Your Fingertips! And Here Are The Discoveries That Are Going To Give It To You!

For example—

Age is no longer a barrier to a flawless complexion, because the outer layer of your skin never stops growing! And, if you learn the right way to utilize that growth, you may actually reverse the dreaded aging process, and grow younger-looking, not older.

The ultimate moisturizer! How it can eliminate moisture loss instantly, and actually repair the ravages caused by years of facial dryness.

The three insidious structural changes that create "old" skin, and how to stop each at its source.

For example, master this simple technique of protecting the all-important "inner layer" of skin from damage, and you will never need the services of a plastic surgeon.

How your kitchen stove can make you look old, old, old—unless you learn how to use it—like this.

How certain household aids (that you use every day) actually poison your skin. Get rid of them—now.

How to keep the sun from turning your face into a wrinkled prune.

How to protect your skin against air pollution. (Otherwise, if you live in a big city, be prepared to have people guess you're ten years older than you really are.)

How to banish blocked pores and blackheads—for good.

The Number One Rule for protecting your face against all the hazards of the environment. Follow it faithfully (see page 36), and when your friends look as old as Methuselah, you'll hardly have changed at all.

Indisputable Proof That It Would Take A Century For Your Face To Look Old, If You Didn't Abuse It Like This . . .

How to "quick-clean" your face, so thoroughly, and so fast, that you take years off it, rather than put them on.

Invisible sources of skin inflammations and allergies, that may be ruining your complexion right now. In other words, how to practice modern acne therapy, right in your own home.

Why you may never have to spend a cent on commercial face-care products again. For two reasons: Because most of them are actually harmful to your skin (see list on page 67). And because none of them could ever do as much for that skin as the almost-costless preparations given to you on page 71.

For example, the best daytime base in the world (and you should wear it every minute of every day, to keep the youth-force sealed in your skin) costs only 84¢ for a six-month supply. And the best night cream you can buy costs slightly more—about 91¢ for a six-month supply.

And the best skin freshener probably costs a penny a day.

And not one of them contains a single ingredient that will unknowingly age your face, or dry out your face, or irritate your face. All they do is pull the filth out of that face, at the same time they seal in the youth.

But What About The Old Skin That's Marring Your Face Right Now? What Do You Do About It? THIS—

Here, on page 72, is (in our opinion at least) the really startling breakthrough in facial care in this generation. It is called, "Skin Thinning". It takes about two minutes of your time a week, and it costs about 3¢ a treatment. It's basic ingredient is salt. Plain ordinary table salt. But used in such a way that it almost instantly cuts down wrinkles. Opens clogged pores. Helps prevent age spots and whiteheads. May actually have your husband cooing with delight the very first day you use it.

And there's still more—much more—like this:

How the wrong vitamins can poison your skin. And the right vitamin therapy cause spectacular changes overnight. (See page 108.)

How dry, scaly skin can often be eliminated by a simple change in your diet. (See page 107.)

The "Young-Face Style of Life". Or how to erase ten years from the look of your skin, simply by adjusting the way you work, play and sleep. (See page 112.)

How your skin can warn you of the insidious development of diseases of the heart, circulatory system, lungs, blood, thyroid, pancreas, sex glands, liver, kidneys and much more, all by simply knowing how to read the danger signals it sends out. (See page 105.)

Two easy solutions to hand and nail problems. (See page 140.)

How to save your hair. Why you must not overbrush it. The one overlooked cause of 99 per cent of all severe hair damage. A simple immediate test that tells you, for sure, the rate of hair loss. Why the wrong use of vitamins may be causing that loss. Medical methods (your husband will bless you when you show them to him) of really compensating for that ugly loss.

And Much Much More. At Last All You Need To Never Look Your Age Again! AND WE PROVE IT TO YOU WITHOUT YOUR RISKING A PENNY!

Remember! Good skin care is one of today's best bargains . . . nothing else gives you such a high return for such a small investment! But, YOU MUST BEGIN NOW! The effects of a long lifetime of neglect and abuse can NEVER BE COMPLETELY REVERSED! You owe it to yourself—and to that special man in your life—to return the No-Risk Coupon—TODAY!

MR. AND MS. ROBOT
It's so hard finding help...

The answer to a liberated woman's dreams is a robot—especially one that pours tea. The two robots shown here were invented by Viennese engineer Claus Scholz. They can answer telephones, open doors, vacuum floors, shake hands, introduce themselves and pour liquids from one container to another without spilling a drop. "But this is only the start," says Scholz. "What I eventually want to build is a machine that can virtually do any normal chore. I want to reproduce mechanically and electronically the thinking processes of the human brain to arrive at a machine that can think for itself." The drawback with these robots is that they are operated electrically and therefore must be plugged into the wall by a human being. One day Scholz hopes to invent robots that run on batteries. The question remains: Will they be able to turn themselves off—and on?

DONNY OSMOND
With sister Marie, 14, and brother Jimmy, 10

It's the teenybopper idol's biggest problem: what to do when your voice begins to change. Donny Osmond, 15, is facing that problem now. Lloyd's of London may insure Betty Grable's legs or Van Cliburn's hands, but it won't insure a boy's voice—even when it's worth $1 million. Can a baritone find happiness in a tenor's world? Will girls still swoon? Will money keep rolling in? Who knows? But Donny's keeping a stiff upper tonsil. "I prefer my new voice to the old one," he said recently, as he and his family took off for six weeks' well-paid work in Las Vegas. "It's—I don't know—not as squeaky."

The college freshman wrote on his exam paper: "Rather than bluff, I'd like to confess that I didn't read the assignment." The professor returned his paper with a big red "F," but over it was a halo. —Gene Yasenak

Recently we had company for dinner. While we were eating, our three-year-old daughter looked at them and said, "I love my mama. She can do everything. She's really smart." Her daddy said, "Well, what about me, Janis?" A puzzled look came over her face, then she replied, "Have you got a nickel?"
